A 404 (Long Range Patrol and Training) Squadron CP140 Aurora aircraft flies near Andøya, Norway, during Exercise Neptune Trident October 30.

Leading Seaman D. Bard

Major Lara Jennings &
Captain David Bernatchez,
404 (Long Range Patrol and Training)
Squadron

A 404 (Long Range Patrol and Training) Squadron crew recently deployed to Andøya, Norway, in support of the Royal Canadian Navy's HMCS Montréal on Exercise Neptune Trident 17, a deployment that included the ship's participation in multiple international exercises in Northern Europe.

This iteration of JOLTEX 17, held October 27 through November 2, had a joint targeting scenario, including Army, Navy and Air Force elements conducting Harpoon missile firing procedures. The scenario was facilitated by Andøya Test Centre staff and vessels on a local firing range in Northern Norway.

Canadian Armed Forces' (CAF) participants included HMCS Montréal, 404 Squadron's CP140 Aurora from 14 Wing Greenwood and a team of forward air controllers from the Canadian Special Operations Regiment.

The 404 Squadron crew was led by Major Alex Gignac. While Greenwood enjoyed an extended autumn, the CP140 crew battled early morning snowstorms and winter conditions to get the aircraft airborne and on station, on time, to support the shoot. The crew then conducted two sorties in support of the exercise, as HMCS Montréal prepared to launch two Harpoon missiles at a target in the firing range. October 31, months of planning and training for the Harpoon shoot were validated when HMCS Montréal launched its first missile of the day, which accurately reached its target.

This exercise marks the first time a Royal Canadian Navy (RCN) East Coast ship has fired Harpoon missiles since Halifax Class frigates were commissioned in the 1990s, and the RCN's sec-

Aviator jailed for drug, weapons offences

A court martial took place November 1 at 14 Wing Greenwood, as Aviator N.E.B. Burrell from 14 Mission Support Squadron/Wing Construction Engineering was tried for a series of drug and weapons charges.

Burrell was sentenced on three charges, for which he entered guilty pleas; he pleaded not guilty to four charges. Mitigating factors included the accused's guilty pleas; aggravating factors included the firearms charges and the fact Burrell was trafficking to members of the Canadian Armed Forces. The joint recommendation for sentence on the three charges was five months incarceration at the North East Correctional Facility, but no prohibition on weapons. He was found not guilty

Burrell was charged August 14, 2016, after Military Police arrested him May 14 following the seizure of a half-kilogram of marijuana, packing materials, production equipment and a non-service issued firearm from his home. He faced seven charges, all punishable under Section 130 of the National Defence Act, including production of a substance, contrary to Section 7(2)(a.1) of the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act; trafficking, contrary to Section 5(1) of the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act; possession for the purpose of traffickall three elements of the CAF. Joint targeting is a relatively new skill set for the RCN, and this exercise served as the proving grounds for the process and its associated tactics. The CP140 Aurora provided the independent

Ice time

October 20, the members of 14 Construction Engineering Squadron took to the ice for a learn-to-sledge-hockey session in recognition of Canadian Armed Forces National Sports Day. This was a community-based opportunity, with Kevin Benjamin, general manager of the Lunenburg County Lifestyle Centre, supplying the ice time, the local major midget South Shore Mustangs hockey team offering up protective equipment and local sledge hockey guru Dave Waters on hand with on-ice instruction. The members went through warm up drills and end-to-end races, culminating with a fast-paced game. All participants agreed: at the end of the hour, they shared a new respect for sledge hockey and the players that take to the ice to play this incredibly demanding sport.

intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance component required to enable the targeting portion of the launch; and, additionally, the CP140's sensor and communication suites were put to the test as they recorded the live launch and impact of the Harpoon shoot. The aircraft also enabled a joint link between the ocean-based ship and land-based Army observers, using the aircraft's communication relay function to facilitate seamless voice communications. As expected, weather made the firing challenging, with crews having to fight through thick fog banks, alternating rain, snow and hail showers; as well as icing conditions. This example of joint functionality and teamwork exemplifies the 14 Wing motto, "Operate as One," and expands it beyond the wing to encompass all three elements of the CAF.

14 AMS marks pride, recognition of mission support record

Master Corporal
Pamela Evans

Originally known as the Base Aircraft Maintenance and Engineering Organization (BAMEO) Branch, 14 Air Maintenance Squadron (AMS) stood up in 1993 from the Air Command Bases Wing organizational concept. While the role and structure of 14 AMS has changed over the quarter of a century since it came into being, its commitment to the 14 Wing Greenwood's mission remains at the forefront, fulfilling an important role within 14 Wing and the long range patrol (LRP) community locally and abroad.

