Air elements mark Impact presence

November 11 marked a series of mission and memorial milestones for Canadian Armed Forces personnel deployed with Operation Impact.

As of 3 p.m. (Eastern Standard Time) November 11, Air Task Force - Iraq conducted 62 sorties. Royal Canadian Air Force aircraft involved include CF188 Hornet fighters, which have conducted 42 sorties; a CC150T Polaris aerial refueller, which has conducted nine sorties, delivering some 418,000 pounds of fuel to coalition aircraft; and CP140 Aurora aircraft, based out of 14 Wing Greenwood, which have conducted 11 reconnaissance missions.

Operation Impact is the Canadian Armed Forces' contribution to the Middle East Stabilization Force, the international coalition assisting security forces in Iraq fighting against the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL). Canadian air assets arrived in Kuwait October 28 and two Hornets, one Aurora and one Polaris conducted their first missions as part of the MESF October 30. Hornets conducted Canada's first combat airstrike on ISIL targets November 2.

November 11 itself, a series of coalition missions were conducted where ISIL was known to operate near Bayji, north of Baghdad, in support of Iraqi security forces' ground operations in the area. A Hornet successfully struck an ISIL artillery piece using laser-guided ammunition.

Also November 11, 600 CAF members with Operation Impact commemorated Warrant Officer Patrice Vincent and Corporal Nathan Cirillo by naming two of their deployed locations after the members. One of the locations of Air Task Force - Iraq has been named Camp Vincent, and the operations base of Canadian Special Operations Forces Command in Iraq is now called Patrol Base Cirillo.

Vincent, a member of the Joint Personnel Support Unit, Integrated Personnel Support Centre St-Jean, died after being run down by an individual in a car in Saint-Jean-sur-Richelieu, Quebec, October 20. Cirillo was a Reserve member of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders of Canada (Princess Louise's) based in Hamilton, Ontario. He was shot by a gunman while on duty at the National War Memorial in Ottawa October 22.

"The tragic deaths of Warrant Officer Patrice Vincent and Corporal Nathan Cirillo have saddened all those who wear the uniform," said Lieutenant General J.H. Vance, Commander, Canadian Joint Operations Command. "The naming of Patrol Base Cirillo and Camp Vincent will allow personnel deployed to those areas - as well as allies who visit the installations - to mark the passing of two proud Canadians, and all those who died in the service of their country on home soil."

Brigadier-General Michael Rouleau, Commander of Canadian Special Operations Forces Command, agreed the naming honours the sacrifice of these two members, and Canada's commitment to confront threats to the nation.

"Camp Vincent honours a member who exemplified helping others as a member of the Joint Personnel Support Unit. PB Cirillo honours a soldier who was standing guard protecting those who could no longer protect themselves and he sought no recognition for this service. The officers and troopers of CANSOFCOM felt an inherent link to our own identity."

Overhead lighting inside Hangar 14 is a big improvement: less noise, up to 20 per cent more light – and $66,182 a year, burning 541,824 kWh less a year.

Lights on for savings

A single, simple change of close to 200 light fixtures is adding up.

14 Wing Greenwood's Hangar 14 fixtures offered a large opportunity for energy and financial savings, as identified by the wing's energy sustainability team.

Hangar 14 lighting upgrades wrapped up in September, with the replacement of 164 high bay fixtures and 22 exterior lighting fixtures with new Light Emitting Diode (LED) fixtures. The results include reducing demand on the lighting system by 121.5 kilowatts, with a total annual energy savings of 541,824 kWh. This reduction in power consumption will result in an annual cost savings to the base of $66,182.

The work team also notes light levels increased nearly 20 per cent with the new LEDs, and reduced maintenance costs represent a further added benefit, as LEDs have a longer lifespan. Reduced light bulb change outs means more time for 14 Wing's Construction Engineering shops to perform work in other areas of the base.

14 Wing Greenwood's energy savings projects are part of a national Royal Canadian Air Force and Canadian Armed Forces' sustainability initiative to reduce the environmental footprint of military-related operations - and save money.

The cost of Hangar 14 work was $197,513, which will pay for itself in just over three years. Efficiency Nova Scotia moved this project forward with financing. Technicians say the improvement is dramatic, even affecting noise levels, and are very satisfied with the upgrades.

