Op Impact extended

March 2019 new horizon for RCAF role against Daesh

14 Wing Greenwood CC140 Aurora aircraft and support air and ground crews will continue their role manning the Royal Canadian Air Force's commitment to Operation Impact.

National Defence Minister Harjit S. Sajjan and Foreign Affairs Minister Chrystia Freeland June 29 announced Canada's renewed military contribution to the global coalition against Daesh, until March 31, 2019. The Canadian commitment was set to end June 30, and was reduced from two Aurora to one earlier in the spring. As of June 25, Air Task Force-Iraq had flown 2,965 sorties, including 809 reconnaissance missions by CP140 Aurora aircraft; Operation Impact began in October 2014.

The coalition has made significant progress in the fight against Daesh in Mosul. This renewed contribution continues the existing advise and assist mission. The Canadian Armed Forces will deploy capabilities as needs arise, including the authority to provide training for new potential partners within the Iraqi security forces and a CC130J Hercules aircraft for tactical airlift.

Canada will also contribute existing capabilities, including aerial refueling and surveillance capabilities, tactical helicopters, training, advising and assisting Iraqi security forces; capacity building in Jordan and Lebanon, a Role 2 medical facility; and support to the global coalition with highly-skilled personnel, including intelligence support. This extension includes the authority to deploy up to 850 military personnel, and Canada is providing $371.4 million over two years to support the cost of this renewed contribution.

“I am extremely proud of the accomplishments made by our women and men in the Canadian Armed Forces in the global coalition against Daesh,” said General Jonathan Vance, Chief of the Defence Staff. “As the situation on the ground evolves, we must continually re-evaluate how Canada’s military can be most effective in support of the coalition. I am confident these additional authorities will help us be more agile and flexible as we respond to the needs of our allies and partners.”

415 Squadron crew wins Arctic Maritime Patrol Challenge

A 415 (Long Range Patrol Force Development) Squadron crew from 14 Wing Greenwood deployed to Andoya, Norway June 19 to 25 to take part in a Maritime Patrol Aircraft (MPA) Symposium, hosted by 333 Squadron Royal Norwegian Air Force as part of its 75th anniversary celebrations.

The symposium brought together crews from 21F Squadron French Air Force, VP-16 United States Navy, 333 Squadron and 415 Squadron to discuss issues relevant to the MPA community, with each nation providing an update on fleet capabilities and current operations. The symposium's overarching theme was search and rescue (SAR), and each nation also included in its presentation details of a SAR incident and lessons identified as a consequence. The 415 Squadron brief covered the Royal Western Yacht Club Trans-Atlantic Race SAR incident and 14 Wing's involvement following the receipt of multiple distress calls through June 9 and 10.

The symposium also involved a flying competition, which set out to challenge crews' skill in the areas of SAR and anti-submarine warfare (ASW). The best crew would be crowned Arctic MPA Champions and awarded a trophy. The crews were evaluated in five areas, including the ability to make the briefed take-off time and reach the area entry point via an en route waypoint on time. They were tested on the total time taken from the entry point to locate an Expendable Mobile Acoustic Training Target given a Datum position, such that it transmitted between a pair of buoys 2,000 yards apart, prior to proceeding to the area exit point – within 30 minutes, with just 10 sonobuoys. Crews had to locate a group of “survivors,” with an emphasis on the accuracy of the positional data passed for their location and number of survivors. Finally, the challenge was to come in as the crew with the shortest overall flight time.

The 415 Squadron crew were successfully airborne within 12 seconds of their allotted time: unfortunately, an equipment malfunction as their aircraft lined up for take-off prevented them from achieving the exact time. Once airborne, the crew hit the required area entry point time to the second, and an efficient descent into the area permitted immediate deployment of sonobuoys once in the datum. Acoustic contact was gained on the very first sonobuoy deployed, and further tracking sonobuoys were dropped. Once the crew was content the target would transit through the buoy pattern, and as there was no requirement to conduct an attack, the crew members expedited their departure, climbing so sonobuoys could still be monitored in transit.

They were the only crew to consider doing this. The whole evolution took only 13 minutes. Once through the exit point, the crew saw the target transit through their buoy pattern, meeting the test's objectives, before descended again to start the SAR scenario. From the brief, survivors were assessed to have made it to the shoreline between Andoya and Nordmela. A visual and electro-optic search was commenced, and the 415 Squadron crew spotted the survivors on the first pass; only two of the four competing crews achieved this. The crew orbited to confirm the exact survivor location, their number and condition; before departing for Andoya - landing after 58 minutes.

