Benvenuti! Greenwood welcomes back Op MOBILE personnel

By Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

With a "104 taxing to 41 spot" call from the pilot, the first of 14 Wing Greenwood's CP-140 Auroras returned home from Italy November 2 after almost six months' deployment.

The air and maritime components of the larger Canadian Operation MOBILE, part of the six-nation Operation UNIFIED PROTECTOR enforcing air space restrictions over Libya and an arms embargo off that country's coast, along with surveillance and strike co-ordination missions; wrapped up operations on October 31.

The plane, carrying members of 14 Air Maintenance Squadron personnel and 407 Squadron air crew from 19 Wing Comox, landed at Hangar 11 with a small group of wing personnel and families on hand to greet them.

Callum Detcheverry, four, was waiting for his dad, Corporal Todd Detcheverry.

"He's been gone a week!" he said, as mom Kerri rolled her eyes behind him. "No, it was 20 months!"

In fact, Detcheverry left Greenwood in May. Kerri and the family's other two children – Carter, 11, and Cailyn, seven – spent the day making a "welcome home" sign, setting aside the chocolate (apparently Dad's favourites) from the week's Halloween haul and arranging for a cake decorated with an Aurora to follow a supper of sweet and sour meatballs (also Dad's favourite).

"It's good

it's done," Kerri said. "Now life can go back to normal. The three kids and the dog have been in my bed since Todd left, and I sneak out into one of their beds after they're asleep."

'Stretched our capability'

Several more planes were scheduled to arrive at the end of last week, but weather delays in Italy added to the time away from home for some crews. The 12-hour flight and customs on the Canadian side of the Atlantic were just further steps to get through after months of work.

The CP-140s put in 1,400 hours in 181 sorties to collect intelligence and coordinate strikes, on both unarmed and armed reconnaissance flights. The sorties' information supported NATO's planning to counteract Libyan leader Muammar Gaddafi's oppression of his people following uprisings earlier this year. Gaddafi was captured and killed October 20 by Libyan National Liberation Army fighters.

"We did a good job," 14 Wing Commander Colonel Jim Irvine said November 4. "I'm very proud of our people and our force."

The Long Range Patrol unit was called up originally to provide its traditional maritime surveillance coverage; in fact, that ended up being only about 10 per cent of its job on Op MOBILE. Crews flew overland reconnaissance missions, looking for pro-Gaddafi forces, civilian concentrations and tracking the movements of both.

"It was not a traditional mission, but our guys are extremely well-trained, very adaptable and able to capitalize on new roles – and they did it extremely well."

Irvine also stressed the impact the deployment has had on 405 Squadron specifically here at home: with 25 per cent of its members deployed, 25 per cent just back and another 25 per cent preparing for deployment – plus the operational level of service still expected here from the remaining 25 per cent, the "pace of operations" has been a challenge.

"We exceeded all expectations."

'Ottawa stood up and took notice'

Brigadier General Stephan Kummel, Director General Air Force Development, stood with a line of wing and Air Defence representatives as the first plane's occupants came down the stairs. A round of handshakes and "welcome backs" greeted members.

"The privilege is mine," Kummel said about his representation of the Government of Canada.

"You're not the first crew that's come back, but you represent the end of our final deployment."

Kummel said 14 Wing's work "advanced Canada's war-fighting capabilities – and Ottawa stood up and took notice."

"If there's a coming out party for the Long Range Patrol Community, this is it."

For now, Kummel said, "be very proud of the contribution you've made. We've made a difference in the lives of people of another country."

Kummel also acknowledged the families present to welcome home their loved ones.

"We know this is hard. Welcome back, get back together and have a great time. It's home."

A different type of Afghanistan mission

By Captain Nicole Meszaros, Mission Transition Task Force, Operation ATHENA

Since 2002, Canada has played a key role in establishing the conditions for success and security in Afghanistan.

Following the end of Canadian counter-insurgency operations in July, one final rotation of Canadian Forces personnel is honouring that contribution by closing down the combat mission in Kandahar Province as efficiently and professionally as possible, ensuring the successful reconstitution of military assets for subsequent missions.