"This was a big project for us, and it's a benchmark for what can be done with this technology," says Alex England, the wing's embedded energy advisor. "This project displays the potential for these upgrades, as the team here investigates other buildings with similar opportunities."

Further 14 Wing buildings are on the radar for sustainability improvements. Hangar 10's lighting project is being prepared for tender, with an expected savings of 776,281 kWh per year. Hangar 11 would be next, with an expected savings of 600 kWh per year.

Building virtual connections

Virtual Outreach is a tool that connects Canadian Armed Forces families to one another, shares valuable information and provides a networking vehicle - all from the comfort of their computer. It provides convenient and enhanced access to programs and services for all CAF families, regardless of their geographic location.

Virtual programs have been used for the last four years in Europe, benefiting more than 600 CAF families living in 16 countries. Programs have included employment and scholarship workshops, weight wellness, a virtual book club, and open forum discussion groups.

Adapting a live program to a virtual audience requires creativity, patience, expertise and understanding of participant learning styles. Presenters must have an understanding of the importance of creating engaging sessions that enhance collaboration and input during informative workshops. Each presenter works with a producer who helps to navigate the technological aspects of virtual outreach in order to alleviate natural fears that some participants may have in joining a virtual workshop for the first time. When done properly, virtual programs are fun, enticing and interactive.

In the spring of 2014, Military Family Services Europe partnered with Military Family Resource Centre - National Capital Region to host training sessions on how to tailor a live program to a virtual audience. This pilot session included participants from Military Family Resource Centres across the country and around the world. Based on its success, we decided to combine the lessons learned and are now ready to offer this Virtual Outreach training to all Military Family Resource Centres over the next 18 months.

Starting in October, one staff from each Military Family Resource Centre and several representatives from Military Family Services have the opportunity to partake in virtual online training to learn the step-by-step processes of designing, producing and facilitating a virtual workshop. The Virtual Outreach training

- ing is a hands-on, step-by-step, 12-week series covering the beginner, intermediate and advanced levels of virtual classroom techniques. In this series, participants will:
- Practice using the tools to engage participants in a virtual classroom
  - Learn about best practices and troubleshooting tips
  - Understand the importance of adapting the workshops to include activities that address different participant learning styles
  - Learn about the importance of scripting in order to deliver quality virtual programming in a timely fashion
  - Network and share virtual presentation ideas
  - Present and produce virtual classroom ice-breakers and presentations

We look forward to working towards bringing Virtual Outreach to any CAF family, regardless of their posting location.

Correction

In The Aurora Newspaper November 10, 2014, the photographs of the Residential Housing Units which won prizes in the 14 Wing Greenwood Community Council's annual Halloween decorating contest were misidentified.

The photos indicated on Page 22 of that issue as the second prize winner (8 Rose) and first prize winner (1 Ivy) should be switched: 8 Rose was the actual first place winner.

The Aurora Newspaper apologizes for the error.

West: belief in uniform, excellence and people

Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

If the chief of Canada's defence system has operational excellence as one his top four priorities – if not the most important, he could see no better example of it than here at 14 Wing Greenwood.

Chief Warrant Officer Kevin West, chief warrant officer of the Canadian Armed Forces and CDS General Tom Lawson's right hand man, visited 14 Wing October 30, and gathered several hundred personnel for an afternoon town hall session at the Annapolis Mess.

"Thank you – for everything you do, day in and day out," West said. "I know we're short of people and cash, but we do it. Ten days to get Operation Impact out? Unbelievable."

West arrived just days after 14 Wing added two CP140M Aurora aircraft and 60 personnel to the international effort to subdue Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant aggression in Iraq. Across Canada and here at 14 Wing, military wheels were in high motion to deploy 600 CAF personnel and equipment from the Thanksgiving weekend to October 24's Aurora departure from Greenwood.

And the home base's Wing Chief Warrant Officer Pierrot Jetté echoed that thanks.

"All of you who stepped up to the plate and got our folks out the door – that was a hectic two weeks," Jetté said. "And, thanks to those here behind, picking up the work while all that happened. You never missed a beat."

West said operational excellence "is what we do," above all.

"Almost everyone in this room is touching that deployment, or a search and rescue mission.... It's a full-team effort."

