Vol. 34 No. 35 SEPTEMBER 16, 2013 NO CHARGE www.auroranewspaper.com

Team effort for charity

14 Wing Greenwood's protective services partners are teaming up for their second annual charity car wash and BBQ.

"We go to a lot of calls together, and it's nice to be able to do this together and make a difference for people," says Corporal Steve Bultinck, with the base's Military Police.

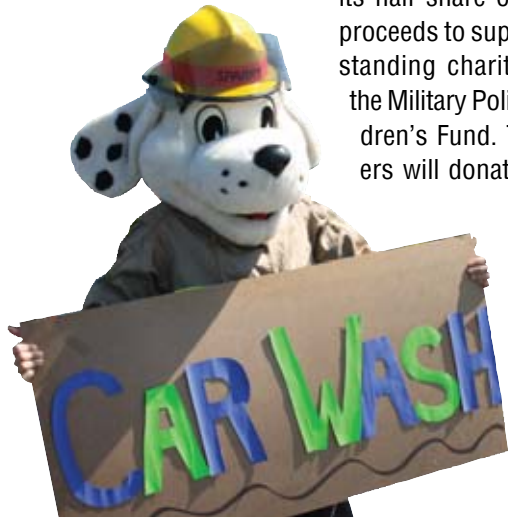

September 27, the Military

Police and 14 Wing Fire and Protective Services will offer a freewill offering car-wash and a set price lunchtime BBQ in the CANEX parking lot, between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

"We have about 20 volunteers from both branches helping out that day, and whatever people want to give for their carwash – it all adds up."

The Military Police will use its half share of the event's proceeds to support its long-standing charity of choice, the Military Police Blind Children's Fund. The firefighters will donate their share to the Fallen Firefighters Fund.

Thanks in a meaningful way

Canadians know they have a whole lot to be thankful for, and who better to thank a veteran than one of 14 Wing Greenwood's serving Royal Canadian Air Force members?

Personnel are invited to join an October 12 Thanksgiving meal with the residents of Camp Hill Veterans' Hospital in Halifax, hosted by the Kingston Legion. Legion members will be cooking a traditional holiday meal for the Camp Hill residents, and 14 Wing members will have the chance to visit, talk and enjoy the event with the residents that afternoon.

The bus leaves the Kingston Legion at 11:30 a.m. for the city, and will return to the Valley for 7 p.m. Wing organizers are hoping up to 45 personnel will join the group. To volunteer, contact Able Seaman Brett Ross, 765-1494 local 3501, before October 9. There will be a quick meeting October 11 with volunteers to go over plans for the trip and afternoon activities.

Life at the edge turns into success story

Soldier's journey with PTSD comes to Greenwood September 24

Lieutenant-Colonel Chris Linford's road to health following a long experience with Post Traumatic Stress Disorder is a personal and inspirational story.

He recounts his experiences in his book, Warrior Rising - A Soldier's Journey to PTSD and Back. Linford deployed to Rwanda in 1994 and became quite ill almost 10 years later. He went on to stay and work within Canadian Forces Health Services as a nurse and then a health services operations officer and commanded 1 Field Ambulance in Edmonton, as well as the NATO Role 3 Hospital in Kandahar from 2009 to 2010. He became very ill again. Traumas that impacted him dramatically lead him to what he describes as the very edge of his personal and professional competence. All this significantly impacted his family life, which further eroded his health.

He was treated at CFB Esquimalt and has since become involved in peer counselling and ongoing support to veterans who need assistance. His ability to sustain his relationships has vastly improved and his connection with his family has never been better. Over the past two years, he has achieved the best health he has experienced in almost 20 years.

He and his wife, Kathryn, jointly present their experience as a family of five dealing with his PTSD over the past 19 years.

"I have discovered the power and importance of being honest and frank with this injury, and I now speak to others who are suffering and have not yet discovered what to do about it."

Linford will speak at the Annapolis Mess September 24, 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., presented by the Greenwood Military Family Resource Centre. The event is free and open to the community. A book signing will follow.

