CP140M Aurora Block III training commences

Captain Jan Douglas, 404 Squadron, Block III Implementation Flight

March 18, 404 (Long Range Patrol and Training) Squadron launched the first serial of the CP140M Aurora Block 3 Conversion Training (CT).

The first serial, labelled CT 0, is comprised of one line crew from 405 (Long Range Patrol) Squadron, and one crew containing standards and training personnel from 404 Squadron, 14 Software Engineering Squadron and the Long Range Patrol Standardization and Evaluation Team; all at 14 Wing Greenwood. As the first trained crew from an operational squadron, the 405 Squadron crew will likely deploy a CP140M to Northern Canada to demonstrate the Block III capabilities during Operation NANOOK later this summer. Once trained, the standards and training crew will provide mentorship and training assistance to 404 Squadron's Block III Implementation Flight for future CT serials and training development.

The launch of CT 0 is the direct result of the hard work and long hours put in by many 14 Wing personnel. Block III Implementation Flight (aircrew and maintenance flights), Maritime Proving & Evaluation Unit, 404 Squadron simulator staff, 14 Software Engineering Squadron and 14 Wing Operations have all played a part in reaching this significant milestone.

The course itself has a planned duration of approximately nine weeks. The first three weeks will be conducted via distance learning, while the remainder will include in-house lectures, demonstrations, simulator sessions and actual flights. Once complete, the course will undergo adjustments and corrections if required. When directed by 14 Wing Commander Colonel Jim Irvine, the Block III Implementation Flight will then continue to train future serials.

It has been a very long road to this point; it will be great to see everyone's hard work pay off.

Major Chris Larsen, 404 Squadron's Block III Implementation Flight Commander, addresses the students and instructors of CT0.

Reservists top of the class

Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

February 14, two 14 Wing Greenwood Reservists were recognized for top marks on an international program.

Master Corporal David Murray and Sergeant Michelle Rerrie, both 29-year Canadian Armed Forces members, spent six and five weeks, respectively, on leadership courses at the United States Air National Guard Leadership Academy. In the Non Commissioned Officer Academy, a class of 260 students, Rerrie, a deployment readiness instructor, was a distinguished graduate (in the top 10 per cent of the class). Murray, an avionics project technician at the base's Maritime Proving and Evaluation Unit, was also a distinguished graduate – and the overall top student among a 60-member class.

"It makes me feel all warm inside to hear about two of our Royal Canadian Air Force folks' top performance," said 14 Wing Greenwood Commander Colonel Jim Irvine, at a headquarters event to welcome the Reservists back to the base. "I tell you, I've served in NATO and my squadron commander was American. I've noticed Americans don't hand out these distinctions very often to non-Americans, and the fact we have these two is a testament to the RCAF and our great people."

Murray and Rerrie were two of four Canadians taken in the courses, and both say the opportunity was a unique chance to train in the United States – and have their own experiences in the CAF brought into class discussions.

"They'd always turn to us and ask how in Canada we do things," said Murray, although he had a hard job convincing his classmates to not ask him how CAF drill patterns look as he was trying to learn and lead American-style formations on the parade square.

Both agree the leadership skills and concepts they learned were valuable, with new theory and many reinforcements of what they've followed throughout their careers.

Neither work now in supervisory roles as Reservists, but their years of experience and day-to-day opportunities to mentor younger CAF personnel will make use of these courses' lessons.

"We still have things we feel we can contribute to the organization – and we're here because we want to be," said Rerrie.

Lighting it up Museum's LED transformation making big difference

Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

One bulb at a time, the Greenwood Military Aviation Museum is making a difference.

A trial project is underway to swap out 110 incandescent light bulbs with LED bulbs, with a three-way saving in mind.

"Ultraviolet light is hard on the artefacts," says Wing Heritage Officer Major Bob Johnson, "and, a side effect of the new LED bulbs is a much lower electric consumption."

A report backing the trial estimates the museum's 20,000 kilowatt hours used per year could be decimated to just 1,700 KW.

"We calculated it all out, and we're just floored – that's quite a bit. It's a $2,000 job to change out the light bulbs, we get a $14 per bulb rebate from Conserve Nova Scotia, we'll save a tonne of money on electricity and these LED bulbs have a life span of up to 40,000 hours. Right now, I'm up changing burned out bulbs a handful at a time every month.

