Civilian workforce 'bedrock' of base business

Sara Keddy,
14 Wing Public Affairs

14 Wing Commander Colonel Pat Thauberger pressed pause during the trailer for the upcoming "Spiderman" movie, indicating things "might become a lot less interesting," but he wanted to thank public service employees before they settled into the feature show at the Zedex Theatre, a base National Public Service Week special event.

"The mission we have here at 14 Wing Greenwood is extremely important – search and rescue is out there on a daily basis, saving Canadian lives; our Auroras are deployed overseas on Operation Impact, where we are making a difference in fighting Daesh and on the international stage. Some of you have contributed directly to that capability and, here at home, you keep the base running."

Thauberger acknowledged the "bedrock" the civilian workforce provides to all work at Greenwood.

"We're here and then gone, but you are the continuity that keeps things running, and that's not lost upon me as the wing commander, or on wing leadership. They echo my appreciation."

And he also understands the civilian workforce isn't working on his behalf, but to its own high standard of professionalism.

"You bring that to work, every day. Our motto, 'Operate as one,' is not just for the military here – it's everyone: our regular and reserve members, contractors, civilians. All of us are part of what makes our wing and community vibrant."

Airmen remembered

The British Commonwealth War Graves plot within the Old Holy Trinity Church cemetery in Middleton honours those who lost their lives while serving during the Second World War at RAF Station Greenwood. Through those years, there were 28 airplane crashes out of Greenwood, resulting in 70 deaths: 27 of these men are buried at this site. Since 1943, a "Decoration of War Graves" ceremony is conducted, now organized by Royal Canadian Legion Branch #1 of Middleton and CFB Greenwood, including placement of a single rose on each grave followed by a wreath laying service.

Pink for pizzazz

Thauberger adds traditional rose planting to base commanders’ garden

Sara Keddy,
14 Wing Public Affairs

The golden shovel, the Princess Anne rose and the fresh smell of turned earth marked one of the first occasions Colonel Pat Thauberger had to consider the imminent end of his command of 14 Wing Greenwood.

Thauberger chose a pink rose, which 14 Wing horticulturalist Zac Gubbins narrowed down to the old English Princess Anne.

“Look – it’s ‘low maintenance,’” Mrs. Thauberger said, tucking the tag away as a memento.

Thauberger wielded the shovel on his own, as several command team members and support staff watched.

“Why? You’re trying to see if I know how to work a shovel? I do shovel a lot of stuff!”

He was pleased with his rose bush planting, adding the pink adds “a little flare and pizzazz” to the garden.

Gubbins spends time every season ensuring the rose garden is well-maintained and all the plants are healthy. He has replaced a number of the original plantings in recent years, all still marked with their respective commanders’ plaque.

14 Wing Commander Colonel Pat Thauberger and his wife, Kathy, were assisted June 14 by wing horticulturalist Zac Gubbins in planting Thauberger’s contribution to the commanders’ rose garden. Thauberger’s tenure as commander began in July 2015 and will wrap with his change of commander ceremony July 20.

“It can be hard to maintain,” Gubbins said, “but I love it.”

Day-to-day SAR calls

June 11, a Greenwood CC130 Hercules was tasked just after midnight, and airborne just after 2 a.m.; in response to an EPRB transmitting approximately 350 nautical miles east of St. John’s, Newfoundland and Labrador. The boat was reported as a 10-metre yacht, the Illuminia 12. There were a couple vessels in the area, with some weather conditions - winds at 25 with seven-metre seas – to contend with. The Hercules returned to Greenwood just after 2 p.m.

June 15, just before 7 a.m., JRCC tasked a 413 Squadron Cormorant on a cruise ship medevac, about 250 nautical miles south of Halifax, heading towards Halifax at 17 knots. As the Cormorant and ship approached, the distance closed to 200 nautical miles. A Hercules aircraft was also tasked out of St. John’s to provide top cover. The medevac was a success, with the Cormorant returning to Greenwood around 12:30 p.m.

June 18, Prince Edward Island officials requested the support of 413 Squadron’s Cormorant helicopter to help in locating an individual in distress near Beach Point, PEI, around 6:40 p.m.

The local Coast Guard, Coast Guard Auxiliary and RCMP were also involved. The Cormorant was stood down and returned home just after 8 p.m.

