Boomer checks in on World Turtle Day 14 Wing, CARP survey wood turtles

May 23, World Turtle Day, the Clean Annapolis River Project (CARP), organized a watershed-wide wood turtle survey, including 14 Wing Greenwood properties, to promote awareness of turtles and tortoises - and encourage actions to help them survive.

Of concern is the wood turtle, a medium-sized freshwater turtle listed as "threatened" both federally and provincially. It is protected under the Species at Risk Act and Nova Scotia Endangered Species Act. Even low mortality rates in adults can have impacts: it takes about 15 years for a wood turtle to reach maturity and breed. Although individuals may and stream habitats, road live for more than 30 years in the wild, the chance of a hatchling living to adult life is slim. If you find a turtle crossing the road, help it in the direction it was moving - if it is safe for you to do so: do not stop your car on a busy road to move a turtle. If a turtle is sighted on any 14 Wing after a brief data recording by Greenwood property, please report the sighting to Wing Environment technologist Alan Ng at alan.ng@forces. gc.ca or 902-840-0181. If a wood turtle is sighted off 14 Wing Greenwood properties, please contact CARP, carp@ annapolisriver.ca or 1-888-547-4344.

Did you know?

In some areas, the wood turtle is commonly called "red legs" because the back of its legs vary in colour, from bright orange to red. The underside of the neck and tail are also orange to red. The head, the top and sides of the neck. the tail, and the front of the legs are dark grey.

The pyramid-like raised shields of the top of the shell (carapace) are brown, with yellow and black streaks. The bottom of the shell (plastron) is yellow, with an irregular black blotch on the outside corner of each plate (scute). The female's plastron is flat, while the male's is prominently concave.

Adult males are generally larger than adult females. They have a broader head and a longer and thicker tail. The top of the male's shell ranges from 19.7 to 21.6 centimetres, while the female's top shell ranges from 16.5 to 19.7 centimetres.

The Pathfinder March Team is ready to embark on the 74th Pathfinder March in the United Kingdom. The annual march commemorates the founding of the Pathfinder Force, a dedicated elite force that led the way during the strategic bombing campaign of the Second World War. The march will be held June 18 and follows a 74-kilometre route that links all four of the operational air bases used by the Pathfinder Force. 405 (Long Range Patrol) Squadron, based at 14 Wing Greenwood, is the only Royal Canadian Air Force squadron to hold the Pathfinder designation; and a team of eight 405 Eagles will be participating in this year's march, supported by Padre Captain Ranald MacDonald and 413 (Transport and Rescue) Squadron search and rescue technician Master Corporal Cochrane, in an operation code named Op Sore Talons. Team members include, across the front, from left: 405 Squadron Commanding Officer Lieutenant-Colonel Brendan Cook, Captain Bryan Morrison, Sergeant Margaret (Maggie) Jones. In the back, from left, are MacDonald, Captain Paul Ward, Master Corporal Anthony Spittachine and Sergeant Fred Couturier.

Summer "started" on the May 24 weekend at the Lake Pleasant Campground, as children themselves declared the new playground open — no official ribbon cutting required. Most seasonal campers were out and, added to RV, tent and cabin rentals, the campground came to life. Camping season is underway! Check out www.lakepleasant.ca for details on campground availability and special events.

UCA highlights two of Kings County's greatest assets - the natural beauty of the Minas Basin Valley and the abun-live in the area. The exhibit runs to October 31 and 16 installations may be found across the county.

This innovative, seasonal project brings visual art out of institutions and galleries and into the natural environment, Carr and Miyoshi Kondo, as making it accessible to everyone. Art may be found in farmers' fields, on walking trails Ericka Walker, Barbara Lounand along the Bay of Fundy shore. This year's exhibit will feature talented artists from Kings County, including Holly well as renowned artists from across the province, including der and Andrew Maize.

"Our goal each year is to present an ever increasing cultural experience," says artistic director Terry Drahos. "This year, many of the artists address issues around environment and land usage. UCA 2016 is both entertaining and thought provoking."

A guidebook, found in galinformation centres and tourist destinations across the province; will help you find the installations. At each site there are geocaches, a sign describ- commonart.com.

ing the work and a guest book so you can give feedback.

An important part of UCA is art education. There will be a summer camp with Drahos at the Harriet Irving Botanical Gardens, artist talks in July with Walker, Lounder and Jessica Winton; a day-long guided tour August 6, as well as workshops throughout the summer and fall with UCA artists Sanna Rahola, Carr and Alan Bateman.

Walk to make Cystic Fibrosis history a success

May 29 marked the fifth annual Walk for Cystic Fibrosis in Kingston, hosted by the South West Nova and Valley Chapter of CF Canada.

Chapter president Agatha Bourassa was "thrilled to have such a great turn out with over 130 walkers representing the Annapolis Valley area."

Students from three schools participated, including Kingston Elementary, West Kings and École Rosedes-Vents; all with great representation and energetic students.

Fun By The Numbers

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