"We can't go wrong."

The LED bulbs are smaller, but the museum has devised an ingenious way to retrofit fixtures: a drilled out CD slipped behind the bulb not only makes the bulb fit, but it's actually directing more light down onto exhibits than ever before. In the past, a lot of light "spill" went up, making shadows and lighting up the ceiling, and also "haloing" on the walls.

"We started replacing some of the bulbs as a trial so everyone can see the before and after lighting of the exhibits," Johnson says. Overhead fixtures and showcase bar-style LEDs have been in place for a couple of weeks.

"Exhibits were dull and lit with yellow light, and hard to read. You can see the difference in what it can do."

Johnson is sharing information about the lighting project with other Canadian Air Force museums, and says 14 Wing Greenwood's Wing Environment office is "very excited" with the initiative.

"The base has a high consciousness of going 'green'," Johnson says, "and this project here at the museum will show people just what can be done."

26 Years Military Experience

NOT INTENDED TO SOLICIT LISTED PROPERTIES

Séances d'information préalables au déménagement

Vous êtes affecté – Et maintenant?

Nous encourageons vivement les militaires et leurs conjoints qui seront affectés au cours de la période des affectations 2013 à assister à l'une des deux séances d'information obligatoires sur les affectations qui auront lieu le 26 mars à 13 h 30, le 9 avril à 18 h ou le 10 avril à 13 h 30 au

Centre d'instruction Birchall.

« Si vous êtes dans des logements familiaux (LF), il y a certaines choses que vous devez faire. Si vous avez des enfants, des ressources et des services de garderie seront offerts pour vous aider, car le déménagement est souvent difficile pour les familles. La base dispose d'une liste de libération comportant de nombreux cas qui doivent être cochées », affirme le caporal-chef Kathleen Snow, commis de soutien à la gestion des ressources de la salle des rapports de l'escadre.

Toute cette information sera examinée lors des séances d'information, avec des présentateurs de l'Agence de logement des Forces canadiennes, du Centre de ressources pour les familles des militaires, des Services globaux de relogement Brookfield et de la section Meubles et Effets. Des copies papier des guides d'information seront disponibles (en ligne, vous trouverez ce dont vous avez besoin à http://www.irp-pri.com/policies\_directives/cf\_members/).

Lorsque le déménagement devient pénible, dit-elle, il y a de l'aide : le CRFM, les aumôniers et les travailleurs sociaux de la base ainsi que les pairs militaires qui ont réussi à traverser des périodes difficiles de changement peuvent partager leur expérience, offrir un soutien en matière de gestion du stress et de déménagement.

Post out briefing highlights the process

You're posted – now what?

Military members and their spouses who will be posted through the 2013 posting season are urged to attend one of three mandatory posting-out briefings: March 26 at 1:30 p.m., April 9 at 6 p.m. and April 10 at 1:30 p.m., at the Birchall Training Centre.

“If you are in PMQs (Private Married Quarters), there are things you need to do,” says Master Corporal Kathleen Snow, a resource management support clerk in the Wing Orderly Room. “If you have children, there are resources and childcare to help – sometimes it's difficult to make a move for families. There's a clearing out list for the base with tonnes of places on it that need to be checked off.”

All of this information will be reviewed at the briefings, with speakers from the Canadian Forces Housing Agency, the military family resources centre, Brookfield Global Relocation Services and the Furniture and Effects Section. Hard copies of information guides will be available (on-line, find what you need at http://www.irp-pri.com/policies\_directives/cf\_members/).

When a move becomes a challenge, Snow says, there is help: the MFRC, base padres and social workers, and military peers who have lived through change can share in the experience, with support for stress to handy packing tips.

Eagle award for unit leader, volunteer

Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

Flight Sergeant John Shakelton stands out. It could be his Royal Air Force uniform and British accent, but, here at 14 Wing Greenwood, it's his work ethic and willingness to help the community that earned him 405 Squadron's Non-Commissioned Member Eagle of the Year Award for 2012.