Once all crews had returned, a nail-biting wait commenced: the USN P-8 also landed with a total time of 58 minutes, and the Norwegian P-3 in 57 minutes. The French Atlantique 2 landed after 1 hour 10 minutes due to a delay in finding the survivors. The 415 Squadron crew's fears were unfounded, as subsequent results put them in top spot in three of the five areas and second fastest overall.

Consequently, 415 Squadron was the winner by a clear margin, crowned the 2017 Arctic MPA Champions.

‘Eagle eye’ ensures search success

June 22, Sergeant André Hotton received the 413 (Transport and Rescue) Squadron Spotter Trophy from Commanding Officer Lieutenant-Colonel James Marshall.

May 27, the crew of Rescue 335 was tasked to search for two missing fisherman north of Ile d'Anticosti, Quebec. Following a one-hour transit to the last known location of the two fishermen and their 18-foot fishing boat, the crew conducted its preliminary search of the Jacques-Cartier Strait to no avail. Moving forward with a more expansive search, the crew began an expanding search pattern at 500 feet above the water. From this altitude, the crew estimated the sea state at 5/ 6 on the Beaufort scale, equating to winds at 35 kilometres per hour with nine-to 13-foot waves, extensive white foam crests and sea spray.

It was during this search when Hotton spotted a small white object between the white-capped swells.

He called the aircraft back around to try and spot it again. Following the same line, Hotton managed to pick up the object once again and attempted to point it out to the rest of the crew. Being as the object was very small, the same colour as the waves by which it was surrounded and slightly submerged below the water's surface, it was difficult to pinpoint. The crew elected to pass over the object at a lower altitude in an attempt to positively identify the object.

During a 300-foot pass at a slower airspeed, Hotton was able to 100 per cent confirm the object was, indeed, an overturned 18-foot boat. The position was passed on to the Halifax Joint Rescue Coordination Centre, and the Coast Guard was redirected to the search object.

On this day, Hotton's technical skills, vast search experience and keen “eagle-eyes” were directly responsible for the success of the mission.

Sergeant André Hotton, right, received the 413 (Transport and Rescue) Squadron Spotter Trophy from Commanding Officer Lieutenant-Colonel James Marshall.

58th Kingston Steer BBQ & Village Fair

The oldest continuously running steer BBQ in the world • Credit Union Centre grounds • 1490 Westwood Avenue, Kingston

58th Kingston Steer BBQ & Village Fair July 8

“Well now, you understand, somebody has to pay for that steer, but who?”

These - or words to that effect - were uttered by the late O.H. Armstrong some 58 years ago, ushering in the beginning of the Kingston Steer BBQ and Village Fair, now the oldest continuous running whole steer BBQ in North America.

Approximately 10 men from the Kingston and District Board of Trade each pledged $50 to cover the cost of the steer, food and all the fixins’ for the event, first held July 9, 1960. They had to overcome one gigantic hurdle: no one had experience in barbecuing a whole steer! Enquiries were made far and wide as to how to proceed, but no replies covered steers cooked on a spit. By then, the famous BBQ founders were determined to do it. The very first Steer BBQ ended up a resounding success and, from that day on, the Steer BBQ has become a much-anticipated weekend of family-friendly fun in the Valley.

Over the years, many events and activities have been held and, although some have disappeared, the same community spirit endures. The Steer BBQ itself has remained the same, with additional roasts being cooked and the original brick BBQ replaced by a large, all-metal BBQ oven. For many years, a team of Kingston Lions known as “the keepers of the beef” have been entrusted with the 18-hour, overnight cooking process. For the last 19 years, the steer has been generously provided by Fraser’s Pro Home Centre. This year’s event will begin July 7, as the steer is spitted, wrapped and coated with spices - a process that attracts a bunch of interested bystanders. Then, using a tractor with a set of long fork tongs, the steer is placed into the large cooking oven, where the long and slow cooking begins. The tender and juicy steer is ready to be served by noon hour July 8, as a cold plate meal and “burger bits:” finely chopped beef on a bun with delicious gravy.

The Kingston Steer BBQ and Village Fair is jointly organized by Royal Canadian Legion Branch 098, the Kingston Lions and the Village of Kingston. The superb co-operation, dedication and hard work put in by these pillar community organizations has been instrumental in the success of the entire event over the years. Chairmanship is rotated each year, and all funds raised are shared among each organization’s activities in the community.

Beyond the steer itself, a variety of activities take place during the weekend. Friday evening the well-known Sparky Five-Kilometre Fun Run, organized by the Kingston Fire Department takes place, followed by food, bounce kingdom, face painting, beer garden and entertainment. Saturday morning, the fire department hosts the traditional family pancake breakfast, followed by a parade that starts at 10:45 a.m. from Old Brook Road, goes along Main Street and ends up on Westwood Street at the Credit Union Centre grounds, where all remaining activities take place.

