WNSR takes training to town

It was a great weekend of training in Middleton March 28 to 30, as 50 soldiers of the West Nova Scotia Regiment occupied a portion of the Annapolis Valley town. The regiment was augmented with members from 84th Independent Field Battery in Yarmouth, 3 Military Police Detachment in Halifax and the Division Influence Activities Branch from Halifax, who all came together to conduct an exercise focusing on counter-insurgency operations, establishing an urban defense and urban patrolling. It was an excellent training opportunity to learn detailed detainee handling techniques and procedures from veterans in the Military Police. Operating off DND property, within the public sphere, also provided a unique and important experience, allowing the unit to practice coordination and cooperation between military and civilian authorities.

Sergeant Roger Chabot, a member of the Regular force working with the WNSR, helped coordinate the training, and mentored the younger soldiers on the exercise.

"I am hoping the unit can do more of this type of training in the future, because the soldiers get to know what it is like to train in a real-world environment while the community gets to know their soldiers," he said, adding how welcoming the town and its residents were during the exercise.

"The residents were impressed by the technical skills demonstrated by the soldiers, many of whom live or work in the town. The training also proved to be a good recruiting tool, as onlookers witnessed first-hand what it is like being a Reservist, and the kind of training being conducted by the infantry."

For information on the WNSR, contact Sergeant David Morse, 902-678-7930 local 2109.

When 14 Wing Greenwood changes the water flow from the county source to Potable Well #9 April 13, at or around 1 a.m.; although there will be no disruption to the service, occupants may notice a slight discolouration in the water. This will dissipate quickly. This is non-toxic and is only the sediment stirred up in the pipes as the flow direction changes.

Le puits d'eau no 9 qui fournit l'eau potable aux ULR, au Centre Morfee, à l'Annexe Morfee et au mess Annapolis sera remis en service après que son système de filtrage ait été en réparation et testé une fois par semaine depuis un an.

Lorsque l'escadre 14e Greenwood changera l'écoulement d'eau du comté au puits no 9, le 13 avril prochain, à ou près de 01h00 du matin, il n'y aura pas d'interruption de service. Les occupants pourraient remarquer une légère décoloration de l'eau mais cette dernière se dissipera rapidement. Cette décoloration est non toxique et ne vient que du sédiment agité dans les tuyaux par les changements de direction de l'écoulement.

Do you have a first aid kit in your car?

Chief Warrant Officer
Mario Roussel,
405 (Long Range Patrol)
Squadron

Do you have a first aid kit in your home? Perhaps even more importantly, do you have a first aid kit in each of your vehicles? If you do, what does it contain?

We would not think of driving a car without car insurance, and we don't go on road trips without, at the minimum, a credit card and our health card, but many people drive without a basic first aid kit. The importance of a first aid kit cannot be overstated. In 2010, in data collected on car collisions by Transport Canada, over 170,000 people suffered minimal to serious injuries as a result of vehicle collisions. Some of these serious injuries could have been downgraded if someone present during the collision had a first aid kit available. Immediate response at an accident scene can save a life and reduce the amount of work the paramedics need to perform. As a matter of fact, the majority of European car manufacturers now include a first aid kit in the vehicles they sell.

You might think you need a first aid kit big enough to do open heart surgery, but that would be far from accurate. Any basic first aid kit available from retailers will do the job nicely. This first aid kit is not only for people that might need it after a vehicle collision, but it is especially for you or your passengers to use when you suffer cuts or bruises on the road. If you own a small car or lack the space to store a full kit, you only need the following pieces of equipment to protect yourself and your family: a mouth-to-mouth face mask, latex gloves, various size bandages and a Ziplock bag big enough to store it all. This small kit will fit in any glove compartment.

If you come upon an accident and you do not know how to do first aid, do not panic: the 911 operator will be able to tell you what to do. That said, it doesn't hurt to take a basic first aid course from a recognized society such as the Red Cross or St. John Ambulance.