The squadron is uniquely identified by its heraldic crest and individual motto. Having a close connection to the surrounding community, the crest includes an apple blossom to represent squadron ties to the Annapolis Valley, with a worker bee representing the hard working 14 AMS airmen and airwomen. Reflecting the squadron's commitment to excellence and perfection, the squadron's motto for nearly a decade has been: "Dedicated, Driven, and Ready."

With time comes change and celebration. 14 AMS Commanding Officer Lieutenant-Colonel Amy Tsai-Lamoureux believes the squadron is at a juncture within the CP140 fleet, with a need to get back to its roots and focus on the basics: meeting commitments in both a timely and professional manner to support the wing's mission. It's that simple. She believes Lieutenant-Colonel Amy Tsai-Lamoureux, commanding officer 14 Air Maintenance Squadron speaks to the personnel of 14 AMS about the newly unveiled mission and vision statements.

Steady calls keep SAR crews busy

October 24, the Halifax Joint Rescue Coordination Centre dispatched a 413 (Transport and Rescue) Squadron Cormorant helicopter just before 7 p.m. to assist a vessel taking on water south of Saint Pierre and Miquelon. There were four or five individuals aboard. Four vessels in the vicinity and Provincial Airlines were also assisting in this task. Rescue 913 was stood down about 10:30 p.m., and returned to 14 Wing Greenwood for continued crew night training. October 25, Hercules Rescue 344 launched from Greenwood at 8:30 a.m. to conduct an EPRB search in Gaspé, Quebec.

October 31, just after 8 a.m., a 413 Squadron Cormorant left Greenwood in response to a possible beacon going off in the Bay of Fundy. The response crew was heading out on night training, so spent four hours on the beacon call before standing down their search.

November 1, around 9:30 p.m. Cormorant R913 was tasked in response to a medevac in the vicinity of Sept-Îles. It was stood down within a half-hour, as it was determined a Griffon could complete the tasking, and returned to Greenwood just after 11 p.m.

November 7, a CC130 Hercules from 413 Squadron was tasked just after 8 p.m. while airborne to respond to a declared mayday from the Carmel 3, 70 nautical miles southwest of Yarmouth. Three people were reported onboard the vessel, which had lost power and had close-to-dead batteries. A Cormorant helicopter crew was also called out, airborne just after 9 p.m. The Hercules dropped a radio to establish communications, and a Coast Guard vessel from Clarks Harbour was en route to provide a tow. Assets were stood down by JRCC just after 10 p.m., with the Hercules returning to night-flying duties and the Cormorant returning to 14 Wing.

November 8, just after 5 p.m., a Greenwood Hercules left for Goose Bay to pick up a woman in premature labour and transport her to St. John's.

Lieutenant-Colonel Amy Tsai-Lamoureux (right), commanding officer of 14 Air Maintenance Squadron, and Chief Warrant Officer Roddy Chittick unveil 14 AMS' new mission and vision statements to the squadron during the squadron's professional development day.

Master Corporal R. Wilson, 14 Wing Imaging

14 AMS will prove, through its actions and commitment to excellence, it is second to none, with personnel standing behind the aircraft and services provided to the fleet and the wing.

October 31, during 14 AMS' professional development day, Tsai-Lamoureux presented squadron members with new mission and vision statements, explaining the rationale for change. The squadron must demonstrate high quality and pride in workmanship; 14 AMS is at the forefront of CP140 Aurora operations at a time when aircraft are in high demand. With the renewed focus on pride, a revised motto – "Proud – Dedicated – Driven - Ready!" - also builds on tradition and excellence, inspiring members to be better.

With an all-encompassing 25-year history of 14 AMS, it is time to express its pride and accomplishments through celebration. May 31, 2018, 14 AMS will mark that 25 years with a semi-formal gala, open to 14 AMS members, spouses and squadron alumni.

The Honourable Harjit Sajjan, Canada's Minister of National Defence, will again host.

"The Halifax International Security Forum's annual agenda is specifically designed to advance the cause of democracies and democrats around the world," said Peter Van Praagh, president of Halifax International Security Forum. "Every day, the leaders who attend Halifax deal with the world as it is. But, as a group, we aim to secure our values.