June 21, JRCC tasked a 14 Wing Hercules at 4:40 p.m. to check on an overdue Cessna 182 with floats, north of Sept-Îles. Three people were reported on board. The Hercules left just after 5 p.m., and was successful in making contact with the Cessna: all were safe. The Herucles returned to Greenwood just after 8 p.m.

Painting celebrates Aurora pilot’s aviation career of firsts

Sara Keddy,
14 Wing Public Affairs

Captain Mary Cameron-Kelly takes any opportunity to fly away, but there was no longer any avoiding the public recognition of her Royal Canadian Armed Forces career June 15.

The Greenwood Art Association unveiled its latest donation to the Greenwood Military Aviation Museum, a painting of Cameron-Kelly: the first female CP140 Aurora pilot, with a number of significant milestones achieved in the over 25 years since, including being the first female Aurora crew commander to fly on operation.

“This hasn’t been easy,” said art association president Brian Handley in front of a full house of family, friends and aviation peers gathered under the wings of a heritage restoration Anson in the museum.

“Mary is slippery – we thought we had this teed up in April, but all of a sudden she had to go to San Diego on training. Just one of those trips someone has to do!” And, coordinating the event with 14 Wing Greenwood Commander Colonel Pat Thauberger’s schedule was another logistic to overcome: “Colonel Thauberger wanted to be here – he has flown with and has a long association with Mary.”

Thaubeger helped Cameron-Kelly lift the RCAF tartan fabric from the painting, created by Christine Handley.

“I’m not sure what it says when someone who started flying after me is in the museum before me!” he said.

“But, it is significant what this represents: you’re a woman and, in the air force, we’re actively trying to promote the involvement of women in viable and rewarding careers. Look at the leadership of Mary, and her example, day in, day out. That is worth celebrating.”

She shared some stories of flying and missions adventures, including camel spiders in camp, “creeping” up on other squadron aircraft, playing jokes and teaming up with the best souk shopper on the crew when overseas.

“I have made milestones for the next individuals, sure, and I really appreciate this recognition. There is now someone coming behind us.”

Captain Mary Cameron-Kelly, right, is now recognized in the Greenwood Art Association’s collection, held at the Greenwood Military Aviation Museum, as the Royal Canadian Armed Forces’ first female CP140 Aurora pilot. 14 Wing Greenwood Commander Colonel Pat Thauberger assisted with the unveiling June 15.

RCAF network, future extends into role of honorary colonels

Honorary Colonel Dan Hennessey, 14 Construction Engineering Squadron

Colonel Colin Keiver, 8 Wing Trenton commander, opened the base gates and welcomed the 2017 Honorary Colonels Conference to CFB Trenton May 31 to June 2. This year's conference was a tremendous mix of briefings, networking and tours of the many strategic functional areas of Trenton.

Close to 60 honorary colonels from across Canada used the opening meet and greet May 31 to rekindle old friendships and establish new ones with those who had assumed their role since the last conference in Borden. Royal Canadian Air Force Commander Lieutenant-General Mike Hood gave all a warm welcome, and presented a brief overview of the next few days' schedule.

The theme of the conference was Air Mobility and Search and Rescue, and attendees would receive hands-on and up close exposure to personnel, equipment and systems used to deploy the Canadian Armed Forces in response to national and international crises. Hood emphasized the RCAF continues to serve as the 'guarantor of Canadian sovereignty.

Day two found attendees at the Canadian Force Aerospace Warfare Centre, which is referred to as the "engine" of Air Force transformation and the centre of excellence for air power development. The morning consisted of briefings from Hood who, as always, emphasized the importance of the honorary colonel program to the Air Force moving forward and stressed that each of those here were chosen wisely for their skill set, and that should never be taken for granted. Hood also delivered a comprehensive report on the direction of the RCAF, with a focus on what will occur between today and 2030. He spoke about the release of the new Defence Policy, which will see a significant investment that will ensure the CAF remains a flexible, responsive, combat capable force, prepared to deploy anywhere in the world, anytime. The new Defence Policy will also care for personnel, as everyone in uniform is a vital component of CAF success.

Major General Christian Dr-ouin, commander 1 Canadian Air Division/Canadian NORAD Region, delivered a comprehensive overview of RCAF operations across Canada and around the world, dealing with operational readiness and the personnel needed to complete those missions - whether it is search and rescue or NORAD commitments. The presentation ended with the message of "Mission First...People Always."