Due to his extensive army logistics and leadership experience, Brigadier-General Chuck Lamarre was appointed commander of the Mission Transition Task Force (MTTF), the unit responsible for the transition of our personnel and equipment to Canada and to other deployed task forces. The stand-up of the Task Force in November 2010 kicked off many months of training for a team that had to adapt from 10 years of training for counter-insurgency operations to training for the preparation, packing and moving of a decade's worth of stock and equipment.

"From the beginning, it was evident that the Mission Transition Task Force would have to be structured differently. It would have to be capable of managing the intricacies of logistics on a mass scale, be prepared to do operations outside the wire and provide its own force protection," says Lamarre, an Army logistics officer. "We had to ensure our training would prepare the task force to fight if it had to, but it also had to train us to prepare and move materiel, equipment and personnel on a scale that the CF has not undertaken in many years."

The first group of shipping containers loaded with Op ATHENA materiel to return to Canada in July.

Image Corporal P.Drouin

To close Operation ATHENA, the MTTF must not only complete the repatriation of equipment, vehicles, material and personnel, but also the sale and hand-over of all Canadian infrastructure, repatriation of all hard-copy and electronic data, closure of all contracts and the draw-down of our communication infrastructure. The MTTF is also responsible for the transition to Operation ATTENTION, the new training mission in northern Afghanistan. All these undertakings are essential, as the success of this mission will ensure the CF is reconstituted in terms of its vehicles, equipment and materiel so it may pursue other missions.

Even this type of operation has its challenges. Each day, MTTF soldiers deal with problems: airlift limitations, tight timelines, the heat and dust. At the onset of the mission, the task force had more than 2,000 sea containers and 1,000 vehicles to prepare for shipment, an imposing task in an austere environment.

"The members of the MTTF have to be meticulous to ensure all sea cans and vehicles arrive in Canada in an orderly, clean, and environmentally secure state," says Lamarre. "To meet the shipping deadlines and the priorities of commanders in Canada, we are following a specific schedule which will enable training for whatever our next mission will be."

The MTTF is on track to succeed and its senior leadership team expects to have everything out of Kandahar Airfield before Christmas.

"I am very proud of these men and women. They have rolled up their sleeves and undertaken a demanding industrial-like mission that will ensure that our legacy in Kandahar is maintained and enhanced," says Lamarre. "As the MTTF enables the transition of the Canadian Forces to continue its work in Kabul and elsewhere, it is important to remember the many Canadian soldiers before them have worked hard to build the reputation we strive to maintain. Canadians can rest assured that those charged with finishing the job here in Kandahar are doing so in a responsible and professional way that our country can be proud of."

Canadian soldier killed by IED in Afghanistan

Master Corporal Byron Greff of 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was killed in Kabul, Afghanistan, October 29 by a vehicle-borne improvised explosive device.

Greff was in transit aboard an International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) vehicle when the explosion occurred. It also resulted in the deaths of 16 other members of the ISAF.

Greff was serving as a mentor and trainer on Operation ATTENTION, the Canadian Forces' contribution to the NATO training mission in Afghanistan. His role was to advise Afghan National Army trainers who provide recruit training to Afghan soldiers. He was based in Edmonton.

His Excellency the Right Honourable David Johnston, Governor General and Commander-in-Chief of Canada, issued the following message upon being informed of the death of Greff:

"Even though our mission has changed to a non-combat role aimed at advancing security, the rule of law and human rights, Canadian Forces

Master Corporal Byron Greff, 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Image submitted members and Canadian civilians face risks every day in the effort to rebuild Afghanistan.

"Master Corporal Byron Garth Greff was devoted to our new role of providing training and professional development to the Afghan National Security Forces, answering the call to service with great integrity and courage. This sacrifice will not be forgotten."

Un soldat canadien est tué par un IED en Afghanistan

Le Caporal-chef Byron Greff du 3e Bataillon, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, a été tué à Kaboul (Afghanistan) le 29 octobre dernier par un engin explosif improvisé placé dans un véhicule.

Greff était en transit à bord d'un véhicule de la Force internationale d'assistance à la sécurité (FIAS) lorsque l'explosion a causé la mort de 16 autres membres de la FIAS.