"Just 25 years after victory in the Cold War, our community of democracies finds itself today in the uncomfortable position of searching for our shared purpose."

The opening panel November 17, "Peace? Prosperity? Principle? Securing What Purpose?," probes the underlying question whose answer everyone at Halifax is searching for. Topics continue through the forum, including making peace with women, rebuilding the Middle East, climate change, space defence issues, nuclear and cyber concerns, international relations, conflict solutions, artificial intelligence, natural disaster response and energy challenges.

Mental health support, one snack at a time

Sara Keddy,
Managing editor

A granola bar, coffee or cookie adds up, as the Kingston/ Greenwood Mental Health Association recently discovered.

Daisy Dwyer, the chairwoman of the association, was invited to the 14 Wing Greenwood Learning and Career Centre October 31 to accept a $300 cheque from centre staff. The money was raised from the LCC's mini-canteen, which offers people attending its regular classes and workshops the chance to grab a snack or drink on breaks.

"People come in and support the canteen, and anything above our costs goes to charity," said Kristen Warner, the LCC's director. Funds accumulate over a few months and, every once in awhile, the LCC makes a contribution to a local organization. There are notes on the wall above the canteen shelf from the food bank, Chrysalis House, the SPCA and other groups who have all benefited from the canteen's proceeds.

Having recently completed a training to teach a new program, "Mental Health in the Workplace," Warner and her team thought the most recent contribution would be best matched with a community-based mental health initiative.

Dwyer says the LCC's contribution will support the association's mental health first aid trainings offered spring and fall, and the group's planned May session, "Community Conversations," when representatives of many community outreach programs are invited to connect on common mental health-related issues.

Kingston/ Greenwood Mental Health Association chairwoman Daisy Dwyer, left, and Learning and Career Centre director Kristen Warner take stock of the fundraising results of the LCC's mini-canteen: a $300 donation to the KGMHA's community mental health programs.

Halifax Rifles prepare for domestic response

The Halifax Rifles (Royal Canadian Armoured Corps) held Exercise Tempest Spur 2017 October 20 to 22 in Kings County.

The Army Reserve regiment is based in Halifax and at 5th Canadian Division Support Base Detachment

Aldershot, and will accept the Canadian Army's new tactical armoured patrol vehicle (TAPV) platform in early 2018.

The Rifles are an armoured reconnaissance unit and, like many other units in the Army Reserve, may be tasked with supporting provincial authorities in the event of a domestic emergency. Tempest Spur was a troop-level exercise to confirm soldiers' skills within a fictional scenario, where a hurricane had damaged roads and infrastructure in the area. Members of the unit carried out route reconnaissance and security tasks in the Kentville, Centreville and Baxter's Harbour areas.

"Exercises like these are designed to prepare our soldiers for tasks that we can be asked to do at any time on short notice, while at the same time confirming those basic skills that we would use in any scenario," says Captain Jake Rideout, the unit's operations officer.

Despite its name, the unit has ties to the Annapolis Valley, where several of its members live and work. The delivery of the TAPV platform, to be housed at Detachment Aldershot, will augment its current fleet of G-Wagen reconnaissance vehicles. To operate the new fleet, the unit is setting up a satellite sub-unit at Detachment Aldershot and actively recruiting soldiers in the Valley. Members of the Army Reserve serve part-time, receive competitive pay and benefits, undergo training and develop skills that translate to their civilian lives and have opportunities for full-time employment and advancement. Members can receive up to $2,000 per year in tuition reimbursement for accredited college and university programs and can be employed full-time in the summer. For information on joining the Army Reserve in the Valley, contact Sergeant Cameron Morse at cameron.morse@forces.gc.ca.

McKennitt releases Vimy tribute song

A song about love, dedication and family sacrifice has been released for Remembrance Day by award-winning Canadian recording artist Loreena McKennitt.

The single, “Breaking of the Sword,” was inspired during McKennitt’s participation in April at the Canadian National Vimy Memorial for the 100th anniversary of the historic Battle of Vimy Ridge, where she experienced a palpable sense of profound loss. During the ceremony, she performed “Dante’s Prayer” from her 1997 album, “The Book of Secrets.”

“I feel the sentiment of this song is both timeless and universal,” says McKennitt, who, in this new, original piece, evokes both her role as an artist and as honorary colonel of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The music weaves together the military family and Canadian communities, with contributions from the Ottawa-based Central Band of the Canadian Armed Forces and the 90-voice Stratford Concert Choir, located in McKennitt’s home base of Stratford, Ontario, and led by director Ian Sadler.