Brigadier-General Dave Cochrane, commander 2 Canadian Air Division, spoke about the ability to deliver advanced aerospace knowledge and leading-edge training through a responsive, innovative and effect-based methodology to achieve maximum training effectiveness for the RCAF. He spoke of the importance of both 1 CAD and 2 CAD maintaining a strong relationship for a strong result.

14 Wing Greenwood fielded a number of its honorary colonels at a Royal Canadian Air Force conference at CFB Trenton May 31 to June 2, including 404 (Long Range Patrol and Training) Squadron Honorary Colonel Bert Campbell, 14 Wing Greenwood Honorary Colonel Terry Kelly, 405 (Long Range Patrol) Squadron Honorary Colonel Eric Wood and 14 Construction Engineering Squadron Honorary Colonel Dan Hennessey.

Attendees also received briefings from the Fighter Capability Office, Air Force Development and the newest addition to the RCAF family, Space (the new frontier for us).

Following a morning of briefings, the honorary colonels were divided, with half the group boarding a CH47 Chinook while the other half hitched a ride on a C130J Hercules for a flight to Mount-ainview for parachuting demonstrations by 8ACCS. They saw one of their own, Honorary Colonel Jeff Stibbard of 19 Wing Comox, take to the sky in a tandem jump landing.

Back in the air, the honorary colonels headed to 6 Hangar to head inside the massive Globemaster aircraft, along with a number of other static displays, including a SAR demo, explosives ordinance disposal, MAJAID and the "Bird Man."

The day ended with a traditional Mess dinner at the Officers Mess, where the discussions certainly revolved around the whirlwind day we had just experienced, but also looking ahead to the last day's activities.

The final day turned out to be a mix of past and present. The day started out with a tour of AMTC, where we were greeted by the commanding officer of 426 Transport Training Squadron, a unit which carries out between 80 and 125 serials of 25 different courses every year to generate operationally effective air mobility aircrew and technicians. The squadron also has dedicated personnel assigned to provide operational test and evaluation and system support to air mobility fleets, and graduates approximately 420 personnel annually. The state-of-the-art facility offers real-world scenarios, and the equipment housed here gives those attending training realistic experiences.

We had the great pleasure of touring the National Air Force Museum of Canada, which honours the heritage of the Royal Canadian Air Force. This museum displays aviation history full of valour and tradition through a wide variety of exhibits, interactive activities and displays, including the fully-restored World War II Halifax Bomber (the only one of its kind in the world). Included in the 16-acre airpark are both historic and active aircraft on display for an up-close and personal aviation experience. Also in the airpark are some 11,000 Ad Astra Stones and 35 monuments that pay tribute to past and current members of the RCAF. The Halifax Bomber served as the perfect back drop for the 2017 Honorary Colonel Conference official photo.

The last day also included closing briefings at 8 Wing headquarters from David Gignas, Canadian Forces Morale and Welfare Services, on fundraising initiatives, and no conference would be complete without a historical fix provided by the always engaging Honorary Colonel Stephane Guevremont.

Hood closed the conference, again stressing the importance of the honorary colonel program and the contributions of time, talents and personal resources that each appointee brings as they promoting their unit.

In 2010, she deployed to Camp Mirage in the United Arab Emirates for six months in support of Tactical Air Operations conducted by Canadians, Dutch, American, Australian and New Zealand air forces as part of re-supply, personnel movement, repatriation and aerial patrol in the Middle East. In 2013, Ashley completed her Meteorological Forecasting Course and became an instructor in Gagetown for junior personnel completing their QL4. During this time, Ashley had the opportunity to do a television interview with The Weather Network and complete the first few levels of second language training with the Canadian Armed Forces.

Since her return to 14 Wing Greenwood in July of 2016, she has been in charge of the Wing Weather Office. She recently volunteered, as a secondary duty, to be the Unit Public Affairs Representative for Wing Operations as past experience with the media has been very positive.

Ashley has two children - a five-year-old son and two-year-old daughter, who live with her in their family home in Kingston. Her spouse is also a sergeant with the Royal Canadian Artillery, posted at 5 Canadian Forces Support Base Gagetown.