Shakelton has been here with his family for two years, on an RAF exchange. The 22-year RAF acoustics operator has a busy and successful professional 2012, taking part in three multi-national anti-submarine warfare exercises and a joint services northern operation, in which he achieved the top category as an ASO and was appointed lead AES. At 405, he was a flight safety team member and squadron sports officer, including the squadron curling team manager.

The other contributions Shakelton has made, he prefers to keep "low-key," but they stand out just as much. He organized a crew march in August, the Eagle Charity March, 56 kilometres to Lake Pleasant from Greenwood, raising funds for the Soldier On Program and the Children's Wish Foundation. He also led a squadron toy drive at Christmas for children at the IWK Hospital in Halifax, coming up with $750 worth of donations he personally delivered.

And, he's starting 2013 off on a charitable foot already, with an Easter egg jar guessing contest to benefit the Valley Health Foundation's Our Community, Our Health Campaign in aid of hospital improvements and a new hospice. While the prize is chocolate, the goal is to raise what he can for the health campaign.

"The whole squadron supports the community, really," Shakelton says, "directly, or as coaches or leaders there are lots of outside interests among the members, and it all promotes the Air Force in a good light. Wherever you go, the military supports the community."

In Britain, Shakelton was a coach himself of junior cricket and a fitness instructor, and his RAF unit was just as busy in its community lending a hand.

"You see a lot of people doing a good stuff, and the generosity of Canadians is amazing."

404 Squadron hosts 'flight suit formal'

Captain Mary Cameron-Kelly, a 404 Squadron pilot instructor, and Master Corporal Matthew Baer, a 404 Squadron nav cell instructor, show off their bow ties.

Corporal P.Redden

On the evening of March 6, 404 (Long Range Patrol & Training) Squadron held its annual mess dinner, an opportunity for squadron members to take some time away from constant demands as a training institution to enjoy an evening of fellowship and fun.

In order to allow a more relaxed twist to the formal evening, the event was declared a "flight suit formal," allowing members to abandon traditional mess kit and tunics for an updated ensemble: sporting a bow tie with combats or flight suit.

404 Squadron Commanding Officer Lieutenant Colonel Pat Thauberger and Squadron Chief Warrant Officer Ian Smith concluded the evening by highlighting the multitude of accomplishments achieved by 404 Squadron through the past year, and then formally recognizing some of the many outstanding squadron members.

New life being found for old health centre fixtures

Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

Rick Nippard compares the people now working in 14 Wing Greenwood's old health centre to a bunch of "crows," as base branches salvage all kinds of material in advance of the building's demolition this spring.

"The guys are like crows, walking around saying, 'I'll take this, I'll take that,'" Nippard, 14 Wing's engineering officer, says. "All of it will be used for Department of National Defence purposes, or disposed of properly."

The building dates back to the 1940s, and had long outlived its practicality as a health centre for 26 Canadian Forces Health Services. Health services actually combined in January from several 14 Wing locations into a new building, just across the road.

A walk through the old building is telling.

"It's old – you wouldn't really believe there'd been people working there and treating people just a few weeks ago," Nippard says. "It's really weird."

In January, a few minor pieces of equipment were removed by medical and dental crews. Wing supply came in and inventoried left behind desks, cabinets and chairs; many of these pieces can be used in other base buildings. The base locksmith has stripped all the hardware from the doors, great for re-use around 14 Wing's numerous buildings and for parts. Steam, electrical and refrigeration and mechanical crews have also been in to take air handling and conditioning units out, to be reused or decommissioned properly. Lights and switches have also been scavenged, and good plumbing fixtures have been removed.

Joey Long of 14 Wing's Construction Engineering branch stands amid the pickings in the old health centre. Base crews from all branches have been in the old building since January, salvaging equipment, furnishings and fittings that can be used as replacements and parts elsewhere.

"All of it can be repurposed, used for parts or will be accounted for, through DND inventory lists," Nippard says.

A special request from the health services team for the original operating room lights, clinic signage and a few other "heritage" items has been handled, as some of these items will be incorporated into a bit of a mini-museum display in the new centre.

Nippard and base crews have also kept in mind the building's age and environmental issues that have been identified, including asbestos tiles and grout – "all of these materials would have been standard through the years, but when we demolish the building, we have to take extra care in how we do it, dispose of the material and ensure our contractors know what they're involved with."