In "Warrior Rising," Lieutenant-Colonel Chris Linford describes life with and recovering from Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. Submitted

Aux prises avec le trouble de stress post-traumatique : un bel exemple de courage

Greenwood accueille le 24 septembre le récit du soldat atteint du TSPT

L'histoire du lieutenant-colonel Chris Linford, qui se remet d'un trouble de stress post-traumatique, est une histoire personnelle et inspirante.

L'auteur raconte son expérience dans son livre « Warrior Rising - A Soldier's Journey to PTSD and Back ». Déployé au Rwanda en 1994, Linford tombe malade environ dix ans plus tard. Il travaille ensuite dans les Services de santé des Forces canadiennes comme infirmier, puis comme officier des Opérations des Services de santé, et dirige la 1^{re} Ambulance de campagne, basée à Edmonton, ainsi que l'hôpital de rôle 3 de l'OTAN à Kandahar, de 2009 à 2010. Il est très malade à nouveau. Les troubles dont il souffre l'amènent inexorablement à ce qu'il décrit comme la limite extrême de ses aptitudes personnelles et professionnelles. Tout cela a une incidence considérable sur sa vie familiale, ce qui altère encore davantage sa santé.

Il est traité à la BFC Esquimalt et participe depuis aux programmes d'entraide par les pairs et de soutien continu aux anciens combattants ayant besoin d'aide. Sa capacité à maintenir ses relations s'est considérablement améliorée et ses liens avec sa famille liens n'ont jamais été aussi étroits. Au cours des deux dernières années, il a atteint son meilleur état de santé depuis près de 20 ans.

Sa femme, Kathryn, et lui présentent ensemble leur expérience en tant que famille de cinq personnes aux prises avec son TSPT au cours des 19 dernières années.

« Grâce à mon TSPT, j'ai découvert le pouvoir et l'importance d'être honnête et franc, et je parle maintenant à d'autres personnes qui en souffrent et qui ne savent pas quoi faire ».

Linford parlera de son expérience lors d'une conférence au mess Annapolis le 24 septembre de 14 h à 16 h, présentée par le Centre de ressources pour les familles des militaires de Greenwood. L'événement est gratuit et ouvert au public. Une dédicace de livre suivra.

Greenwood milestone on Typhoon pilots' tour

Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

14 Wing Greenwood air crews rolled out the red carpet for two veteran Canadian wartime pilots

September 9.
As Lieutenant-Colonel Scott Murphy, commanding officer of 413 (Transport and Rescue) Squadron, greeted Harry Hardy, Vancouver, and Wally Ward, Mississauga, he described the honour he felt meeting them.

"I remember my squadron history," said the former 440 Squadron member, the same squadron both visitors flew with 70 years before, during the Second World War.

Murphy and Major Bernie Thorne, commanding officer of Maritime Proving and Evaluation Unit, gave the men an opening briefing on what today's Royal Canadian Air Force does out of 14 Wing Greenwood. They then turned over 413's hangar and airfield, where an Aurora, Hercules and Cormorant were staffed for inspection by Hardy and Ward. A morning coffee break was also open to the squadrons' personnel to visit with the men.

"It is an honour to share our story with you, and an honour to have you here," Murphy said.

Ward and Hardy are part of a diminishing group of Typhoon pilots, which has met several times a year since 1992 to "tell the same stories," Ward says.

"We all also liked the same kind of beer!"

There are about 23 members of the group from across Canada: three were supposed to make the visit to 14 Wing, but one withdrew due to his health.

"We decided that we'd go on a tour of all the military museums in Canada, and Greenwood's is the last one for us," Hardy said. "Next year, we're going to France for the 70th anniversary of Dieppe, and that will be it."

Hardy describes the Typhoon as an airplane that did most of its work for the army during the war.

"We were right on the army's tail, bombing and strafing. The strips were ready for us in France June 12, and we operated off the beachhead from them. I flew one for eight months from D-Day, and, from there, it didn't take long."

Ward added soldiers would "whistle for a Tiffie," and we'd be there. It was a very powerful plane, a flying tank, with two 1,000-pound bombs, four cannons and eight rockets.

