Goodie boxes warm wish from home

By Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

Flip flops, chocolates, some reading material.

Merry Christmas!

14 Wing Greenwood's deployed personnel can expect Christmas to arrive any time, as volunteers at home spent the day November 22 packing parcels full of goodies to be shipped around the world.

"We do parcels five times a year — almost 500 last year," says Michelle Thibodeau Wagner of the Greenwood Military Family Resource Centre, covering all the major holidays. Christmas parcels, though, likely bring home to the volunteers who put them together and the troops who receive them more of the impact a deployment means on individuals and families.

"We only have 25 parcels this Christmas, and that's good — it means the soldiers are home with their families," Thibodeau Wagner says.

Still, Greenwood has personnel stationed in places like Kabul, Alert, Egypt and Afghanistan. The GMFRC tries to keep tabs on those individuals and their families, offering programs and support where it can. There is no designated funding for the parcel program, but the GMFRC is adept at finding goodies to fill the boxes.

"Sometimes we specifically ask business for donations, but it's more plant a seed and wait for something to come in."

The sale of GMFRC "support the troops" merchandise funds the project, and postage is covered through military mail.

So what are Greenwood soldiers getting this Christmas? Beef jerky, an Aurora Newspaper, potato chips, chocolates, flip flops, homemade note cards from "the card making ladies in the Valley" and a few other items. Also included in the parcel is a letter from the GMFRC and Wing Commander Colonel Jim Irvine.

What makes the boxes extra special, though, are the notes, letters and donations from local children, as schools are invited to "adopt a soldier." This Christmas, nine schools spent time making posters, banners, cards, pictures and other individual greetings. A banner from St. Mary's Elementary in Aylesford carries dozens of signatures. A card from a student is addressed to "someone brave." Another poster thanks a soldier for "fighting for our country." Every piece is read by volunteers before being added to a parcel.

"Some of the kids ask what they eat for supper, do you have a pet camel....," says Kellie Gillam.

"We all cry when we see the things from the kids," adds Teresa MacKenzie.

Thibodeau Wagner says, when she hears back through letters and emails from soldiers who've received parcels, they specifically mention the students' work, and often add word of penpal relationships that have been started.

"We hear a lot the Greenwood guys are treated well, and that they share a lot with other wings. This would be in addition to what a lot of families send, but there are members who don't get anything. Everyone likes to be remembered."

Mark day for women to remember

By Employment Equity Diversity Council,
14 Wing Greenwood

December 6 is the National Day of Remembrance and Action on Violence Against Women in Canada.

Established in 1991 by Parliament, this day marks the anniversary of the murders in 1989 of 14 young women at l'École Polytechnique de Montréal. They died because they were women.

As well as commemorating the 14 young women whose lives ended in an act of gender-based violence that shocked the nation, December 6 represents an opportunity for Canadians to reflect on the phenomenon of violence against women in our society. It is also an opportunity to consider the women and girls for whom violence is a daily reality, and to remember those who have died as a result of gender-based violence. And, finally, it is a day on which communities can consider concrete actions to eliminate all forms of violence against women and girls.

Please join us at St. Mark's Chapel, Greenwood, at 11:30 a.m. December 6 for a special ceremony to mark the National Day of Remembrance and Action on Violence Against Women.

Jour important pour la femme à signaler

Le 6 décembre est la Journée nationale de commémoration et d'action contre la violence faite aux femmes.

Instituée en 1991 par le Parlement, cette journée souligne l'anniversaire du meurtre de 14 jeunes femmes en 1989 à l'École polytechnique de Montréal. Elles sont mortes parce qu'elles étaient des femmes.

En plus de commémorer les 14 jeunes femmes qui ont perdu la vie à la suite d'un acte de violence sexuelle qui a choqué la nation, le 6 décembre offre l'occasion aux Canadiennes et aux Canadiens de réfléchir au phénomène de la violence à l'égard des femmes dans notre société. C'est également l'occasion de penser aux femmes et aux jeunes filles pour qui la violence est une réalité quotidienne et de se souvenir de celles qui sont mortes par suite de la violence dirigée contre les femmes. Enfin, cette journée offre la possibilité aux collectivités d'envisager des mesures concrètes afin d'éliminer toutes les formes de violence à l'égard des femmes et des filles.