Lead pipes have all been identified, oil tanks have all been removed and special attention was also paid to a tank in the basement that has collected – for decades – the bits of mercury filings spit into the sink by dental patients.

"Gross," Nippard says, but handled.

The demolition tender should be out in the next few weeks, and Nippard expects a contractor will have the job done by the end of April or May.

"Once they're in, they can salvage as they go, take everything off site and either sell it or dispose of it; then take the building down. We want a clear, empty, landscaped site in the end."

Corrections

In an article in the March 18 Aurora Newspaper, Jessie Wright was referred to as an employee of the Flight Line Café; she is not. She is an active supporter of Boomer's Legacy charity events.

Also in the March 18 issue, the C&E bonspiel article was incorrectly identified as the Atlantic Regional Construction and Engineering Bonspiel. This should have been spelled out as the Communications & Electronics Bonspiel.

The Aurora apologizes for the errors.

Construction Engineering electrician Wayne Hodder works on removing the old health clinic's original operating room lights, destined for the new centre's heritage display.

Old, open space chance to check out emergency skills

Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

If this was real, it would need to be correct.

And safe.

14 Wing Greenwood Fire and Emergency Services crews have been working on those goals in training exercises this month, making use of the abandoned rooms, hallways and fixtures of the former health clinic.

Fire Chief Captain Bruce Paradis gets set to pull the alarm.
S.Keddy

Fire crews train regularly in their smoke house and burn tower, and practice skills for crash rescue, confined spaces and hazardous materials. There are running cards on file at the station detailing every building's specifications and, while firefighters can access base buildings for actual training in spaces they may be called to during an emergency, "we have to move gingerly," says Fire Chief Captain Bruce Paradis.

"It's an occupied workspace. While part of our training is property preservation and protecting any evidence at a fire scene, with this building, we can do more, different things."

26 Canadian Forces Health Services has been out of their 60-year-old home since January, and fire crews have been in and out a number of times, squeezing in work with self-contained breathing apparatus, room searches, smoke and black-out drills, collapsed ceiling scenarios and — yes — breaking a few deadbolts and poking a few holes with their pikes and axes in the walls and roof to follow the same paths fire might as it spreads.

"We've been really getting them going," said Paradis, as he set a scene March 12 involving two downed victims in the darkened corridors and backrooms that needed to be rescued. After he notified the base's Military Police and Wing Operations, he pulled the alarm.

"The crew that's on, they don't know this is coming. When they get here, I'll tell them where the fire is, and they go in."

Red Crew was on call for this exercise, arriving at the old building's main entrance within minutes. A walk around, and then set-up and suiting up, and the lead three firefighters were in, working their way down the hallway, checking doors, hauling hose and checking in constantly with each other and firefighters outside with the truck.

Master Warrant Officer Les Blackmore followed the lead trio down the halls, describing the fire, smoke and scene he and Paradis were envisioning.

"I have a mental picture, and it's a matter of them thinking along the same lines," Blackmore said.

To the firefighters: "Speed — a quick check, move on. If you think there is a the possibility — and there always is — of there being a casualty, you've got to get them out fast. Watch that hallway and advance. Speed!"

The firefighters worked with one man on the hose, covering the other two as they went ahead checking the old offices along the corridors.

"As long as you're in sight of your nozzle, he's got protection on you," Blackmore reminded them "If you miss a room and this is where the fire is, what's happened? You've got fire behind you, tulle #1 for firefighters to not let happen."

The crew did find and remove two casualties — "Metal Man" and "Hose Head," but even just this half-hour long exercise left them winded and sweating. In full gear, with charged hoses in tow — imagine what all of this would be like if the scene were real.

Paradis and Blackmore were interested to see how the crew responded to the exercise, but were also cautious.

Corporal Shawn MacKenzie is all in after an afternoon exercise hauling hose and searching through the old health clinic.

Master Warrant Officer Les Blackmore gives some tips on extension checks, before firefighters tear into the walls.

"The problem with doing an exercise is everyone has a tendency to over think things," Paradis said. "Sometimes they read too much into it." In the end, though, as Blackmore said, "it's all about making good people better."