Responding to the loss of two team members on Canadian soil earlier in October – Warrant Officer Patrice Vincent in Saint-Jean-sur-Richelieu, Quebec, and Corporal Nathan Cirillo in Ottawa, West said the entire CAF – and Canada – has had a tough time. Opinions about force protection measures, security and whether military uniforms should be worn off base by members have been non-stop since.

"What's the first rule of battle? Make yourself as small

Corporal Jaden Braniff receives a CWO Coin from Canadian Forces Chief Warrant Officer Kevin West during the town hall meeting October 30.

Leading Seaman E.Jorge, 14 Wing Imaging

as possible until you pinpoint the threat," West said. "We're still protecting Canadians – it's what we're paid to do – and, if we're a target, it's more than just us: it's our neighbours, the people at the bus stop with us....

"Canadian society believes in this uniform and, everywhere we go in uniform, it's operational excellence that gets us there."

West's own priorities align with the CDs', and also include the education and leadership development of those who bear arms and represent Canada at home and abroad, developing the non-commissioned members' ranks, communication and support for military veterans, injured members and their families. He spoke about the demand to change attitudes around mental health and suicide, and the CAF programs in place available to help. He also highlighted the importance of life-long fitness – physical and mental – in his role on the CAF pension advisory committee.

Établir des liens virtuels

L'entraide virtuelle est un outil qui sert à mettre en contact les familles des Forces armées canadiennes les unes avec les autres, à partager des renseignements précieux et à fournir un véhicule de réseautage à tous à partir du confort de leur foyer. Cet outil leur donne un accès pratique et amélioré à tous les programmes et services offerts aux familles des FAC peu importe leur situation géographique.

Les programmes virtuels ont été utilisés pendant les quatre dernières années en Europe, profitant à plus de 600 familles des FAC vivant dans 16 pays. Les divers programmes prennent la forme d'ateliers sur l'emploi ou les bourses d'étude, de programmes de poids-santé, de club de lecture virtuel et de groupes de discussion.

L'adaptation d'un programme conçu pour être livré en direct à un auditoire virtuel requiert de la créativité, de la patience et une bonne compréhension des styles d'apprentissage des participants. Les présentateurs doivent bien comprendre l'importance de créer des séances d'information intéressantes qui favorisent la collaboration et la participation. Chaque présentateur travaille avec un producteur qui l'aide à naviguer à travers les aspects techniques de l'entraide virtuelle en vue d'atténuer les craintes naturelles que certains participants peuvent avoir à l'idée de participer à un atelier virtuel pour la première fois. Lorsqu'ils sont bien conçus, les programmes virtuels sont amusants, intéressants et interactifs.

Au printemps de 2014, le

Centre de ressources pour les familles de militaires en Europe a établi un partenariat avec le Centre de ressources pour les familles de militaires de la région de la capitale nationale en vue d'organiser des séances de formation sur la manière d'adapter un programme conçu pour être livré en direct à un auditoire virtuel. Cette séance pilote a réuni des participants des centres de ressources pour les familles de militaires de partout au pays et dans le monde. Forts de ce succès, nous avons décidé de jumeler les leçons apprises et nous sommes maintenant prêts à offrir cette formation en entraide virtuelle à tous les centres de ressources pour les familles de militaires au cours des 18 prochains mois.

À partir d'octobre, un membre du personnel de chaque centre de ressource pour les familles de militaires ainsi que plusieurs représentants des Services aux familles de militaires auront la possibilité de participer à une formation virtuelle en ligne pour apprendre étape par étape les processus de conception, de production et de livraison d'un atelier virtuel. La formation en matière d'entraide virtuelle est une formation pratique de douze semaines, qui couvre étape par étape les niveaux débutant, intermédiaire et avancés des techniques associées aux cours virtuels. Dans le cadre de cette formation, les participants :

- se pratiqueront à utiliser les outils pour mobiliser les participants dans une classe virtuelle
- apprendront les meilleurs pratiques et des conseils de dépannage
- comprendront l'importance d'adapter les ateliers pour y inclure des activités qui tiennent compte des différents styles d'apprentissage des participants
- apprendront l'importance de préparer ses cours en vue d'être en mesure de livrer un programme virtuel de qualité au moment opportun

- communiqueront en réseau et partageront des idées d'exposés virtuels
- produiront et présenteront des techniques d'amorce et d'exposé en classe virtuelle

Nous sommes enthousiastes à l'idée d'offrir l'entraide virtuelle à toutes les familles des FAC, peu importe leur situation géographique.