S'il vous plaît venez vous joindre à nous pour une cérémonie spéciale à la chapelle St. Mark's, le 6 décembre 2011 à 11 h 30.

Reserve force change coming; role remains key

By Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

Re-balancing the Canadian Forces' Reserve after a decade of demand means change, the Air Reserve advisor agrees, but it will be done in a way that recognizes the strengths and values of its members.

Brigadier General Gord Reid, a Reservist himself, was at 14 Wing Greenwood November 16 and 17 to tour facilities and meet with the base's close to 200 Reserve members.

"I know what's on their minds," he said, referring to nervousness across the country in the branch as the military scales back after a decade of Afghanistan demands and also prepares for a federal budget of across-the-board reductions.

"I'll tell them, 'Here's how I think it will play out,' and, if someone's got a question, hopefully I can answer it to their satisfaction."

Heading into a town hall with Greenwood Reservists, Reid said Reserve force reductions should not be a surprise: "We surged, and

Brigadier General Gord Reid, Director General Air Reserves, presented Master Warrant Officer Brian Stark of 14 Construction Engineering Squadron in Bridgewater with the General Campaign Star Bar for over 180 days' service in Afghanistan. Stark will reach compulsory retirement age in December, with over 37 years of service. now it's a point of coming back." Reserve members have picked up more hours deploying and covering deployments in the last 10 years. Returning to the traditional 12 days per month Reserve standard is a challenge for people who have been working in a higher-paced environment for so long.

"No people will be affected, but hours will," Reid said. A working group is looking at numbers and how they will be distributed across the country's 2,300 Air Reservists, reporting up the chain of command by the end of this year. Reid anticipates retirements over the next few years will ease the transition, and it will take several years to reach that balance."

Regardless, Reid says, he's proud of his personnel.

"If that Regular force person didn't come back as a Reserve member, we'd have to train people to replace them. We capture all their experience and professionalism and leadership, and you can't tell the difference be-

Op MOBILE honours mark mission end

A ceremony in Ottawa November 24, including a CP-140 long range patrol crew from 14 Wing Greenwood, honoured deployment success and officially welcomed home Canadian Forces members who participated in operations over Libya and in the Central Mediterranean on Operation MOBILE.

The Royal Canadian Air Force showed off its talent, assets and flying capabilities in flyby over Parliament. A CH-124 Sea King, a CP-140 Aurora, a CC-130J model Hercules, a CC-177 Globemaster III and a CC-150 Polaris tanker accompanied by seven CF-18 Hornet fighter jets flew over Ottawa in what Chief of the Defence Staff General Walt Natynczyk called a "fantastic, fantastic flypast." The outdoor portion of the ceremony also included a 21-gun salute and a parade inspected by Governor General David Johnston. The governor general's wife, Sharon, Prime Minister Stephen Harper, his wife, Laureen, Natynczyk and Defence Minister Peter MacKay were also in attendance.

In March, less than 24 hours after the passage of the UN Security Council Resolution calling on the international community to protect civilians against Gadhafi's cruel and oppressive regime, CF-18 Hornets from CFB Bagotville and CC-150 Polaris strategic air-to-air refuelling support from CFB Trenton were on their way overseas. Canada's CC-17 Globemasters followed with personnel and equipment. The deployment of a frigate and CP-140 Aurora maritime patrol aircraft gave the Canadian Forces the ability to play a leading role in facilitating humanitarian aid, enforcing the arms embargo and imposing the no-fly zone over Libya.

"Throughout this deployment, our men and women clearly demonstrated that their professionalism and outstanding skills enhance the role they can play in successful international operations," MacKay said. "The Libyan people can finally look towards the future with hope."

Harper called the day a "a day of honour," a chance to celebrate the success of the NATO mission in Libya and Canada's contribution.