WK rink working on fundraising goal

After a great start to its fundraising campaign, the Western Kings Arena in Kingston is closer to its goal.

The association has already banked close to $35,000 towards the phase two portion of required upgrades to the rink's concrete floor, coolant piping, boards, glass and netting. At the February fundraising dinner hosted by the Western Kings Arena Association and the Friends of the Villages, over $22,000 was raised alone. The arena board plans to have at least $60,000 of its goal in the bank by May 31.

Upcoming fundraisers include the annual May golf tournament and live auction, a ticket auction, a large item ticket lotto and a potential mega 50/ 50. An on-going effort to sell granite stones for a fundraising wall at the rink and a letter campaign to businesses and the wider community is also being successfully received.

The Valley Credit Union has set up an account in support of the cause.

If anyone would like to donate or help out, contact Wayne Fowler, president, Western Kings Arena Association, 765-6557.

Wolverines make meal a success

February 26, the West Kings District High School football Wolverines hosted a roast beef dinner at the Aylesford Lions' hall. What a great team effort this event proved to be!

Thank you to all Aylesford Lions for the use of their hall, and their valuable time and skill in preparing the wonderful meal. The evening would not have been a success without our many local businesses' sponsorship of the food. Five members from the Greenwood Scotiabank branch helped out and matched funds raised, and thanks to Mike and Judy Upward, Western Minor Valley Football and Kings West MLA Leo Glavine. The Wolverines Booster Club (specifically Norma Nichols) put in many hours planning this event: it wouldn't have been possible without the club. Thank you to all the players and parents alike that came out to help prepare the food, set up, serve the food and the cleanup.

Fundraising efforts from this event saw over $10,000 raised for the WKHS Wolverines' program. This would not have been possible without the support from the local community, which came out for the dinner.

The WKHS Wolverines football program has reached its goal of fundraising $20,000. Gear is in the process of being ordered, coaching staff is in place and players can't wait to get on the field. The first game is already scheduled for this September.

Sara Keddy,
rédactrice en chef

Le 27 mars, vous êtes conviés à un salon de l'éducation et de l'emploi qui se tiendra au mess Annapolis de la 14<sup>e</sup> Escadre Greenwood.

Le 12<sup>e</sup> Salon annuel de l'éducation et de l'emploi est ouvert au personnel de la 14<sup>e</sup> Escadre et au grand public de la région. Si vous êtes curieux de programmes postsecondaires, d'éducation à distance, d'idées et de points de départ pour une seconde carrière, ce salon est pour vous.

« Nous attendons plus de 20 universités et collèges de partout au Canada, y compris des Prairies et de la Colombie-Britannique », souligne Couture. « Quant aux entreprises, on leur a demandé au moment de s'inscrire si elles prévoyaient embaucher dans les six prochains mois; c'était une exigence pour leur participation. »

Elle conseille aux visiteurs d'apporter leur curriculum vitae, puisque plus d'une douzaine d'employeurs locaux et nationaux ont confirmé leur présence, y compris les services de recrutement des Forces canadiennes. En outre, vous pourrez faire évaluer votre C.V. au populaire atelier « café C.V. », où des conseillers en orientation chevronnés vous aideront à améliorer votre biographie et votre présentation.

« Plus de 300 personnes assistent ordinairement au Salon », ajoute Couture, « et le mess sera rempli à craquer. Les gens seront libres d'aller et venir, et auront amplement de temps pour faire connaissance avec les exposants et leur poser des questions.

Couture encourage les membres militaires et leurs conjoints, les étudiants des niveaux secondaire et universitaire et le grand public à passer au Salon durant l'après-midi, entre 13 h et 16 h. L'entrée est gratuite et il est facile de stationner au mess. Pour en savoir plus, composer le 765-1494, poste 5611.

Life choices on display at employment, education fair

Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

All things education and employment will be on display March 27 at the Annapolis Mess, 14 Wing Greenwood.

"It's a once-stop shop," says one of the event's organizers, Caroline Couture, of the 14 Wing Learning and Career Centre.

The 12th annual Education & Employment Fair is open to 14 Wing personnel and the wider community. If you're looking for post-secondary programming, distance education, ideas and starting points for a second career, this is the place to be.