The title of the song is borrowed from a group of statues on the Vimy Memorial called the Defenders, particularly those known as the Breaking of the Sword. The Canadian National Vimy Memorial consists of 20 symbolic statues, the largest of which is known as Canada Bereft. Sometimes called Mother Canada, it personifies a young nation mourning its dead.

“When I looked at Canada Bereft with her head bowed in grief, I found it so moving and powerful,” says McKennitt. “When you lose a child, that unimaginable loss and longing is felt the world over. It transcends borders and cultures and time itself.

McKennitt’s song is written in the first person from a mother’s perspective. It describes the sunny April morning the child is born and how he grows up to work in the fields and stables alongside her. The war then calls him away, where he is killed in battle.

“From a personal standpoint, the closest I have come to witnessing this loss from the immediate family’s experience has been when I attended two repatriation ceremonies,” reflects McKennitt. “The last time the families had seen their loved ones was when they were departing from home. Now, they were coming back in a casket. Witnessing the spouses and children during their moments of dealing with this reality is something I will never forget. “In my 11 years of being an honorary colonel, I have come to realize there are at least three kinds of families experiencing loss in times of sacrifice – the immediate family, the military family and the communities where our fallen have lived. I have tried to represent each of them in my arrangement, symbolically drawing upon the Central Band of the Canadian Armed Forces, as well as our local community concert choir.”

“In the contemporary sense, families of those who serve continue to make huge compromises and sacrifices to support their loved ones, regardless of their mission or task – from combat to humanitarian to search-and-rescue missions; to the demands of daily training and operations. We, as citizens, owe those who serve, as well as their families; our immense gratitude and, at the very least, the act of remembrance.”

“Breaking of the Sword” is available digitally via iTunes, Amazon Music Unlimited, Apple Music, Spotify, Google Play Music and more. One hundred per cent of her Canadian proceeds will be donated to the Support Our Troops Fund, which provides financial support and assistance to Canadian Armed Forces members, veterans and their respective families.

Kingston United scores with ‘We’ll Meet Again’ dinner theatre

Joanne Light

“Oh! I have slipped the surly bonds of earth and danced the skies on laughter-silvered wings... The high untrespassed sanctity of space, Put out my hand, and touched the face of God.”

So wrote the gifted poet, 19-year-old pilot John Gillespie Magee, Jr., in the oft-remembered 1917 poem, “High Flight.” And so recited Marg Weeks, a member of the Kingston United Church, which presented a recent evening of choral and solo song, drama and instrumental accompaniment, narrated by the musical theatre’s creator and producer, Loretta Piper (with Kelly Acker Roy and Marg Weeks).

J. Light

Piper began telling the audience that the evening would evoke what war was like for those back home: contributing to the war effort, enduring the absence of loved ones and bearing the unbearable heartache when they didn’t come back.

Johnny and Mary, played by Jackie and Ron Clements, were two young lovers caught up in wartime separation. Their story was punctuated by a feast of wartime favourite songs and skits, delivered by the aforementioned and Gerald Bent, Stewart Roy, Mark Rutherford, Diane Cushing, Pearl Drolet, Joy Vidito, Linda Winton and David Skidmore. The evening’s keystone were three fabulous instrumentalists: Marion Krisk on piano, George Piper on saxophone and Andrew Morash on bass.

The players did double duty, also serving the meal to approximately 129 guests, including around 30 Red Hatters.

The cast put in a gargantuan effort, with the two months’ of practising countless hours per week; well worth it, as all enjoyed the moving and merry machinations of the story interspersed with humorous “live commercials” promoting the shows’ dinner sponsors for the three-course meal, prepared by the Kingston Lions’ Club.

This fourth and only “dinner theatre” incarnation of this production included milestones: Diane Cushing’s first time on a stage, and the curtain call in a long history of such dinner theatres, including “Clay Days” and “the Roaring Twenties,” produced by Loretta Piper, now retiring from creative and community involvement in dinner theatre productions.

Art attempts to define Canadian ties

Sara Keddy,
14 Wing Public Affairs

Michael de Adder knows people want to talk about being Canadian, but what does that mean? He’s put a few “definitions” together in his latest book of editorial cartoons, “You Might be from Canada if....”