"We all remember how, as what was referred to, hopefully, as the Arab spring spread across North Africa, Libyans began asking for the same reforms as their neighbours. And, why would they do otherwise, having experienced over four decades of dictatorship so brutal and psychotic it had literally taken their country out of the mainstream of human existence?"

Canada sent more than 2,000 Canadian Forces members to join NATO allies.

Harper reminded those in attendance of CF members still serving abroad in dangerous missions, particularly in Afghanistan, where Canada will remain until 2014. The Afghanistan mission is the longest-ever military engagement in Canadian history.

"So let no one ever question whether Canada is prepared to stay the course in defence of what is right."

Lieutenant-General Charles Bouchard, Commander of NATO's Combined Joint Task Force Unified Protector was presented with the Meritorious Service Cross, acknowledging a military deed performed in an outstandingly professional manner, according to a rare high standard that brings considerable benefit or great honour to the Canadian Forces.

In Greenwood, local personnel who participated in Op MOBILE were recognized at the Annapolis Mess November 25, and given the opportunity to brief wing personnel on some of their roles and experiences.

Air show settles in Summerside

The Atlantic Canada International Air Show returns to the Summerside Airport on Prince Edward Island August 25 and 26, 2012.

"The air show, which has been held in four different locations since 2003, came to Summerside for 2011. We are excited to come back in 2012," says Colin Stephenson, executive director of the air show.

Organizers are thrilled to announce the U.S. Navy Blue Angels will perform at Slemmon Park, their only appearance outside the U.S. in 2012, their 66th season, and their first time in Prince Edward Island. Sixteen officers, along with over 40 enlisted personnel that voluntarily serve with the Blue Angels Demonstration Team, travel to all show sites in seven beautifully painted signature "Blue and Gold" Boeing F/A-18 Hornet jets and a C-130 Hercules, call sign "Fat Albert." Six jets fly together in various spectacular formations within the Blue Angels' 45 minute air display.

Several more acts will perform, including the Royal Canadian Air Force Demonstration Teams and Canadian Forces Parachute Team. Air Show Atlantic hopes to be one of the few shows in 2012 where the RCAF Snowbirds and U.S. Navy Blue Angels will perform together.

Tickets for the 2012 show go on sale in the new year. Additional information is available at www.airshowatlantic.ca

Make your holidays easier

By Kim Dixon, GMFRC Coordinator of Child and Youth Services

'Tis the season to be jolly, tired and somewhat frazzled. However, once we see the excitement in our kids' eyes as they spot Santa, or the feeling that comes from watching the first snowflakes of the season cover the ground, it makes all the hustle and bustle worth it. If you're like most parents you might find the commercialism and excesses of the holidays are what make things complicated and stressful. It may be a good idea to try to simplify your holidays this year by giving these tips a try:

Set limits on gifts. Give only one or two special gifts per child, with a couple of smaller presents - especially if your child has grandparents or extended family members who will be sending along presents.

Draw names. If you have a big family or exchange gifts among extended family members, think about drawing names from a hat instead of buying gifts for everyone. It is fun to look for that special gift for the one name you've picked.

Participate in a cookie exchange with friends. This gives everyone the opportunity to have a wide variety of sweets in the freezer, all ready for those unexpected guests.

If you have always exchanged gifts with friends, try going out to dinner together instead. The gift of time together and having a few laughs may become your new holiday tradition.

Limit the number of parties you attend over the holidays. If both you and your spouse have workplace Christmas parties, think about alternating which one you will attend each year.

Make or buy a few family meals and keep them in the freezer. These will be perfect for those days when there are school Christmas concerts, last minute holiday shopping that runs later than expected or for days that you just want to stay home in your PJs and take care of you while everyone is at work or school.

If you would like more information or help locating resources on parenting, stop by the GMFRC and see Kim Dixon.