If this article made you realize you do not have a basic first aid kit in your vehicle to protect yourself and your family, go and find a kit right now, or at least make a note to pick up the items on your next shopping trip. Hopefully, you will never have to use it - but do not take any chances with the lives of your loved ones.

Flight Lieutenant James Chrystall Wernham (Jimmy)

Wernham was born in 1917 in Scotland, but moved with his family to Winnipeg as a youngster. His father worked for the railway, and Wernham was working for John Deere when he joined the air force in 1940. He graduated as an air observer in 1941, was commissioned and sent to England in July. By October, with the Royal Air Force's 77 Squadron, he had carried out 16 raids. He transferred to the Royal Canadian Air Force's 405 Squadron and, in his first operation May 30, 1942, he and his crewmates made international headlines as part of the famous "thousand bomber raid on Cologne."

Just one week later, after a raid on Essen, Wernham's Halifax bomber was shot down and he was captured in Holland. He arrived at Stalag Luft III in the summer of 1942.

On the night of the great escape, Wernham was part of the "Woodmill Leave Party," a group of a dozen escapees who assembled in the woods. They travelled by train to Hirschberg, where Wernham and another fellow split from the group to buy tickets to a town on the Czech border. They were refused, but posed as French workers at another train station. Tickets in hand, they were questioned and arrested shortly after boarding the train.

Recaptured escapees of the Woodmill Leave Party were gathered at the Hirschberg Kripo station, interrogated and marched to the local jail. Wernham was shot by the Gestapo March 30 outside of Hirschberg, along with two Polish and one Greek airman.

Lieutenant-Colonel Mike Adamson, right, commanding officer of 405 (Long Range Patrol) Squadron; and Chief Warrant Officer Mario Roussel were part of a Royal Canadian Air Force contingent commemorating the 70th anniversary March 24 of The Great Escape from a prisoner of war camp in Poland. Pathfinder remembered for role, sacrifice in Great Escape

Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

Jimmy Wernham's job: distract the guards with singing and theatre antics put on by fellow prisoners of war, while tunnel digging continued under everyone's noses.

Lieutenant-Colonel Mike Adamson and Chief Warrant Officer Mario Roussel's job: represent today's 405 (Long Range Patrol) Squadron Pathfinders in remembering the daring, bravery and execution of one of their own.

Adamson and Roussel were part of a Royal Canadian Air Force contingent at the 70th anniversary of "The Great Escape" during international commemorations March 24 in Poland. Six Canadian airmen were among 50 prisoners shot after being recaptured by the Germans, having escaped through a 300-foot tunnel under Stalag Luft III, March 24, 1944. Dozens of Allied airmen in the camp had worked for months on three tunnels, seeing it as their duty to escape and disrupt German operations however they could. Ingenious tunnel bracing, air circulation, lighting and even dirt dispersal from special "socks" as prisoners walked the camp's grounds allowed one of the tunnels to be put to use that night. Two hundred prisoners were set to break out: unfortunately, the tunnel ended just 30 feet short of the protection of a forest, and guards caught sight of the 76th escapee as he ran for cover. Over the next few days, 73 of the men were recaptured. Adolf Hitler, Führer of the Third Reich in Germany, was so angry, he ordered them shot. Fifty were executed, including Wernham.

"They took it seriously, their responsibility to escape," Adamson said, upon his return to 14 Wing Greenwood, the home of the modern 405 Squadron. "People had tried, in ones and twos, but it was the audacity of this effort: two years of tunnel digging, getting rid of dirt, making air pumps – it was a testament to their ingenuity."

"They expected to get caught, but the goal was to get as many people as possible after them. It's estimated one million people were diverted from the German war effort to find them, so they had an effect."

Roussel remains impressed with the drive and imagination of the wartime prisoners to escape, and the evidence that remains 70 years later of what they achieved. A memorial to those executed, built by prisoners immediately after the escape, has lasted through the decades, and remnants of the camp, a small museum and a stone walkway hinting at the tunnel's route belowground were the background for remembrance services.