Saturday, there will be a craft fair, different activities for children, live stage entertainment and a beer garden. Making a debut will be the Domino Man with two topplings July 8 at 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. Back again, is the running of the Millville Community Hall Motorcycle Photo Hunt. The official opening of the Harvest Moon Trail takes place in front of the village’s signature “steer statue,” in front of Superstore on Main Street at 2 p.m. The Legion will host a closing dance at 9 p.m. for everyone 19-plus.

An event of this proportion could not take place without the support of local businesses, volunteers and communities in the area, for which organizers are forever grateful. Just the fact this event has grown over the last 58 years is proof of the sense of community pride of the people in Kingston and surrounding communities.

Harvest Moon Trailway open to explore this summer

After years of planning, collaboration, consultations and trail building, the Annapolis Valley Trails Coalition (AVTC) is proud to present the Harvest Moon Trailway, a high-quality trail experience united under one name to increase trail use and experience in the Valley region.

The 117-kilometre Harvest Moon Trailway traverses the Annapolis Valley through beautiful towns along the former DAR rail line, connecting points between the UNESCO World Heritage Site of Grand Pré and the historic seaside town of Annapolis Royal.

“The Harvest Moon Trailway is a safe, multi-use active transportation route that passes through picturesque communities offering access to farm markets, wineries, craft beverage producers, restaurants, U-picks, accommodations and other businesses,” says Beth Pattillo, chair of the Annapolis Valley Trails Coalition. “The trailway aims to increase trail activity, promote active living and grow economic opportunities for communities along the corridor.”

The Harvest Moon Trailway is the result of a partnership of 10 community and municipal trail groups, funds provided from both municipal and provincial governments and, most importantly, the work of many volunteers throughout the Valley.

The Harvest Moon Trailway is currently complete from Wolfville to Tupperville, with the Tupperville to Annapolis Royal section set to open July 8 as part of the 58th Kingston Steer BBQ and Village Fair, in front of the village’s signature “steer statue,” Main Street; at 2 p.m.. The remaining section, between Wolfville and Grand Pré, will open August 19.

Wings mark career achievement

Sara Keddy,
14 Wing Public Affairs

Recognizing “consummate knowledge” of what it takes to fly, two 14 Wing Greenwood men were presented their wings and admitted to the ranks of flight engineer June 21.

Corporal Shawn Malone and Corporal Dave Bettie recently completed Multi-Mission Operational Aircrew Training (MOAT) on the CP140 Aurora aircraft, and 14 Wing Commander Colonel Pat Thauberger was pleased to present them with their wings insignia.

“Why do we give wings? It’s important to reflect on what they are, back to the very dawn of flight; that there was a need to recognize a unique skills set and the people who were taking their lives in their hands in very small airplanes – just to get airborne,” Thauberger said. “It was creating tactics and operating on the fly – and that is relevant today, as we fly the Block III and get ready for Block IV. It falls on the shoulders of junior air crew, and you’re part of that.

“We put a lot of trust and faith in you to have consummate knowledge of what it takes to fly; a crew relies on each other, a lot falls on the shoulders of flight engineers, and you’ve proven you can do it.”

Malone joined the Lorne Scots Infantry Reserve in Ontario in 1999, and transferred to become an aviations systems technician in 2007. In 2015, he applied for flight engineer training and was accepted in 2016. He is now posted back to 405 Squadron and will continue his career as a flight engineer.

Bettie joined the Armoured Reserve Regiment of the 8th Canadian Hussars in New Brunswick in 2000. In 2007, he transferred to the air force as an avionics technician. In 2016, he was accepted for the MOAT course, and is now posted to 407 Squadron in Comox.

Sara Keddy, 14 Wing Public Affairs

The “strength behind the uniform” are families, and Colonel Pat Thauberger knows the 14 Wing Greenwood Military Family resource Centre is the “bedrock” for families themselves.

“We have an incredibly strong MFRC here, but it doesn’t happen by accident,” he said at the MFRC’s annual meeting June 21. “All the goodwill and motivated volunteers can’t accomplish much without the coordination and dedication to pull it all together” found in the volunteer members that make up the board of directors, and the centre’s staff.

Thauberger said the pace of the wing’s operational business, combined with its setting in a rural community with sometimes limited resources and programs, means the MFRC fills an important role.

“We rely on our MFRC, more than a lot of bases have to; and I know with the pressures on our families, we couldn’t do what we do without the MFRC.”