"The danger wasn't with other aircraft – it was the buggers on the ground shooting up at us. We lost a lot – my squadron, over half didn't make it out of Europe."

Hardy joked later in the day at the Greenwood Military Aviation Museum, as a copy of his autobiography was presented to Wing Heritage Officer Major Bob Johnson, that it was "all about how I won the war, fellows."

Ward shared a story of how he and another pilot, Johnny Lippert, were asked to take two Typhoons up after coming out of maintenance.

"July 29, 1944 was a beautiful day, we were up to 10,000 feet and I noticed Johnny was lagging – he was normally tucked right under my wing. He looked slumped over in his seat, and that was odd: flying straight ahead, losing altitude. I flew over and under him – not a mark on the plane, and that was the last time I saw Johnny Lippert."

Years later, in Ottawa for his 60th wedding anniversary, Ward visited the Canadian War Museum and looked up Lippert's name.

"There he was, 'shot down by enemy aircraft.' I thought it wasn't possible, and I didn't know what to do."

His own theory: Lippert's plane's oxygen wasn't connected properly coming out of the shop, and, as he descended, the plane became a target for enemy fire, giving rise to the story Lippert was shot down.

"I'll never know, but that's my theory."

Harry Hardy, born in Verden, Manitoba; joined the Royal Canadian Air Force and flew Tiger Moths, Cranes, Lysanders, Bolingbromes, Hurricanes, Kittyhawks and Harvards. Posted to England in 1943, he flew Spitfires: in a mid-air collision, he was left with only his seat! He then transitioned to Typhoons and was posted to 440 Squadron, operating from Cruelly, France. He flew during the Battle of the Bulge, in which eight Typhoons were shot down. He was the only surviving pilot. Hardy's aircraft was "Pulverizer." Hardy had 96 sorties and was awarded the DFC and CD.

Wally Ward was flying P 40 Kittyhawks off Annette Island, Alaska with 118 Squadron in 1943, when there was a fear of Japanese subs attacking the west coast of North America. In 1944, Ward was sent to England to join 440 Squadron, which soon left for Normandy B9 Cruelly airfield. Ward flew during the D Day invasion. He demobbed in 1945 as a flight lieutenant.

Life for family, country and the RCAF

Lieutenant (Navy)
Dwight W. Houser,
Deputy commanding officer and CFRC Atlantic Detachment Halifax
commander

William (Bill, Slim) Michael Houser, CD, Colonel (retired), RCAF: pilot, commanding officer 405 Squadron – RCAF Station Greenwood, base commander CFB Edmonton, deputy chief of staff Operations Maritime Command, husband, father, grandfather.

There was a time when the Royal Canadian Air Force was mighty, and a great bird of prey stood guard over all directions of land and sea leading to Canada. The CP-107 Argus (giant with a hundred eyes) was power personified. Often flying low over Greenwood and Summerside, where we lived in the 1960s, it helped to feel the vibration hitting you in your chest, while walking to school, to understand that. Through 20 years of long range sovereignty patrols, Ocean Safaris, Carib Ops, search and rescue, Cuban Missile Crisis and others, the Argus guarded the enemy at the gates.

Our dad, Bill Houser, was one of its pilots.

If anyone regretted the end of the Second World War, it might have been Bill. He wanted to fly Spitfires. Born January 22, 1928, he fell in love with flying at a young age. He was raised in Woodstock, Ontario, spaced by a failed family attempt at grain farming in Saskatchewan during the Great Depression. Back on the family farm in Ontario, Dad passed as an average student while gaining his pilot's licence, more or less at the same time he learned to drive in his early teens - all financed by a bicycle delivery job with a local store. As the war raged, Bill dreamt of the RCAF, while his father planned for him to take on the family construction business. The war ended while Bill was still in high school.

Finally, in 1948, the first class of RCAF pilots after the war was recruited. After defying the odds of a rigorous and draconian selection process, he was in, at the ripe age of 19. His early career involved a multitude of aircraft types: Canso, P-51, B-25, Meteor, T-33, Harvard as an instructor, Hawker Hunter, Jet Provost. Bill used say he could "fly the crates they came in."