Greff agissait comme mentor et instructeur dans le cadre de l'opération Attention, la contribution des Forces canadiennes à la Mission de formation de l'OTAN en Afghanistan (MFO-A). Son rôle consistait à prodiguer des conseils aux formateurs de l'Armée nationale afghane qui instruisent les recrues parmi les soldats afghans. Il était basé à Edmonton.

Son Excellence le très honorable David Johnston, gouverneur général et commandant en chef du Canada, a émis le message suivant en apprenant le décès du Cplc Greff:

« Bien que notre mission ait changé pour un rôle sans combat, visant à renforcer la sécurité, la primauté du droit et le respect des droits de la personne, les membres des Forces canadiennes et nos civils canadiens font face chaque jour à des risques dans le cadre des efforts de reconstruction de l'Afghanistan.

« Le caporal-chef Greff avait à cœur notre nouveau rôle de former les membres des Forces de sécurité nationale afghane et de leur fournir un soutien au perfectionnement professionnel, répondant ainsi à l'appel au service avec tant d'intégrité et de courage. Ce sacrifice ne sera pas oublié. »

Father, son team take on Kandahar

By Master Corporal
Sean Budden

For the first time in more than four years, Warrant Officer Terry Smith Senior and Corporal Terry Smith Junior are calling the same place "home," albeit temporarily.

Smith Junior is posted to 436 Transport Squadron, Trenton, and is currently working with the Tactical Airlift Unit at Kandahar Airfield (KAF) in southern Afghanistan. His father, Smith Senior, is posted to 413 Squadron, Greenwood, and is attached to NATO headquarters, Kandahar.

Smith Senior joined the Armed Forces hoping to become an aircraft technician.

"I was told my math wasn't strong enough, so I chose traffic tech," he says. He eventually advanced to the loadmaster trade on the CC130 legacy fleet.

Smith Junior, wanting to follow in his father's footsteps, approached the forces in 2006.

"The recruiter told me that my math marks weren't good enough for traffic tech, but I could become an aircraft technician," Smith Junior jokes.

Father and son are making the most of the opportunity and, during their off-duty hours, can frequently be found in each other's company, often with a Timmie's coffee in hand.

Burying a First World War Canadian soldier in France

By Captain Dennis Noel, Public affairs officer

Corporal Clinton Lewis from 413 Transport and Rescue Squadron, 14 Wing Greenwood, had the privilege to take part in a burial ceremony of a First World War soldier October 25 at Sailly-lez-Cambrai, France.

Working as a member of the guard, Lewis was part of a Canadian Forces contingent who participated in Private Alexander Johnston's burial.

"After 14 years in the CF, this has been, by far, the greatest honour to be part of this ceremony", said Lewis.

In July 2008, human remains were discovered in Raillencourt Sainte-Orle, France, in an industrial zone. Found with the remains were two collar badges of the 78th Battalion (Winnipeg Grenadiers). The Directorate of History and Heritage was notified in February 2009, and the remains identified through mitochondrial DNA testing as those of Johnston.

Johnston was born in Coatbridge, Scotland August 20, 1885, and moved to Hamilton, Ontario, in his late twenties. He joined the Canadian Expeditionary Force January 5, 1918, and was taken on strength of the 78th Battalion in the field September 4, 1918. Johnston died during the Battle of the Canal du Nord September 29, 1918 at the age of 33, six weeks before the end of the First World War. Ninety-three years after his sacrifice, he has been laid to rest with the honours he deserves in a Commonwealth War Graves Commission cemetery at Cantimpré Canadian Cemetery in Sailly, France.

The Government of Canada, the Department of National Defence and the Canadian Forces are dedicated to honouring those who have made the ultimate sacrifice. Nearly 28,000 members of Canada's Army, Air Force and Navy who died in the First and Second world wars and the Korean War have no known or maintainable grave.

The Last Post Fund: a history of service, dedication

By Éliane Francoeur, Last Post Fund

The national Last Post Fund, established in Montreal, originates from an act of compassion, respect and patriotism.

In December 1908, an unconscious homeless was taken by two policemen to the Montreal General Hospital. Allegedly drunk, he was left in a room to sleep it off. Later on, the head orderly, Arthur Hair, a veteran of the South African War, noticed an envelope sticking out of the man's coat pocket. It contained a certificate of honourable discharge and good conduct issued to Trooper James Daly by the Great Britain War Office. Daly had served for 21 years under the British flag, and this document was his sole possession.