"We have over 20 universities and colleges from across Canada, including the Prairies and British Columbia, coming," says Couture. "The businesses – when they register, we ask them if they intend to be hiring within the next six months. That's a requirement of their participation."

She advises visitors to bring their resume: there are over a dozen local and national employers, including Canadian Armed Forces recruiting services, registered to attend. As well, you can have your credentials reviewed in the popular "resume café," where skilled employment counselors will be available to help you tweak your biography and presentation.

"Over 300 people usually attend the fair," Couture says, "and the whole Mess will be filled. People are welcome to come and go, and there's lots of time to meet with the exhibitors and ask questions."

Couture encourages military members and spouses, high school and university students and the general public to take in the afternoon, between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. Admission is free, and parking is available at the Mess. For information, contact 765-1494 local 5611.

14 Wing Library | Serving those who read!

Judy McCool
& Joanne Sealby,
14 Wing Library

April 21 to the 27 is National Volunteer Week in Canada, a time when we can show our appreciation for the many volunteers active in our community. We would like to extend our thanks and appreciation to those ladies who tirelessly volunteer their time to help in our library.

The next time you are in, you may see Beth, Ally, Jessie, Kay or Liz working quietly behind the scenes to keep our many books shelved and organized. Miss Somer works her magic with the children during “Under The Story Tree” every Tuesday. Each volunteer accomplishes many other tasks every week, and we want to take this opportunity to say a huge thank you for all they do.

We will be selling the books in our book sale room for $5 a bag through April. There is a huge selection of hardcover fiction books, as well as non-fiction and many videos as well. This is your opportunity to get some bargain books as well as support your library. All funds will go towards the purchase of new books.

We have several new titles we’d like to highlight for April. If you are a fan of Michael Palmer, we have his newest title, “Political Suicide.” In this novel, Palmer once again proves he is the king of suspense in this page-turning thriller set at the crossroads of politics, the military and medical science. Also, we have Lisa Gardner’s “Touch & Go,” which exposes the raw nerves of a family imploding, and an investigator trying to escape her past.... Gardner does an amazing job of creating realistic situations and characters with emotional resonance. The constant surprises will shock even the most jaded thriller reader. Jayne Ann Krentz has a new novel in the Dark Legacy Series, “Dream Eyes.” With walk-off-the-page characters, crackling sexual tension, swift pacing and the author’s trademark sassy humor, this wonderfully inventive, high-stakes adventure will whet fans’ appetites for more.

As you may know, April 22 is Earth Day. In recognition of the efforts to “reduce and re-use,” why not consider donating some of your gently used books to the library? We accept donations and will re-use by giving others the opportunity to read that great book you so enjoyed.

Reading opens doors, so come and open the doors to 14 Wing Library!

La bibliothèque de la 14<sup>e</sup> Escadre | Au service des lecteurs!

Judy McCool et
Joanne Sealby,
Bibliothèque de la
14<sup>e</sup> Escadre

Du 21 au 27 avril prochains, la Semaine nationale de l’action bénévole nous permet de témoigner notre reconnaissance aux nombreuses personnes qui font des actions bénévoles dans notre collectivité. Ainsi, nous tenons à remercier du fond du cœur ces dames qui offrent bénévolement leur temps pour notre bibliothèque. À votre prochaine visite, vous pourrez voir Beth, Ally, Jessie, Kay ou Liz travaillant sans bruit entre les rayonnages pour garder les livres en ordre sur les étagères. Tous les mardis, Miss Somer fait des merveilles avec les enfants avec son activité de conte. Chaque bénévole s’acquitte de maintes autres tâches durant la semaine, et nous voulons profiter de l’occasion pour leur présenter nos plus sincères remerciements.

Tout le mois d’avril, nous allons avoir une vente de livres à 5 dollars le sac. Ces sacs contiennent une vaste sélection de livres de fiction reliés, ainsi que divers ouvrages généraux et des vidéos. Voilà une belle occasion d’acquérir des livres à prix modique, tout en soutenant votre bibliothèque. Toutes les recettes de la vente iront à l’achat de nouveaux livres.