Read your way through summer fun and games

What do reading books, Canada’s 150th birthday and Monopoly have in common? Come to the 14 Wing Greenwood Library and check it out! READINGOPOLY is the theme of our summer reading program. On our board, discover exciting places and properties, from all across Canada, to “purchase” as you complete reading challenge and collect points. Pass “Go” and receive two points. Don’t roll three consecutive doubles or you will end up in “Library Jail,” and will have to pay points to get out (if you do not have a “Get Out of Jail Card”)! Land on “Chance” or “Community Chest” and you may answer a Canadian trivia question, advance to a particular property or Go to Jail! For every point acquired by August 30, your name will be entered to win your choice of a girl’s or boy’s 24-inch Shimano six-speed bike. Incentive prizes will be given out all summer, so come in often! READINGOPOLY is open to children ages six and up, and their parents must have a current 14 Wing Greenwood Library membership. To sign up for this fun summer event and full instructions, please see Judy or Sophie at the 14 Wing library!

Club volunteer night great success

Jill Jackson,
Community Recreation
Manager
Personnel Support
Program

Thanks to all who attended the 14 Wing Greenwood Community Recreation Club Night June 16. Over 50 guests attended the celebration, as Community Recreation recognized wing clubs, volunteers, coaches, executive and members who give so much of themselves year round to benefit the 14 Wing and wider community. As part of the celebration, three special recognitions were announced. Crewe Macdonald, of the Greenwood Minor Hockey Club, was awarded youth volunteer of the year. Mark OKeefe, also from the Greenwood Minor Hockey Club, was named adult volunteer of the year. Club of the year was the Greenwood Players. All three awards are well deserved, and a great reflection of the quality of all 14 Wing clubs and volunteers.

Community Recreation boasts over 177 programs with 3,500 participants, 15 recreation clubs with membership of over 1,600 and hosts six major events with over 4,000 participants. For a small community, everyone works hard at providing the best quality programs and services in the Canadian Armed Forces. The heart and dedication of staff and volunteers make this community second to none. Thanks again to the volunteer community for all you do.

The Greenwood Minor Hockey Club’s Mark OKeefe, left, was named adult volunteer of the year and Crewe Macdonald youth volunteer of the year at the 14 Wing Greenwood Community Recreation Club Night June 16.

Captain Boriana Stefanov, Physiotherapy Officer, 26 Canadian Forces Health Services Centre

26 Canadian Forces Health Services Centre recently had the pleasure of hosting a visit from the command team of 4 Health Services Group (4 HSG), Colonel S. Plourde and Chief Warrant Officer M. Wilson. After a meeting with the clinic leadership, Plourde and Wilson held a town hall to address employees' and members' questions and brief staff on recent and upcoming changes within Health Services.

During the town hall, Plourde presented the commanding officer of 26 CF H Svcs C, Major Jacques Ricard, with the CJOC Commander's Commendation for his exemplary efforts as the Health Services Unit DCO and Ops O during his deployment on OP Provision, in early 2016.

The visit was also the perfect opportunity for the 4 HSG commander to promote then-Clinic Warrant Officer Mike Jerrott to lieutenant. Jerrott's commissioning is part of the ongoing restructuring of the medical technician trade, which will result in all physician's assistants commissioning to officers, in a separate MOSID, within the next two years. This reorganization of the trade will also allow med techs who do not wish to pursue the PA career path to progress as senior non-commissioned officers, while remaining in a leadership and mentoring role.

~ Obituary ~

SMITH, Dylan James,
Kingston, NS

Dylan James Smith of Kingston, NS, died unexpectedly of organ failure on June 13, 2017 at the Valley Regional Hospital in Kentville. He was only 25 years old. Dylan had a heart of gold and would give the shirt off his back if someone needed it. He loved and was deeply loved by his family and friends. Dylan enjoyed the outdoors, had an affinity for animals, and loved working with his hands. Dylan was also a talented and avid guitarist. Dylan is survived by his parents, Geri and Brian, of Kingston, NS; his sister, Shelby, of Halifax; his maternal grandfather, Pius, of Fox Cove-Mortier, NL; his girlfriend, Alicia McDonald, and her son, Evan, of Hantsport, NS; and many aunts, uncles, and cousins. Maternal grandmother, Jean, and paternal grandparents, Irene and Douglas Smith, predeceased Dylan and were waiting with open arms when he arrived in heaven. A memorial service, led by Minister Perry Cooper, took place on Friday, June 16, 2017 at 2:00 p.m. at the Middleton Funeral Home 398 Main St. 902-825-3448. The family asks that you consider donations to the Canadian Liver Foundation or the Kidney Foundation of Canada. Dylan's loss is tragic, most especially because of all the roads he never got to travel. Online guestbook may be signed by visiting: www.middletonfuneralhome.com