Elle est une experte agréée en matière d'apprentissage synchrone et a de l'expérience dans l'élaboration, la présentation, l'enseignement et l'évaluation des programmes de sensibilisation virtuelle pour les services aux familles de militaires en Europe. Une partie du rôle de coordonnatrice des programmes virtuels consiste à former le personnel des centres de ressources pour les familles des militaires partout au Canada et à l'étranger sur la manière d'adapter un programme éducatif conçu pour être livré en direct à un auditoire virtuel.*

MPEU's McDonald wins Northern Lights Government Award

Captain Adrian Matheson, Maritime Proving and Evaluation Unit

The Northern Lights Awards were established to honour women who make a significant contribution to aviation or aerospace in Canada. Recently, 14 Wing's own Sandy McDonald, a contractor at Maritime Proving and Evaluation Unit, won one of just six such awards for 2014.

McDonald won in the government category, which covers aviation and aerospace services and programs provided through government departments, including the military. She earned the award based on her work at MPEU in recent years, but also based on her many contributions to the Royal Canadian Air Force during her 20-year career in the Regular Force.

McDonald joined the Canadian Armed Forces as an integral system (IS) technician in 1979 and saw the introduction of the CP140 Aurora. She has been a force in keeping the aircraft going throughout its lifetime. Through a series of great opportunities and promotions, she ascended to the rank of master warrant officer before retiring in 1999.

It is interesting to note the next stage of her military career would have taken her away not only from family in Nova Scotia, but also from the Aurora community. Some part of her decision to convert to supporting the Aurora in a civilian role, then, might well have been a decision not to retire from working with the Aurora. That tirelessness, in addition to the level of expertise she brought and continues to bring to her work, is certainly worthy of praise.

The wing, the service, the forces and the country should be proud of McDonald. MPEU is extremely happy and fortunate to have her in our midst.

Wayne Atwater was also presented with his 35-year Government of Canada service award. Finally, Richardson was able to surprise West with a certificate of appreciation for his involvement with the branch during his three-year tenure as MSS honorary colonel.

During the ceremony, the Richardson thanked those present for their involvement and professionalism in preparing the 14 Wing members who recently deployed in support of Operation Impact. The excellence displayed by the branch during this challenging period has once again proven our capacity to provide a servitium nulli secundus.

Music counts

A fantastic Battle of Britain Memorial Band Concert was enjoyed by a large crowd at the Annapolis Mess at 14 Wing Greenwood September 28. The Stadacona Band of the Royal Canadian Navy and the 14 Wing Greenwood Band and Pipes and Drums entertained with an assortment of period music, Scottish music and modern music. A special treat was a violin solo by Geneviève Béique, who played Schindler's List. Many thanks to all the musicians for volunteering their time on behalf of the Greenwood Military Aviation Museum, as concert proceeds will fund museum projects; and to concert guests, who supported the event. Warrant Officer Vincent Roy, 14 Wing bandmaster, recently presented museum society president Brian Handley with a $700 cheque from the event.

November 11, at the 11th hour, the silence magnifies the sincerity and deep thoughts of Annapolis Valley residents for our fallen soldiers and present veterans. “Lest We Forget” is the common theme in everyone’s heart, as civilians and uniformed members stand shoulder to shoulder at cenotaphs, Legions and cemeteries to mark this special day of remembrance.

“They shall grow not old
As we that are left grow old.
Age shall not weary them,
Nor the years condemn.

At the going down of the sun,
And in the morning,
We will remember them.”

Every single word and emotion in this poem was displayed by Valley residents: veterans, relatives, dignitaries, members of community clubs, local business owners, members of the Canadian

Armed Forces, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the Royal Canadian Legion, the Salvation Army and more paid their respects to veterans, past and present.