Soldier Daly was not drunk, but suffering from malnutrition and hypothermia. He died two days later at age 53 without regaining consciousness. His unclaimed body was turned over to science before disposal in a paupers' field, as was then customary. Deeply shocked by the Empire's disregard for its veteran, Hair raised money from friends and colleagues to give the soldier a dignified burial. This was the catalyst for the creation of the Last Post Fund (LPF) in 1909.

The early work of the LPF was exclusively supported by private donations. In 1921, it was federally incorporated and began receiving regular financial support from the Canadian government.

Since its humble beginnings, the LPF has ensured no eligible veteran is deprived of a dignified funeral, burial and headstone for lack of financial resources. Its primary mandate is to deliver the funeral and burial program on behalf of Veterans Affairs Canada. Close to 150,000 veterans have received financial assistance under this program.

In addition, the LPF owns and operates the National Field of Honour in Pointe-Claire. Established in 1930, this beautiful military cemetery, the first of its kind in Canada, has become the final resting place for more than 20,000 veterans and their close ones. It is now a National Historic Site, designated by the Government of Canada.

In 1996, the LPF created a program aimed at placing a military headstone on all veterans' unmarked graves, attesting to their service to the country. It is estimated nearly 40,000 Canadian and Allied veterans have been buried anonymously. Mandated by the Department of National Defence, the LPF also provides headstones for eligible members of the Canadian Forces.

"To honour and protect in death seems but a small return to those who have protected their country in life," wrote Hair.

Canadian Silver Cross Mother named

The Royal Canadian Legion has named the National Silver (Memorial) Cross Mother for 2011.

Patricia (Patty) Elaine Braun (pronounced Brown) will serve in that capacity until her successor is named in November of next year.

Braun is originally from Semans, Sask. She lost her son, Corporal David Braun, a member of the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry based out of Shilo, to a suicide bomber in Kandahar, Afghanistan August 22, 2006. She has one daughter and two other sons, and also a granddaughter, the daughter of her deceased son. She will lay a wreath at the National War Memorial November 11 on behalf of all mothers who have lost sons or daughters in the military, para-military or the RCMP in the service of Canada.

Air Force Association recognizes aviation excellence

The Air Force Association of Canada (AFAC), a national not-for-profit aerospace organization, recognized excellence in Canadian military and civilian aviation at its annual awards ceremony, held in Quebec City October 15.

The award winners included Sergeant Joanne Lewis, 14 Air Maintenance Squadron, and 413 Transport and Rescue Squadron, both of 14 Wing Greenwood.

Lewis was presented with the F/L Duncan Marshall Grant Award for the Air Reservist of the Year.

"Sergeant Lewis is employed as the 14 Air Maintenance Squadron chief warrant officer administration assistant, a role she has fulfilled phenomenally," the award citation reads. "Her work ethic, dedication and professionalism are unmatched as demonstrated by receipt of two commanding officer commendations for her outstanding support and devotion ensuring numerous events were conducted flawlessly.

"Sergeant Lewis's commitment to the squadron, wing and community is admirable. She is always first to volunteer for committee positions and to help organize squadron events. She is also an avid supporter of the community, actively involved in her church as an integral member of the fundraising, financial and social committees.

"Sergeant Lewis is without a doubt one of the most professional and dedicated members we have in our squadron. The attributes above, coupled with her remarkably positive attitude, definitely make her an outstanding candidate for Reservist of the Year."

The Pilot Officer Andrew Charles "Andy" Mynarski, VC, Memorial Trophy was awarded jointly to 424 Search and Rescue Squadron, 8 Wing Trenton, 413 Transport and Rescue Squadron, 439 Combat Support Squadron, 3 Wing Bagotville and the Joint Rescue Coordination Centre, 8 Wing Trenton.