"In 32 years of service, this was the cherry on top for me: who doesn't know about 'The Great Escape?'" Roussel said, referring to the 1960s Hollywood movie version with Steve McQueen. "The honour and the privilege of being there to witness this anniversary – you're standing there in the rain, the cold and the train whistle sounding as it goes by during the ceremony. That's all the same as it was 70 years ago. It is almost surreal. You don't realize you're there until you breathe the same air and walk the same ground. It was very humbling to be there."

Adamson and Roussel laid a wreath at the camp memorial site in honour of Wernham and "the 50."

"405 Squadron has a very distinguished wartime service record, and any opportunity we get to commemorate that and link with that heritage is just awesome," Adamson said, adding an opportunity as he arrived at 405 Squadron himself almost two years ago to represent the squadron at an event in Belgium "nicely bookends" his experience as the squadron commander.

"Equally incredible ceremonies, and they hit home."

A crowd of community supporters rallied April 5 in Kingston, as day-long activities celebrated the village's Hockeyville rally's success in making the final two. Awaiting the Hockey Night in Canada announcement at the Credit Union Centre that evening were hundreds of volunteers, hockey fans and players, community residents and officials. The rink's supporters earned $100,000 as the Eastern Canadian finalist and, while losing the ultimate Hockeyville title to Sylvan Lake, Alberta; have lots to celebrate at the end of several month's effort. Wing curling wraps up

Captain Rob Anderson,
President,
14 Wing Intersection Curling

The 14 Wing Greenwood 2013/2014 Intersection Curling Season had a slow start this year. With operational capability of the utmost importance and a lack of curlers remaining on the Wing after last year's APS, finding enough players to make up teams was difficult. When the season really got going around October, six teams fully committed: Wing Operations/404 Squadron, 405 Squadron, Maritime Proving and Evaluation Unit, 14 Software Engineering Squadron and two teams from 14 Air Maintenance Squadron.

The season went along well, other than a few snow days. There were enough players to occupy at least a couple of sheets of ice and have some fun each Wednesday afternoon.

The final intersection funspiel was held April 3, where those in attendance enjoyed pizza and a final afternoon of curling. 14 SES and MP&EU were vying for top spot, and had won an equal number of games throughout the season. They played off for intersection bragging rights and the championship trophy – ironic, as both units will merge into a new squadron in the coming year.

The championship game itself was a nail-biter, as it came down to the last rock in the final end. MP&EU's skip had only one option: squeeze between two opposing rocks and run back a third (opposing rock), while sticking the shooter in the four-foot for a possible three points to win. Unfortunately, even Brad Jacobs or Jennifer Jones would find that same shot nearly impossible. 14 SES stole two and took the trophy for the first time in many, many years by a score of 6-2.

As president of the Intersection Curling this year, I urge everyone to come out and play next year. It's an inexpensive game: the curling rink provides all the required gear and it's a great way to get some exercise, learn the game and meet lots of people. Who knows? Maybe the next Olympic curling champion is living right next door to you!

Two teams bowl it out for regional title

The Greenwood Bowling Centre was the venue, as 14 Wing Greenwood hosted the Atlantic Regional Bowling Championship March 27 and 28.

The Greenwood team selection process started with an earlier roll-off, consisting of 20 games bowled over two days. The top six bowlers, with the highest total pin fall, were selected to represent 14 Wing at the Atlantic championship. 14 Wing Greenwood's full team included Master Corporal Roger Houde, team captain; Master Corporal Terry Hann, Master Corporal Doug Todd, Corporal Dominic Jodoin, Master Corporal John Cross and Captain Blaine Losier.

At the very last minute, the Gagetown team withdrew from regionals, leaving only Halifax (Combined Fleet and Base) and Greenwood in the mix. Facing a major winter storm, it was fortunate the Halifax team arrived early and, due to the inclement weather, the championship was shortened to two days.