In 2014, the unexpected and tragic passings of Private Steven Allen, Corporal Nathan Cirillo, Warrant Officer Patrice Vincent and Lieutenant (Navy) Andrew

F. Webster are a reminder of the sacrifices our men and women in uniform make day after day to defend freedom and liberty. Their efforts have given faith and hope to the less fortunate, that a better tomorrow is not beyond reach. At the end of a 12-year mission in Afghanistan, we remember 158 soldiers who lost their lives protecting the vulnerable and bringing hope to Afghans. We celebrate the 100th anniversary of the start of Canada’s contribution to the First World War. Canada’s colours marked the sky, land and water in Europe with heroism and bravery. The battles of Somme, Vimy Ridge and Passchendaele proved to the world we are a nation that will sacrifice for peace. November 11, citizens wore poppies and laid wreaths on cenotaphs and in cemeteries in memory of the Canadian servicemen and women who have lost their lives domestically and abroad, symbols of the loss of the fallen and grief of those who remember.

Work behind the museum scenes

Malcolm Uhlman,
Greenwood Military Aviation Museum Society

If you are a frequent visitor to the Greenwood Military Aviation Museum, you have no doubt noticed several areas of volunteer activity, including in the air park and around interior displays. There are more ongoing projects you might not have been aware of, all being tackled by aircraft and historical aficionado volunteers.

In the museum's workshop, the nose section of the Bolingbroke is nearing completion. Most of the cockpit has been restored, with a flare gun installed and a new pilot's seat cushion manufactured. All windows are now in place, a manufactured forward escape hatch is in position and a recently-upholstered navigator's seat sits atop a new wood-paneled floor. A bomb sight is attached to the table and an Aldis signal lamp sits in a holder beneath. Also, the navigator's forward instrument panel is being constructed. Work on the centre wing box continues, with all top panels replaced; and the repaired inner flaps can now be installed. Next, the landing gear and engine cowlings will be completed, finishing off the wing box before engine installation. Fabric covering of the remanufactured skeletons of the rudder, both ailerons and both elevators will soon commence, as the fabric materials have arrived.

The Piasecki H44 helicopter restoration continues, as the duplicate US Army rear fuselage has been stripped of needed parts, including the rear bottom fairing, for use on the RCAF 592 fuselage. The messy work of cleaning and paint stripping these parts has begun. Paint stripping of the 592 blue and red fuselage is proving a challenge, as several layers of paint have to be laboriously removed using an eco-friendly stripper. Significant corrosion has been found in some areas, necessitating anti-corrosion measures or the removal and replacement of some panels.

The Dakota internal restoration is now nearing completion, as work continues on refurbishing the cargo area. When completed, this will allow visitors to see both the outside and the inside of this beautiful aircraft.

You will notice the Neptune in the air park is being scuffed and given a fresh coat of paint. The environmental elements in this area are very harsh, requiring special treatment to aircraft exteriors and interiors. To assist in the longevity of paint, clear coats - like that on the unmounted T33 - will become the norm in future and, to prevent mildew and mould, all aircraft will contain moisture-expelling systems.

The Lancaster reconfiguration project will see the entire aircraft cleaned, primed and repainted in Second World War camouflage paint, like the already-completed tail surfaces. The cooler weather has slowed further progress; the remainder will be done in the spring. Like the tail, the nose has been repainted, shortened to its Second World War configuration, and the proper nose gun turret is being manufactured from authentic images. The turret cage structure is complete, and work now concentrates on the internal structures of ammunition trays and gun supports. Plexiglas will be moulded for the turret windows and, below the turret, for a new nose bubble.

A new project that will soon commence is the restoration of a 1960s Mercury aircraft tug that once towed aircraft. Projects like this, when placed around air park aircraft, make for a diorama that enhances understanding of the total role of the wing.

Finally, a dynamic diorama has been completed inside the museum, depicting a Second World War 404 Squadron air raid on ships in a Norwegian fjord, with disastrous results: the event is known as Black Friday. The Argus Tactical Crew Procedure Trainer LED lighting project is progressing, bringing the display panels alive, and the museum's newly-redesigned webpage has been uploaded.

In addition to all this activity, the Flight Education volunteer team is organizing its 12th year of instructing Grade 6 science students from local schools in their course on aeronautics and flight. Over 5,000 students and teachers have already attended these programs.

CF being squashed – one pumpkin at a time!

November 8 marked not only the 4th Squash CF Pumpkin Launch, developed by 46-year-old CF-er Tim Vallillee in Kingston this year, but a celebration of the kick-off of two new successful Squash CF events in Ottawa and Moncton.