"The initial call came to JRCC Trenton July, 16, 2010 at about 3 p.m. for an overdue DeHavilland DHC-2 Beaver with six persons on board. The aircraft had radioed that it was landing due to bad weather, but it was not heard from when the weather improved. The 424 Sqn CC-130 Hercules and CH-146 Griffon were initially tasked, and with the Hercules only 30 minutes from the search area, the crashed Beaver was spotted by another aircraft. A survivor was seen waving from the broken fuselage.

"With the true spirit of teamwork and cooperation, two lives were saved in a terrible plane crash in Northern Quebec where four other lives were lost. In a joint effort involving four units; JRCC Trenton, 424, 439 and 413 squadrons, the mission to rescue the two survivors in the harsh, austere, wooded environment 160 kilometres north of Bagotville was accomplished in a most professional and expeditious manner.

"The Hercules crew hastily prepared for a live parachute insertion of two SAR techs, while JRCC requested further assistance from 439 and 413 squadrons as the crash was now confirmed with possibly six survivors, too many for the single Griffon from 424 Squadron to handle. At around 6 p.m. the two 424 Squadron SAR techs parachuted into a rough landing zone 800 metres from the crash site with 20 knot winds. After a safe landing they made their way to the crash site where they could hear someone banging on the fuselage, and on arrival they were met by a 15-year-old boy who appeared unhurt, but in shock. He led them to another survivor, his 59-year-old uncle, who had severe burns, but was conscious. Confirming that the other four persons had perished in the crash, one of whom was the boy's father, the SAR techs called for the helicopter extraction and set to work stabilizing the two patients, and preparing them for transport.

"By this time a Griffon from Bagotville was able to put together a crew and were expected to arrive at the crash site by 8 p.m., with the Cormorant and 424 Squadron Griffon soon after. With enough helicopter assets capable of rescue, JRCC recalled the 424 Squadron CH-146. The 439 Squadron Griffon arrived on scene and hoisted their two SAR techs into the crash site to assist. After about one hour they extracted the two survivors and delivered the patients to a hospital in Chicoutimi, but the helicopter did not have enough room for the 424 Squadron SAR techs and their equipment. The Cormorant was tasked to recover the remaining SAR techs and the deceased, along with the extra equipment and return them to Bagotville. Due to the severe condition of the burn victim the 439 Squadron Griffon was subsequently tasked at around midnight to medivac him to the burn unit in Quebec City.

"All the crews completed long crew days to accomplish the mission, with the CC-130 crew having worked a full 18 hours. The dedication, commitment, and resourcefulness of the crews were exemplary. 439 Squadron had to piece together a crew from members on leave, and the Cormorant crew was assisting in a mission outside of their normal SAR region. The fact that JRCC was able to call upon three different units who can work so easily together to accomplish one mission is a testament to the high level of training, proficiency and flexibility within all units of the national SAR system. This mission is a testament to the outstanding quality of the men and women that make up our SAR units, all extremely devoted to saving human life, reflecting the SAR tech motto, 'That Other's May Live.'"

Intersection Hockey League October Update

By Wendy Richardson

There is a chill in the air and it feels more like curling weather...so, the curling season for 2011/ 2012 is set to go.

The Greenwood Curling Club had a slight delay in opening this year due to the installation of a new de-humidifier, but now we are ready to start "The Roaring Game."

The season will kick off with a meet and greet and registration November 9 at 7 p.m. Come on out and meet curlers from last year and new members. Our executive and league co-ordinators will be there to help with any questions you might have.

President this year is Brian Campbell (765-4543), vice president is Colin Drolet (242-2643). Heading up the Monday night men's league is Stan Olejnik (765-6149), the Tuesday night ladies' league is Sandra Cathcart (765-6516). We are looking for someone to head up the Wednesday night mixed league. The stick league contact is Dwight Richardson (765-0470). Leagues Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings start at 7 p.m.; the stick league is every Tuesday and Thursday morning, starting at 10 a.m. Leagues start the week of November 14.

Come out and give curling a try. Fees for the year are as follows: membership for one league: $140, for two leagues, $195; junior membership is $50 and to spare is $5 per game.

Print out a registration form in advance by going to the curling club website. Check out the other club information and photos on the site.

Get those brooms and brushes dusted off, clean up the shoes and sliders and let the games begin!