Simplifiez-vous la vie durant la période des Fêtes

Par Kim Dixon, coordonnatrice des
services pour enfants, jeunes et adolescents
du CRFMG

Le temps des Fêtes est une période où la plupart des parents sont joyeux, fatigués et un peu crevés. Mais lorsque vous découvrez l'enthousiasme qui brille dans les yeux de vos enfants à la vue du Père Noël ou le plaisir de voir tomber les premières neiges de la saison, vous réalisez alors que tout ce remue-ménage des Fêtes en valait la peine. Si vous êtes comme la plupart des parents, vous trouverez que l'aspect commercial et les excès du temps des Fêtes sont ce qui rend les choses compliquées et stressantes. Cette année, il serait peut-être bon d'essayer de simplifier le temps des Fêtes en suivant ces quelques conseils:

Limiter le nombre de cadeaux. Offrez seulement un ou deux cadeaux spéciaux par enfant plus deux petits cadeaux, surtout si votre enfant a des grands-parents et des membres de la famille élargie qui lui enverront d'autres cadeaux.

Procéder à un tirage au sort des noms. Si vous avez une grande famille ou si vous échangez des cadeaux parmi les membres de la famille élargie, songez à tirer des noms d'un chapeau plutôt que d'avoir à acheter des cadeaux pour tout le monde. Il est beaucoup plus agréable de chercher un cadeau spécial pour la personne que vous avez pigé.

Participer à un échange de biscuits avec des amis. Cela permet à tout le monde d'avoir une grande variété de desserts dans le congélateur prêts à être servis aux invités imprévus.

Si vous avez toujours échangé des cadeaux avec vos amis, essayez cette année d'aller dîner tous ensemble au restaurant. Le cadeau qui consiste à passer du temps ensemble et à rire peut devenir une nouvelle tradition du temps des Fêtes.

Limiter le nombre de fêtes auxquelles vous allez participer durant le temps des Fêtes. Si vous et votre conjoint(e) avez une réception de Noël dans le cadre du travail, songez à désigner à tour de rôle celle à laquelle vous assisterez chaque année.

Préparer ou acheter quelques repas congelés et les conserver dans le congélateur. Ces repas pourraient être parfaits pour les jours où vous avez des concerts scolaires de Noël, du magasinage de dernière minute qui dure plus longtemps que prévu ou pour les jours où vous voulez simplement rester à la maison dans votre pyjama à vous occuper de vous-même, pendant que tous les autres sont au travail ou à l'école.

Pour obtenir de plus amples renseignements ou pour vous aider à trouver des ressources à l'intention des parents, veuillez vous rendre au CRFMG afin de rencontrer Kim Dixon.

The West Kings Wind Ensemble led off the telethon's full schedule of local entertainers with a selection of holiday favourites.

Community pledges make Christmas happen

By Sara Keddy, Managing editor

A team effort pulled off another successful Christmas Mommies and Daddies Telethon and Auction November 27.

Organizer Barb Lyle, a Kingston Lions Club member, says on-air pledges totalled $18,000, a result of donations and auction bids.

"That's up from other years and, usually by the time everything comes in, we'll be higher than that," she said December 1.

That's great news, as Lions clubs in Coldbrook, Berwick, Aylesford and Kingston, along with the Friendly Neighbours group, expect to fill 250 hampers of food and toys this Christmas for local families. That includes 350 children.

The groups partner every year on the telethon, hamper applications, packing and, finally, delivering a us take for granted at this time of year fill the boxes, which will be packed from the Aylesford fire hall happier holiday to families in need. A turkey, vegetables, a few groceries, mittens, small toys and other treats many of December 21 and 22.

Friendly Neighbours began its work in 1969, organized by 14 Wing Greenwood to support some of its lower-income personnel and their families. That first year, $875 was collected to support 75 families. The group now operates out of space in Kingston, partnering with the Lions, to reach the wider community – with a budget of $20,000 to fill all the requests. 14 Wing Commander Colonel Jim Irvine helped open this year's telethon, reading incoming pledges with Eastlink TV's popular cooking show host, Joan McElman. Eastlink broadcasts the annual eight-hour show to Valley viewers.