While an instructor in RCAF Trenton, he met the face of RCAF recruiting posters for women in the early 1950s, Leading Air Woman Lorraine King of Yarmouth, and they married in 1954. Soon after, Mum and Dad were posted to the U.K. at RAF Little Rissington. Their two years in England were highlighted by Lorraine's invitation to a garden party with the Queen, but she could not go, being too pregnant with their first son, Dwight.

Bill distinguished himself by writing an evaluation that may have contributed to preventing the Jet Provost from being bought by the RCAF, resulting in the development of the Tutor jet trainer. He also wrote off a Hawker Hunter after a brake failure caused it to run out of runway. It was a good thing there were no ejection seats in those days, as Bill was 6'7".

Back in Canada in 1956, Dad was instructing on Harvard and T-33 Silver Star in RCAF Trenton. Second son Derek (Mike) arrived early in 1958. The advent of the ejection deployed with 415 Squadron (although it was just standing up and barely operational) for six weeks during the Cuban Missile crisis, in the fall of 1962. Later, the entire 415 Squadron (8 Argus) would overfly Greenwood from Summerside on Bill's suggestion as a demonstration of operational readiness.

Our first transition to the "outside" came in 1963, when Dad was sent to staff school in Toronto. Then it was on to Air Requirements in Ottawa. Our family grew again in that posting, when our cousin, Charleen, came to live with us. Then, back to Greenwood in 1966, where Dad took command of 405 Squadron. A year earlier, an Argus had been lost in the Caribbean with an entire crew of someone's fathers, husbands or friends, and the base was still reeling. Bill's command of 405 Squadron, and earlier days with the Argus, seem today like his glory days. The years that followed involved staff appointments as deputy chief of staff operations Maritime Command in Halifax (twice) and base commander of CFB Edmonton - plus a year on a second language course in Ottawa. While base commander, Dad believed his aspirations for promotion to brigadier general came to an end as a result of controversy revolving around the Martin Hartwell Search and Rescue operation in 1972. By 1978, faced with a posting to Belgium he could not accept, he retired with 30 years of service. He had a year of Reserve service after this but, by this time, the work focus shifted to building his and Lorraine's own business.

Opportunity knocked when a property in Black Point, Nova Scotia, became available. From this, Puddle Bay Antiques was born, a business Bill and Lorraine would operate for the next 25 years. During those years, dad built houses for friends, buildings for himself, looked after grandkids and dabbled in homebuilt aircraft, producing a radical amphibian design (the Wooduck) he never had a chance to build. The leading edges of dementia started to show in Lorraine about four years ago, and Bill poured his energy into her care. By 2012, it was too much and Lorraine went to long term care. Not long after, dementia caught up with Bill, and he joined Lorraine in April 2013.

Bill Houser passed away in his sleep September 4 in his 86th year, and after 59 years of marriage - to the day. He steadfastly would have refused any attempt at obituary writing; this is not intended to sound like a normal one. He loved his family, country and the Royal Canadian Air Force and would likely have been happy to have been mentioned in the same company as the tens of thousands of others who came before him, were with him and will come after him - and felt the same. At an appropriate time, an informal gathering of family and friends will observe the internment of his remains at the Beechwood Canadian National Military Cemetery in Ottawa. Donations are encouraged to the national Alzheimer's Society.

Fall into fitness with new F&S class schedule

Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

Fall is a good time to get back into routine, and finding time for fitness is easy with a new schedule of classes being offered at the 14 Wing Greenwood Fitness & Sports Centre.

There are a number of new offerings, all free to people who hold a 14 Wing Greenwood Community Recreation Pass (available at various membership prices and packages from the 14 Wing Greenwood Community Centre, Church Street). Things kick off with a Thursday pilates class with instructor Jennine Prochera-Best, beginning September 19 and running weekly, noon to 1 p.m.

September 20, Debbie Turpie is back with noon hour yoga, a popular class from last year's weekly free offerings.