Fun By The Numbers

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Saunders memorial tournament looking for teams

The golf clubs should be put away by now and the skates sharpened up. As you settle into fall, the co-ordinators for the Lieutenant (Navy) Chris Saunders Memorial Hockey Tournament are busy piecing together the 2012 running of this prestigious event, April 12 to 15, 2012, in Dartmouth at the Shannon and Shearwater arenas.

The tournament started in 2005 in memory of Saunders, who lost his life while serving on board HMCS Chicoutimi. Since its inception, the tournament has raised tens of thousands of dollars given to local charities in Saunders' name.

Military and civilian teams from across the Maritimes and Europe now attend. Last year was a banner year, with two teams making the journey across the Atlantic to play, one from the Royal Navy in Scotland and the other from Bitburg, Germany who found their way here after meeting one of the coordinators from the tournament deployed in Germany last year. Both teams have secured their places in this year's tournament and, in fact, another team from the U.K. will be coming as well.

Limited last year to the arena at Shannon Park, due to renovations in Shearwater, there were unfortunately teams that tried to register only to be turned down. This has quickly become one of the most sought after tournaments to be a part of in the Maritimes. This year, both arenas are ready, meaning we can open it back up to more teams. There will be five divisions, including A (open), B (+30), C (+35), D (+45) and E (women's).

Don't miss out on this incredible tournament, which has yet to disappoint any of the teams which have entered. Take the opportunity to be involved and spend a fun filled weekend of camaraderie, laughs - and a little bit of hockey. For more details and to register your team, contact one of the coordinators: Sergeant Trevor Jessome, trevor.jessome@forces.gc.ca; PO2 Rob Gagnon, rob.gagnon@forces.gc.ca; or Lieutenant (Navy) Mike Spearman, michael.spearman@forces.gc.ca.

Le lancement de la campagne 2011 des oeuvres de charité combinées

Par Manon Dubé

Le 27 octobre, un bon nombre de personnes se sont réunies au quartier général pour le lancement de la campagne 2011 des oeuvres de charité combinées de l'escadre et ont profité d'une pause café avec gâteau et café.

L'année dernière, plus de 50,000$ a été soulevée par la 14e Escadre ce qui a permis d'appuyer plus de 50 groupes de charité de la Vallée d'Annapolis comprenant en outre les banques alimentaires et les programmes de repas chauds dans nos écoles pour n'en nommer que quelques uns.

Cette année, en respectant notre devise, «Localement, nous faisons une différence», vous aurez l'occasion de supporter ces organismes de bienfaisance en participant aux événements suivants: jusqu'à la fin du mois de décembre, tous les vendredis, «Vêtements civils pour faire une différence»; le 18 novembre, de 11h00 à 14h00, un méga repas-partage au Mess; du premier au 25 novembre le campagne de délégation de solde; et le 8 décembre, de 09h00 à 21h00, le festival des arbres de Noël est de retour avec les enchères silencieuses.

2011 Combined Charities Campaign kicks off

By Manon Dubé

October 27, a number of personnel gathered at 14 Wing Greenwood headquarters to kick off the 2011 Combined Charities Campaign, and enjoy coffee and cake.

Over $50,000 was raised by 14 Wing in 2010, which supported over 50 charities throughout the Annapolis Valley, including food banks and hot meal programs at local schools, to name a few.

This year, in keeping with the motto, "Locally, We Make a Difference," there will be a number of opportunities to support the Combined Charities, including, until the end of December, Civvy Fridays: "Dress for a Difference," a wing mega-potluck at the Annapolis Mess November 18, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.; until November 25, a pay allotment program and, December 8, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., the Festival of Trees silent auction.

Youth Happenings

By Megan LeMoine,
Recreation youth worker

The 14 Wing Community Centre would like to thank Nick Cooper, Olivia Beer and Marcel for volunteering for the Halloween Trick or Eat Campaign. We collected 356 pounds of food for our local food bank, the Upper Room Food Bank in Kingston. Last year, we collected 100 pounds, so this year was a great success! The Trick or Eat Campaign also donates $1 for every pound of food collected. In the next few weeks, the centre's Teen Council will present a cheque to the Upper Room Food Bank for $356. Again, thanks to the volunteers: it is amazing what a small group of people can accomplish!