"I know how everyone at the base likes to listen to their commander," show MC Rod Reeves said, as Irvine challenged his personnel to match his donation. "The gauntlet has been thrown down."

"Families and children are looking to you for a Merry Christmas, and this is a great day for some fantastic pledges to come in."

Lyle credits the hundreds of volunteers who make the telethon and hamper program work, from setting up the fire hall and stage for the telethon itself, keeping volunteers fed throughout the event, gathering business donations for the auction, answering phone pledges and then collecting food and toys for the hampers.

"A team effort? It sure is!"

It is important now, she says, telethon pledges be honoured – and any new pledges be made – as soon as possible. Contributors may honour their pledge at Royal Bank branches in Coldbrook, Berwick and Middleton; CIBC branches in Kingston and Greenwood; the Bank of Nova Scotia in either Middleton or Greenwood, the Credit Union in Cambridge or Greenwood and Chisholm's Pharmasave in Aylesford.

Kingston Lion Bob Lyle gets 14 Wing Commander Colonel Jim Irvine set to open the pledge desk for the Christmas Mommies and Daddies telethon.

*Have a safe
Christmas season*

Tips from the 14 Wing Greenwood Fire Department

1. Get a freshly cut tree. It will stay green longer and be less of a fire hazard.
2. Choose decorations that are flame-retardant, non-combustible and non-conductive.
3. Use Canadian Standards Association (CSA) certified light strings/ sets.
4. Never burn gift wrappings, boxes, cartons or other types of packing in the fireplace.
5. Place candles away from absolutely anything that could catch fire. Never leave burning candles unattended.
6. There is often a tendency to overload wall outlets during the holiday season. This is an unsafe practice

Quelques conseils du Service des pom- piers de la 14^e Escadre Greenwood

1. Procurez-vous un arbre coupé depuis peu. Il restera vert plus longtemps et posera moins de risque d'incendie.
2. Choisissez des décorations ignifuges, incombustibles et non conductrices.
3. Utilisez des jeux de lumières agréés par l'Association canadienne de normalisation (ACN).
4. Placez les chandelles loin de tout ce qui pourrait s'enflammer. Ne laissez jamais sans surveillance une chandelle allumée.
5. Ne brûlez jamais les papiers de vos cadeaux, les boîtes, les cartons et les autres types d'emballage dans un foyer.
6. Les gens ont souvent tendance à surcharger les prises électriques pendant la période des fêtes. Cela est dangereux.

Fun By The Numbers
Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Anson effort rewarded

By Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

The team put in over 16,000 man hours, over many weeks, and the results of their work are seen today in the restored 1941 Anson held by the Greenwood Military Aviation Museum, and, November 9, the presentation of a volunteer recognition award.

The Canadian Aeronautical Preservation Association rewarded the "Ainsworth team" behind the Anson project in 2009, the year the Anson was presented to the museum. The official plaque and presentation ceremony was held just recently at the museum, with 14 Wing Commander Colonel Jim Irvine given the honour of welcoming the award.

"To see the Anson then, in 2009, at our mess dinner during the Centennial of Flight events and to know this team put in so much work into making it happen – fantastic to see this artefact," Irvine said.

"A real project of base and museum society teams of volunteers. The talent these guys have – they are well-deserving of this award."

The Ainsworth team took on its name, thanks to the drive of its leader, retired chief warrant officer Colin Ainsworth. Three months after the restored Anson was presented to the museum, Ainsworth died.

"We'd all like to think he is here today," Brian Handley said on behalf of the museum society.

Team volunteer Bruce

Fleury, a retired flight engineer, says the team's time on the project was more than work: "This is where we socialized." He credits Ainsworth for keeping things on track.

"Colin knew how to pick the guys, and what jobs to give them. There was never an argument – some discussion, but it went really well. We covered just about every trade among us all."

The Anson, at the start of the restoration, was "a rusted pipe pulled out of a field out west," Fleury said. "There was a lot of scrounging, begging and borrowing to get it done, and the museum and the base were huge partners."

The Ainsworth team has a new project underway: the restoration of an old Bolling-broke.