Fun By The Numbers
Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Guiding awards represent depth of ‘girl greatness’ in Berwick

June 10, a large group of Nova Scotia Girl Guides was honoured at the provincial youth recognition awards ceremony at Spatz Theatre in Halifax.

This annual event presents the Lady Baden Powell Award, the Canada Cord, the Chief Commissioner's Gold Award and several scholarships and bursaries to dozens of Girl Guides, recognizing “Girl Greatness.” Special guests were His Honour Brigadier-General J.J. Grant, CMM, ONS, CD, (Ret'd), Lieutenant Governor of Nova Scotia; Her Honour Joan Grant; and Girl Guides of Nova Scotia Provincial Commissioner Lorena Fortune.

Recipients of the Lady Baden Powell Award included 1st Berwick Girl Guides Cassie Landsburg and Jalyin Watson. This is the final award in this level of Girl Guides, a three-year program for youth ages nine to 12, and the first for which Girl Guides are recognized at the provincial level. Leaders are Tracy Michon and Lisa Landsburg.

Recipients of the Canada Cord included Sophie Keddy, Grace Bernasky, Grace Hall, Lillian Thomas and Ava Rogers. All are members of 1st Berwick Pathfinders, a three-year program for youth ages 12 to 15. The Canada Cord counts as a high school credit in Nova Scotia. Keddy is the youth alternate on a Nova Scotia-organized travel opportunity to Switzerland later this summer, while both she and first-year Pathfinder Mollie Campbell were selected to take part in an Experiences Canada youth forum, Canada 150&Me, June 24 to July 3 in Ottawa. Leaders are Sara Keddy, Heather Cross and Tracey Rogers.

Recipients of the Chief Commissioner's Gold Award, the highest award Girl Guides of Canada offers youth members, included Norah Bernasky, Cassidy Joudrey and Maisie Campbell. All are 1st Berwick Rangers, a three-year program for youth ages 15 to 18. The Chief Commissioner's Gold Award counts as a high school credit in Nova Scotia. Joudrey travelled to Australia in 2016 on a Girl Guides of Canada-sponsored travel opportunity, while Campbell is looking forward to a two-week trip to Switzerland in August and September, as part of a 10-member Nova Scotia Girl Guides-sponsored trip. Campbell also brought thanks on behalf of Nova Scotia Rangers at the awards ceremony June 10. All were presented with their Youth Commitment Award pin, representing completion of every youth member year available to them as members through Sparks, Brownies, Guides, Pathfinders and Rangers. Leaders are Sara Keddy, Heather Cross and Tracey Rogers.

Seventeen members of 1st Berwick Pathfinders and Rangers – 15 youth, plus Keddy and Rogers as leaders – are participating in an Experiences Canada travel exchange this summer. The Nova Scotia group hosts Girl Guides from Kingston Ontario, July 20 to 28 and are planning a few days at Hardwood Lake Girl Guide Camp, sea kayaking and the Fisheries Museum in Lunenburg, tours of the Legislature and Citadel Hill in Halifax, plus a day at Pier 21; returning to spend a few days out of Berwick visiting Morden, Blomidon and the Northville Farm Heritage Centre. They invite the community join them for a Canada-themed campfire in Centennial Park, Union Street, Berwick; at 6:30 p.m. July 26. August 1 to 8, the Berwick group travels first to Ottawa, for a tour of Parliament Hill, the Supreme Courts and several museums and the National War Memorial, plus voyageur canoeing on the Rideau Canal; before heading to Kingston to

WK waste not

West King District High School's Options and Opportunities class recently completed a project to improve the school's waste diversion program. Peter Morse and Ria Dixon's class, along with assistance from custodian Adam Taylor, designed and constructed four mobile waste sorting stations. The goal was to improve sorting in the cafeteria and at special events.