Around the corner in October, the full slate of classes roll out: October 1, join F&S Centre staffer Eric Plante for a weekly stability ball class, noon to 1 p.m. Plante will also lead indoor spin cycling classes Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, noon to 12:45 p.m., underway from October 2. There are two more free indoor cycling classes to come in October as well: Tuesdays, 6 p.m. to 7 p.m., and Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.

There are also a number of additional classes on the schedule, available at an extra participation fee: Turpie will offer a second yoga class Tuesdays, 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. There are three pool classes: Mondays, from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., you may register for aquajogging; and aquafitness will be offered Wednesdays at the same time. Morning aquacise classes are now underway Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, 8:45 a.m. to 9:45 a.m.

All program information is available at www.cfcommunitygateway.com. Class participants are reminded to show their rec cards at the F&S Centre front desk as they arrive, and indicate they are there for the scheduled classes.

Thanks to all!

Jill Jackson, Wing Welcome co-chair

September's Wing Welcome, "Discover Your Adventure," was just that - an adventure.

There were several days of great events, great volunteers and great sponsors from September 5 through 10. I am sure all would agree it was a fantastic time, showcasing all of what 14 Wing Greenwood and the wider community has to offer. Thanks to all for coming out to the scheduled events.

Thanks to all of our many volunteers who worked so hard to make this year's Wing Welcome such a great success, and special for everyone. All our volunteers took time from their own busy schedules to give back to the event.

Much appreciation and thanks is also extended to all of our sponsors and businesses which donated items and financial contributions, gave prizes and showcased displays at Wing Welcome. Without their support, we could not host events such as this.

Finally, a big thank you to the Wing Welcome 2013

Committee, which worked very hard for several months to make the event a success - and it showed in commit-

Wheels success

Lindsay McCormack, Recreation Youth Worker

This year's Wing Welcome skateboard and BMX competition September 7 was a great success at the 14 Wing Greenwood Community Centre skatepark.

Between the beginner, intermediate, advanced, 19-plus and BMXers, 16 competitors showed off their awesome skills. Congratulations to all of the winners.

Thank you to all of the individuals who helped with getting things ready, taking things down and keeping things running as smoothly as possible during the event. Thanks to Theo Saunders, Mitchell Carey and Evan Banks for playing the parts of event DJ and MC, and to Evan for providing the prizes. Thanks to all the spectators, and to those who competed.

Fun By The Numbers Level: Beginner

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Sept 15 - Sept 21

ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20
Aries, the week ahead is looking pretty good, as you will find people are more sensitive to your needs. Work with those willing to work with you.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21
Taurus, your visions of how things should be might differ from how things really are. Work toward improving those things that need some work, and things will turn out just fine.

GEMINI - May 22/Jun 21
Some surprises come your way this week, Gemini. But things will soon begin to fall into place. Just be patient before you make important decisions.

CANCER - Jun 22/Jul 22
Things may seem a bit strained this week, Cancer. But all it takes is a little cooperation and an increased focus on teamwork, and things will quickly return to normal.

LEO - Jul 23/Aug 23
Leo, stay prepared and well organized and this week should fly by without a hitch. Feel free to try some things that go against the grain.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Virgo, don't feel badly about the things over which you have little control. Go out and have a good time this week, and eventually things will run their course.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Libra, it may prove challenging to sit still the next few days. People may be pulling at you from many different directions, and you will not know which way to lean.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Scorpio, try not to be overly protective of your secrets this week. A friend or family member is offering their help and guidance, and such insight will prove invaluable.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Sagittarius, a seemingly insurmountable obstacle presents itself this week. Some creativity and quick thinking will be necessary, but you will enjoy the challenge.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Keep your feet on the ground this week, Capricorn. Even if you prefer to have your head in the clouds, keeping your cool will pay dividends in the long run.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Aquarius, enjoy some quiet time so you can regroup after a hectic couple of weeks. You earned some rest and relaxation, and this time away will recharge your batteries.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20
Pisces, you have a lot of good ideas, and it's time to share those ideas at the office. Your star will soon start to rise.

donors are welcome. Canadian Blood Services is aiming to collect 130 units in Greenwood each day: in order to collect do that, 220 donors must book an appointment. DND was Canadian Blood Services’ first national Partner for Life, and 14 Wing has set a goal of 100 registered donors in 2013. All DND and defence team members are encouraged to complete a member registration form: once you do, CBS will track how many times you have donated on behalf of 14 Wing, and what percentage of the base’s collective goal has been achieved. For further information, call Eric MacKenzie at 765-1494 local 5337.