From a food map detailing cod tongues, donairs and bea-vertails to iconic hockey and winter moments, Canadians do share many of the same experiences, de Adder says. And if they don’t, as in his panel on “You Might be Canadian if...” that depicts an immigrant family proudly holding their new Canadian flag, “they see that I tried to create a patchwork or mosaic of Canada.

“I spent about nine months doing the work, and I hope people get out of it what I’ve learned and remembered and put out there,” the Nova Scotian artists says.

“I always observe in my job, and there are always a lot of ideas percolating. This book, I opened my eyes a lot wider to see what people were doing.”

Being obsessed with the Weather Channel or complain- ing about too much snow or too much heat, being able to name all “The Beachcombers” and next to none of the “fathers” of Canadian confederation seems typical of Canadians. But the book also spends several pan- els highlighting the successes –and tragedies –of our military heritage.

“The ‘Highway of Heroes’ during Afghanistan – that was very Canadian, a very grass- roots movement,” says de Adder. “I get teary-eyed every time I see the pictures of the fire truck on the overpass with all the guys on top. And those guys are firefighters who also do a hard job – they have the same calling as our military service men and women.”

De Adder spends two fac- ing pages depicting Canadian losses at Dieppe, but also the successes of Normandy.

“What’s more Canadian than the people who wear our military uniform? I had family members who served – there are three relatives named on the Vimy Ridge Memorial, and I’ve been there to see them – an emotional moment. I’ve been a Mess member in Halifax and listened to my father-in-law and his friends’ stories. In the book, I wanted to hit upon the military, and the veterans – es- pecially from the Second World

Michael de Adder answers the question “You Might be from Canada if...”

Submitted
War. I wanted to honour them before they’re gone.”
While de Adder is an editorial cartoonist and everything is open for commentary, he feels there is a distinction between military members’ actions and the situations government places them in he can make in his work.

“There are not many places our service people want to go, but they want to serve. Our military is composed of people who live down the street, the same as us – getting a coffee or driving the kids to soccer. In Halifax especially, their pres- ence is underlined, and it’s just normal. They’re everyday folks, and that’s evident to them – sometimes not so much to us.”

A hilarious rendition of “Post Horn Gallop” was per- formed by Petty Officer Second Class Raef Wilson from the Stadacona Band. Wilson came to the stage dressed as the janitor, and proceeded to perform this brilliant solo on a trumpet mouth-piece, some garden hose and a funnel!

Service, sound combine in evening of music

October 29, musicians from the 14 Wing and the Bridgewater Fire Department bands combined in “Mutual Aid,” presenting a community concert at Central Church in Lunenburg.

The evening was in support of the Canadian Fallen Fire- fighters Foundation, featuring the 14 Wing Band and Bridge- water Fire Department Band, with special guests including four members of the Royal Canadian Navy’s Stadacona Band and 14 Wing Pipe Major Sergeant Andrew Bruce.

Powerful renditions of “Gandalf,” from De Meij’s “Lord of the Rings Sympho- ny;” as well as “Spirit of the Sequoia,” by Philip Sparke, were highlights in the 14 Wing Band’s portion of the concert. A bell ceremony to honour fallen firefighters was also included in evening, with significant meaning to mem- bers of the Bridgewater Fire Department Band and audi- ence members affiliated with the fire service. In the past, as firefighters came on duty, a bell signalled the beginning of their shift. Throughout the day and night, alarms were signalled by the ringing of a bell, summoning firefighters to fight fires and to put their lives in jeopardy for the good of their fellow citizens. When the alarm came to an end, a bell signalled the completion of the call.

The fire service still uses the bell ceremonially to hon- our and to remember the fallen. At this evening’s con- cert, the band and local fire service remembered Hon- orary Chief William Rhoden- izer (Bridgewater Fire Depart- ment) and Captain Jeffrey Lilly (Lunenburg and District Fire Department): “their tasks being completed, their duties well done, their final call being answered; the bell now sounds three times, and then three more times, and then a final three times in memory and tribute to their lives and service.”