Board chair Beth MacLean says the strong combination

Several Greenwood Military Family Resource Centre staff were recognized June 21 with service awards: from left, Rachel O’Rielley, five years; Brenda Virtue-Ellis, 10 years; and Mary Wredenhagen, 10 years.

Professional fees were close to $12,000 under budget. Salaries totaled $969,601. There was no restitution paid through 2016/2017 on a theft of MFRC $403,340 dating to 2011 charges; the individual did pay back $173,149 in 2015/2016.

Show off your stuff at Wing Welcome Rexpo

The annual 14 Wing Greenwood Wing Welcome Rexpo is set for September 9, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., at the Fitness & Sports Centre.

Rexpo is a great way to showcase your organization’s programs and services, and have people register for fall and winter activities. Several hundred people visit the 100-plus displays, featuring 14 Wing Greenwood’s own range of recreation clubs and a variety of community organizations, wing sections and local businesses. Many exhibitors offer raffle prizes and coupons, so it’s a great chance to find out who offers what in the local area - and maybe get lucky. The main Wing Welcome grand prize raffle drop-off is also set up at this event, so make sure you enter to win.

There is limited display space at Rexpo, so register early. Businesses will pay for display space; non-profit and base organizations are free. To register, contact Jill Jackson, community recreation manager, at 902-765-1494 local 5331 or Jill. Jackson@forces.gc.ca; or Michelle Smith, community recreation office clerk, at 902-765-1494 local 5341 or michelle.smith@forces.gc.ca.

Fun By The Numbers
Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

horoscopes

July 2 - July 8

ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20
Aries, you might be ready to take the next step on a project at work, but others aren't in line just yet. Give them time to catch up to speed, encouraging them along the way.
TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21
You are not one to take "no" for an answer when you have made up your mind. Taurus. If that occurs this week, continue to stand your ground on an important issue.
GEMINI - May 22/June 21
Incomplete tasks will slow you down, Gemini. Before you take on any more projects, finish up ones that are thus far incomplete. Otherwise, you may find it difficult to focus.
CANCER - Jun 22/Jul 22
Cancer, even if your goals are set you must let others know of your intentions and how you plan to spend your time. This way they will know the general time frame.
LEO - Jul 23/Aug 23
Leo, your leadership skills are top notch generally, and this week you won't allow a little disorganization to throw you off your game. It's only temporary.
VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Conflicted emotions are sending out mixed signals to everyone who crosses your path, Virgo. As long as you don't let them get in the way of work, you should be fine.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Libra, close friends may be just the medicine you need right now. Clear your schedule and prioritize catching up with friends in the days ahead. You will be glad you did.
SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Scorpio, look to the future rather than spend time dwelling on the past. There is much to be excited by with regard to the future, so start planning now.
SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Sagittarius, focus on your immediate surroundings and what needs to get done right away. Let future plans take a back seat for the moment. You will get to them soon enough.
CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Capricorn, your notion of success today may be different tomorrow. So maintain an open mind in all situations. New experiences may sway your opinion.
AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
A new relationship is taking off. Aquarius. Allow things to unfold organically and make the most of opportunities to try new things outside of your comfort zone.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20
Pisces, others look to you for guidance and you do not disappoint. Make time for yourself and put some of your own advice to good use.

Maps, video links bring museum displays to the world

Greenwood Military Aviation Museum Society chairman Ian Patrick recently presented two museum society Appreciation Awards to George Saulnier and Luke Uhlman.

Saulnier, museum society member Dave Saulnier's brother, compiled and produced an historical video of Base Greenwood's inception and the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. He lives and works in Arizona. Find Saulnier's video at youtu.be/BmhxUlneool.

Uhlman appropriated the research of Chris Larson and Russell Keddy on aircraft accidents and incidents during the war years here at Base

Greenwood, and created an interactive, on-line map showing location, type of aircraft, aircrew members involved and nationalities. Uhlman is museum society member Malcolm Uhlman's son and lives and works in Bangor. Find Uhlman's map at arcgis.com/apps/OnePane/basicviewer/index.html?appid=efc9cbd9219741b79a2a3b24a8f484ad.

Patrick stressed, because of these initiatives, the GMAM is not just a dust-collecting assortment of artefacts, but a growing collection of these types of projects, making the GMAM always changing and always vibrant.

From right to left are Luke Uhlman, Ian Patrick and George Saulnier. Although they live away, Uhlman and Saulnier contribute to the diversity of the museum and receive Appreciation Awards from Ian Patrick, Greenwood Military Aviation Museum Society chairman.