Despite the date change of the Kingston event due to weather, hundreds of supporters and volunteers came out and endured the cold weather to participate in this unique event, trying their luck hurling pumpkins for prizes with a 14-foot slingshot. The creative prize targets ranged from a minivan to a hockey net, and a pyramid of barrels to grocery carts. A smaller “Angry Birds”-style sling shot was available for kids ages seven and under to use.

Vallillee, Squash CF coordinator, was pleased at the turn out and happy to see return hurlers, as well as many new faces.

“When a local garage agreed to donate a junked car as a target, I knew it was going to add a new element to our event... and it did! Many people did their best to hit all of the targets, but they especially made an extra effort to hit the new-styled targets.”

Vallillee continues to praise the support of the local business community and invaluable volunteers.

“For a little community, the business sector really shows their hearts when I come knocking on their door and the volunteers continue to show up and do whatever is needed!”

This year has been a tremendous year for Cystic Fibrosis, with the discovery and implementation of a new drug called Kalydeco, which has changed the lives of those who benefit from it, Vallillee included.

This year’s Kingston event raised $7,500; with the two new events across Canada, the grand total is $10,500. Seeing the opportunity for this to become a national event that will support more CF patients has been Vallillee’s dream since its inception. Fun By The Numbers
Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

November 16 - November 22

ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20
Put your vitality and conspicuous nature to good use, Aries. Volunteer for a cause or donate your time to a worthy organization. Expect others to follow your lead.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21
Now is not the time to keep your feelings under wraps, Taurus. If you have an opinion, share it. Fortunately there are plenty of people willing to lend you an ear.

GEMINI - May 22/Jun 21
Being hot then cold is sometimes the Gemini way. Shifting feelings and being mercurial is just how you're made, and those who call you friend will have to adapt.

CANCER - Jun 22/Jul 22
Cancer, you are full of ideas this week and you can put them to good use by being as vocal as you can at work. Suggest a brainstorming session with other employees.

LEO - Jul 23/Aug 23
Leo, be genuine and speak from the heart this week. Your compassion for other people's feelings will help a dear friend who will be grateful and appreciative of your kindness.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Do not judge a book by its cover, Virgo. That person you have been checking out is entirely different from what you first imagined. It's time to delve deeper.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
The element of surprise can work well for your love life this week, Libra. Do something unexpected, and you and your significant other will be happy with the results.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Scorpio, make some changes to your fitness routine this week so you don't find yourself in a fitness funk. Switch the yoga mat for some cardio and vice versa.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Sagittarius, if you are feeling a bit bored by your relationship, take the initiative to stir things up a bit. Go to a concert or plan a short jaunt to a tropical locale.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Someone you know may have gotten in over his or her head and can probably use your help right now, Capricorn. Help this person come up with some solutions to the problem.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Aquarius, shake up your routine and you may be surprised by how much you enjoy the changes. In fact, you just may look at everything from an entirely new perspective.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20
Pisces, though you cannot afford that especially pricey treat you've had your eyes on, you can afford something a little more modest.

District Attorney Mara (Elise Choquette) and lawyer Fred Gayley (Jaden Braniff) debate Mr. Kringle's sanity.

Christmas miracle classic on Players' stage

Rehearsals are nearing their end and it will soon be show time for the Greenwood Players' production of the holiday classic, "Miracle on 34th Street."

The trial of Macy's Santa, Kris Kingle (portrayed by Simon Squire), is the focus of this seasonal drama: will the psychologist, Sawler, get his way and have Santa committed? Or, will Kringle's lawyer and friend, Fred Gayley (played by Jaden Braniff), save him? Then there's the potential love story of handsome Fred and Macy's personnel manager, Doris Walker (played by Myisha Pozzolo) and her daughter, young Susan (played by Bree Sauve): will Fred win Doris' troubled heart? Enjoy this traditional story, as New York has a most special Christmas season.

Director and set designer Jeffery Pocock has brought together a great, talented cast and has almost completed moulding the ensemble into a group presenting one of the best seasonal shows the Players have produced.

"Miracle on 34th Street" will take the Players' stage from November 25 through 29 in the AVM Morfee Centre, School Road, Greenwood. The curtain goes up at 7:30 p.m. sharp. Tickets are $8 each, available at both the Middleton and Kingston Pharmasaves; or, call 902-242-5015 to reserve.