14 Wing bowlers battled hard, but could not defeat Halifax in either the round robin or playoff rounds.

Individual Awards were presented for high average to Houde, 225.5; and John Stewart, CFB Halifax, 203; for high triple to Houde, 750; and Terry Hann, 14 Wing Greenwood, 652; for high single to Houde, 329; and Stewart, 253.

Get set for ZX 10k, 5k races

CFB Greenwood invites you to come out and enjoy a flat course, smiling faces and the best host facility on the Run Nova Scotia 2014 series. The annual ZX 10k and 5k races are set for April 19.

Race day registration gets under way at 8:15 a.m. and closes at 9:45 a.m. All races start and finish at the 14 Wing Fitness & Sports Centre. Wheelchair athletes lead the field with a 10 a.m. start; the 10 kilometre and five kilometre races start at 10:05 a.m. The 5km course is a paved, out and back, flat route with a slight 100m dip/ rise. The 10 kilometre main event is two loops of the same course.

Awards and post race snacks will be held at the finish line. Awards in the 10 kilometre class will be presented in male and female categories for: open class (all ages), juniors (19 and under), masters (40 to 49), senior masters (50 to 59), golden masters (60 to 69), platinum masters (70-plus), titanium (80-plus) and military. Awards in the five kilometre event will be presented to the top three male and female participants, the top military male and female, the top high school male and female, the top middle school male and female and the top elementary school male and female.

Online registration at Atlantic Chip closes April 18 at noon. Run Nova Scotia, military and Greenwood Multisport Club members receive a $5 discount registering for the 10 kilometre race. In the five kilometre field, Run Nova Scotia and Greenwood Multisport Club members receive a $5 discount. Register online for $30, $35 after April 2 and $40 after April 16. This week long event was the biggest in the CPU's long history, with over 300 people set to compete. Among the competitors was a small group of Department of National Defence folks from all over Canada, set to do battle in one of the toughest powerlifting fields seen. This year's DND contingent consisted of Lieutenant Mark Wasson from CFB Gagetown, Master Warrant Officer Gary Lacoursiere from NDHQ, Sergeant John Beres from CJOC, Master Corporal Rob Snow from 413 Squadron, 14 Wing Greenwood; Master Corporal Brian George from Shearwater and Eileen du Plooy from Halifax.

Master Corporal Brian George attended as a referee and a coach. Also attending was Major (retired) Shelley Colter, who picked up gold for her lifting in the Master 2 84+kg Classic Women's class.

All in all it was a very good showing, with a total medal count of three gold, three silver and a bronze.

Wasson won gold in the men's 83kg classic open with a 237.5kg squat, 165kg bench press, and a 300kg deadlift; totalling 702.5kg.

Lacoursiere won bronze in the men's 74kg classic Master 1, with a 160kg squat, 123kg bench press (a national record), and a 190kg deadlift, totalling 473kg. He also won silver in the men's 73kg classic Master 1 bench press, pressing 122.5kg.

Beres won silver in the men's 120+kg classic Master 1 bench press, pressing 180kg. Beres also won gold in the men's 120+kg equipped Master 1 bench press, pressing 200kg.

Snow won silver in the men's 120+kg classic Master 1, with a 220kg squat, 165kg bench press, and a 272.5kg deadlift; totalling 657.5kg

George unfortunately sustained an injury during his opening squat attempt and was unable to continue with the competition. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Du Plooy lifted strong to win gold in the Open 72kg Women's class, with a 147.5kg squat, 87.5kg bench press, and a 165kg deadlift, totalling 400kg.

The results for both Wasson and du Plooy qualified them to attend the International Powerlifting Federation's Classic Championships in South Africa.

nel competing in the CPU has grown over the years, with many taking top spots in local, regional and national competitions. At next year's national event in Newfoundland, we can expect the number of DND members attending to increase yet again.

Fun By The Numbers

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