Ride to remember

Over 100 bikers joined a ceremonial run from Digby to Hebron, part of the annual Digby Wharf Rat Rally. Attention for the event surprised and moved many involved, as people lined the route with flags, signs and vocal support.

Darren Williams, 2 CAV Fortress Europe

With the Wharf Rat Rally in full swing, the morning of August 31 started wet and rainy, deterring many riders from participating in the planned ride to the Maple Groove Education Centre in Hebron to visit the community Afghanistan Memorial erected by Yarmouth memorial club youth.

Still, 112 bikers showed up, and the group departed Digby at precisely 9:30 a.m., led by an RCMP motorcycle, road captain and ride coordinator Darren “Willy” Williams, national Canadian Army Veterans president Paul “Trapper” Cane, members of the Canadian Army Veterans, ride participants and 74th Crusaders members acting as the sweepers.

As soon as the group reached Highway 101, the rain stopped and the clouds started to thin. The route extended to exit 28, where riders followed the French Shore Highway 1 route. Almost immediately, riders were astounded to see local residents lining the route, waving Canadian flags and cheering. There was not likely a dry eye among riders when we passed a retirement home which had all its residents out as the convoy passed, or the vet who had to be in his 90s wearing his maroon beret, waving a Canada flag in one hand and saluting with the other.

In Hebron, riders were thrilled to see the memorial club kids lining the drive into the school holding Canadian and Nova Scotia flags (each Nova Scotia flag had the name of one of the province’s 14 Afghan fallen embroidered onto it). All were greeted by a crowd made up of Silver Cross families, MLAs, media and local residents - well over 250 people in attendance. A donation pail in front of the monument raised close to $500 for the memorial club for its monument upkeep fund.

The dedication started almost to the moment the sun actually broke out, and what followed was a very moving ceremony with singing of the national anthem, speeches from local MLAs, the memorial club advisor, Joe Bishira; CAV president Trapper and a very moving speech by one of the Silver Cross mothers. After the speeches, Trapper gave out some appreciation and dedication plaques to memorial club representatives.

After the ceremony, riders and guests were cut loose to make their own way back to Digby or to take in the sights around the Yarmouth area, where many of the local businesses were offering discounts to riders. All in all, a very successful and emotional day.

Toastmasters ready to talk to newcomers

Edward Wedler, Annapolis Valley Toastmasters

Edie Murray, Christine Fernie and Edward Wedler hosted the Annapolis Valley Toastmasters Club’s booth at this year’s 14 Wing Greenwood Wing Welcome in Greenwood September 7. Wing Welcome draws hundreds of new base personnel and their families to a fair that showcases clubs, organizations and businesses in the surrounding area.

The club handed out many welcome packages to interested prospects, including a Toastmaster magazine, the club’s newsletter, a pamphlet explaining Toastmasters, a membership application and a business-card sized personal invitation to attend a meeting. Members also had the chance to discuss cross-club activities with others, including the Greenwood Camera Club about a joint meeting, where both visual communication and verbal communication could be explored. They also talked with an excited owner of a local coffee shop about hosting a regular soapbox-style evening, where members of the community could have their voice heard on any topic of interest, whether it be social, political, poetic, oratorical or lyrical; entertaining, informative, motivational or inspirational. An offer was made to some groups to have Toastmasters deliver speeches of interest their members.

It is exhilarating when people get excited about Toastmasters’ communication and leadership programs to help improve people public speaking skills. It is no accident Toastmasters is “where leaders are made.” Annapolis Valley Toastmasters meet Tuesdays, 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m., at the Birchall Training Centre at 14 Wing Greenwood. Guests and visitors are always welcome to attend an evening of fun and education. Visit the club’s website at 8104.toastmastersclubs.org.

Club president Edie Murray explains Toastmasters.