Nous avons reçu plusieurs nouveaux titres sur lesquels nous aimerions attirer votre attention pour avril. Si vous êtes des mordus des romans de Michael Palmer, nous avons reçu le plus récent, Political Suicide. Palmer prouve à nouveau sa maîtrise du suspense dans ce roman d’action palpitant sis au carrefour de la politique, de la stratégie militaire et de la science médicale. Nous vous suggérons aussi le roman Touch & Go, de Lisa Gardner, qui met en scène les souffrances liées à l’implosion d’une famille, et une enquêteuse qui essaie d’oublier son passé. Gardner a cette faculté extraordinaire de créer des situations réalistes et des personnages émouvants. Les retournements continuels garderont en haleine même les lecteurs de thrillers les plus avertis. Aussi, Jayne Ann Krentz vient de publier le roman Dream Eyes, un nouveau volet de sa série Dark Legacy. Avec ses personnages saisissants de vérité, sa tension sexuelle, son rythme haletant et l’humour insolent qui la distingue, Krentz entraîne le lecteur dans des péripéties brillamment imaginées aux enjeux imprévisibles. On en redemande!

Comme vous le savez peut-être, le 22 avril a été désigné Journée de la Terre. Pour appuyer nos efforts de réduction et de réutilisation, pourquoi ne pas envisager de faire don à la bibliothèque de vos livres encore en bon état? Nous acceptons tous les dons et les réutiliserons, donnant ainsi à d’autres la chance de lire ces livres que vous avez pris plaisir à lire.

La lecture ouvre des portes : il vous suffit d’ouvrir les portes de la bibliothèque de la 14<sup>e</sup> Escadre!

Evening out for mental health

The Kings County Chapter of the Nova Scotia Schizophrenia Society is hosting a fundraising and awareness event at the Kentville fire hall April 12.

A talented drama therapist named Laura Burke from Halifax will present her one-woman play, Heartwood, an autobiographical play illustrating a young woman's struggles with mental illness. It explores how she begins to heal from its impact through the discovery that giving back to others is exactly how she will recover, and reinstate meaning in her life. She comes to realize the arts are not only the way she can survive her own suffering, but how she can begin to break down the walls between herself and her community. The play is conversational, dramatic and filled with a quirky humour, inviting the audience to experience one person's path towards recovery and beyond.

The evening will also feature the music of Rachel Maclean, a silent and ticket auction and refreshments.

Tickets are $10 each, available in advance at the Evangeline Club in New Minas. The doors open at 6:30 p.m. (along with the ticket and silent auctions), and the performance begins at 7 p.m.

Fun By The Numbers

Level: Beginner

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Avez-vous des suggestions de programmes que le Centre communautaire pourrait offrir ce printemps et cet été?

Le Centre communautaire de la 14<sup>e</sup> Escadre s'affaire à préparer sa programmation printanière et estivale et sollicite vos suggestions.

S'il y a un programme qui ne fait pas partie actuellement de ceux offert et que vous souhaitez qu'il le soit, dites-le nous et nous ferons notre possible pour trouver ce qui correspond à vos besoins. Par ailleurs, si vous êtes un instructeur qualifié et souhaitez faire profiter les autres de vos connaissances en donnant un cours, nous pouvons nous associer afin d'offrir un service. Nous cherchons à offrir à la fois aux jeunes (neuf à 18 ans) et aux adultes (18 ans et plus) de nouveaux programmes intéressants, qui débuteraient aux alentours de la troisième semaine de mai. Si vous avez une suggestion de programme ou si vous souhaitez nous proposer vos compétences d'instructeur, veuillez communiquer avec Eric MacKenzie, coordonnateur des loisirs communautaires, au 765-1494 poste 5337 d'ici le 19 avril prochain.

Do you have ideas for spring, summer community programs?

The 14 Wing Greenwood Community Centre is busy preparing for spring and summer programs and is seeking your input.

If there is a program you would like to see offered currently not available, please let the centre know and we will try to find a service that meets your needs. If you are a qualified instructor interested in sharing your knowledge, please express interest in facilitating a course, so we can possibly partner together.

We are ideally looking at offering new and exciting programs for both youth (nine to 18 years of age) and adults (anyone over 18), to begin around the third week of May. If you have a program idea, or would like to help offer your skills, contact Eric MacKenzie, community recreation coordinator, before April 19, 765-1494 local 5337.