The concert raised $750 in a freewill offering made by concert goers which will be donated to the Canadian Fallen Fire Fighters Foundation.

horoscopes

November 12 - November 18
ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20
An emotional encounter that you have with someone close to you gives you clarity and peace of mind, Aries. This is the catalyst for making personal changes that improve your life.
TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21
Taurus, it's good to want to help others. But do not let someone take advantage of your generosity. Be as accommodating as you can and then communicate your feelings.
GEMINI - May 22/Jun 21
Gemini, spend time fixing up your home this week or doing things that are geared around family. This is a great time for parents and children or even extended family to get together.
CANCER - Jun 22/Jul 22
Hoping and wishing for something without taking any action will not lead to satisfaction, Cancer. Figure out what you hope to achieve and then work toward that goal.
LEO - Jul 23/Aug 23
Optimism abounds this week, Leo. You are ready to tackle any project big or small. Even though you may feel like you can take on the world, enlist a few helpers.
VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Safeguard your personal information, Virgo, because not everyone you meet is on the up and up. Be cautious without being suspicious and things will turn out fine.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Libra, you can make a big difference by contributing time, money or both. Don't hesitate to pitch in. Celebrate all that you have accomplished with someone you love.
SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Scorpio, this week you can dedicate your time to something that will educate you further on an area of concentration you want to pursue. It may be a charitable cause.
SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Your great imagination often causes you to be the life of any gathering, Sagittarius. This week you may have to let others' creativity take center stage.
CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Changes, particularly early in the week, will do you good, Capricorn. Rearrange the furniture or even try out a new hairstyle for some new perspective.
AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Aquarius, take some time to do something with your partner, who can probably use your help right now. This can change your life emotionally and financially.
PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20
Pisces, remain tight-lipped about a positive development. You won't have to stay silent forever, but wait a little longer to share the news.

Leaf fans

It was the Bruins against the Leafs (or leaves) in the Old Tremont Cemetery October 28; well, at least it was “Team Grampy,” helping with the work. Dan Muise and grandsons Ben and Matthew Wade were among those helping with leaf raking in the Old Tremont Cemetery. The many hands did a fine job - and volunteers even had fun doing it! It has been four years since Tremont community members took on the care of the cemeteries from the former Baptist church, and the sites reflect this renewed effort. One more community work day is scheduled in the New Tremont Cemetery (754 Tremont Mountain Road) November 18, starting at 9 a.m. Everyone is welcome to come lend a hand. For more info, call 902 765-2642.

Vote 'Freedom to Grow' for FSTRA programs

The Free Spirit Therapeutic Riding Association (FSTRA) was recently selected as a top-10 finalist for a grant through the iA Financial Group across Canada. FSTRA was the only project selected in Atlantic Canada.

The organization who receives the most votes before November 30 will win $125,000 towards their proposed project. If FSTRA is selected, the money will build an indoor riding arena.

The Free Spirit Therapeutic Riding Association provides therapeutic riding lessons to individuals of all ages (3+) that present with a wide range of exceptionalities and mental health concerns. Over the course of the past five years, FSTRA has grown by 888 per cent! In order for this growth to continue, an indoor riding arena is necessary. This addition will increase sustainability of the charity, eliminate wait lists and will allow FSTRA to expand and develop new programming, such as a hippotherapy program.

Anyone with an email address is able to vote once at 125.ia.ca/community.

Ten West Kings students have been working throughout the year to raise funds for their service trip to the Dominican Republic in March, where they will build a home for a family in need.

Submitted

Building a dream, building a home

A group of 10 dedicated and compassionate Grade 12 students from West Kings District High School are heading to the Dominican Republic in March 2018 to build a home for a family in need, and build relationships with the community near Sosua, DR. This area was hit especially hard during the most recent hurricane season.

The group first met in May, and has been busy fundraising ever since. You may have seen them around with their turquoise T-shirts at several barbecues, bagging groceries, helping to serve and cook dinners, holding yard sales, helping with the Greenwood air show, hosting a dinner at the Aylesford Lions' hall and collecting bottles.

The youth are having another fundraiser at Christ Church Hall in Berwick November, serving chilli and cupcakes just before the Berwick Santa Claus parade, from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. All events have depended upon freewill offerings, and members are touched by people's generosity to date.

The group is working with Servant's Heart Ministries, a registered Canadian charity with three main functions: to build and repair houses for those in extreme need, render medical assistance through clinics and provide educational opportunities for children who would not otherwise be able to attend a public school. The West Kings-based Dream Team 2018 is hoping to raise over $20,000 to cover the cost of building their house and team fees. If you would like to donate, a charitable receipt will be sent to you by Servant's Hears Ministries at the end of the year. Please email dteam2k18@gmail.com or call Penny Clarke (902-538-0244) or Tracy Colborne Jackman (902-804-0205) for information. The group accepts e-transfers as well.

A great big thank you to all the businesses and community members who have supported the project so far.
