March 1 session outlines new Transition Group services

Transition affects every Canadian Armed Forces member and their family. Are members and families prepared? Does everyone know what assistance and services are available? Do you know how the Canadian Armed Forces Transition Group can help?

14 Wing Greenwood members and their families are invited to an all-ranks March 1 briefing, to be held at the Annapolis Mess between 1:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. There will be time for questions of subject matter experts following the information session.

Local Transition Group services for members, veterans and their families may be found at the 14 Wing Greenwood main gates, in the former Military Police quarters.

CP140M Block IV conversion training launches

Major Dan Arsenaault, Block IV Implementation Flight Commander, 404 (Long Range Patrol and Training) Squadron

The team supporting the Block IV implementation recently completed the prototype training on the systems that comprise the final block of the Aurora Incremental Modernization Project (AIMP). The training, January 21 to 25, included 14 Wing Greenwood members from 404 (Long Range Patrol and Training) Squadron, 415 (Long Range Patrol Force Development) Squadron, 434 (Operational Test & Evaluation) Squadron Long Range Patrol Test & Evaluation Flight, Long Range Patrol Standardization and Evaluation Team and the Aerospace Engineering Test

This groundwork, the first serial of conversion training for the CP140M community, will directly support flight testing and rigorous evaluation of the new systems in the spring and summer

Raising the issue

Dear CCMS:
I'm constantly being interrupted by the same person at our meetings. I'm not sure what my colleague has against me, but it's causing me to feel like I'm not contributing anything of value. What can I do?

Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) doesn't only happen within the Conflict and Complaint Management Service (CCMS) office. There is a great opportunity for anyone to participate in ADR through one-on-one conversations. This approach is early, local and informal (ELI) and helps nip conflict in the bud. Should you choose to address this situation directly with your colleague, here is a three-step approach for raising the issue and setting a time to have the conversation.

Step 1. State the situation as you see it, focusing on the problem (not the person), using a neutral non-accusatory tone and words. Example: I've noticed we've had trouble communicating during meetings and there isn't always an opportunity to finish sharing our thoughts.

Step 2. Explain why it is important for you to have this discussion. Example: It's important for us to talk about this so that we are able to fully express ourselves in meetings, which can lead to a stronger team.

Step 3. Seek agreement on the issues and invite the other person to work with you to resolve them. Example: Do you agree there is a benefit to talking about this? We can take some time this afternoon if you are available.

For more information, contact your local CCMS office: Conflict & Complaint Management Services Centre 14 Wing Greenwood, 902-765-1494 local 3083.

Aborder le problème

Cher SGCP :
Je suis constamment interrompu par la même personne lors de nos réunions. Je ne sais pas ce que mon collègue a contre moi, mais cela me fait penser que je n'apporte rien de valeur. Que puis-je faire?

Les modes alternatifs de résolution des conflits (MARC) ne se produisent pas uniquement au sein du bureau du service de gestion des conflits et des plaintes (SGCP). Tous puissent participer au MARC par le biais de conversations individuelles. Cette approche est précoce, locale et informelle (PLI) aide à écraser les conflits dans l'œuf. Si vous choisissez de régler cette situation directement avec votre collègue, voici une approche en trois étapes pour aborder le problème et définir un moment pour la conversation.

Étape 1 Énoncez la situation telle que vous la voyez, en vous concentrant sur le problème (pas sur la personne), en utilisant un ton et des mots neutres et non accusateurs. Exemple: j'ai remarqué que nous avions du mal à communiquer lors de réunions et qu'il n'était pas toujours possible de finir de partager nos pensées.

Étape 2. Expliquez pourquoi il est important pour vous d'avoir cette discussion. Exemple: il est important que nous en parlions afin de pouvoir nous exprimer pleinement lors de réunions, ce qui peut renforcer l'équipe.

Étape 3. Recherchez un accord sur les problèmes et invitez l'autre personne à collaborer avec vous pour les résoudre. Exemple: Etes-vous d'accord pour dire qu'il ya un avantage à en parler? Nous pouvons prendre du temps cet après-midi si vous êtes disponible.

Pour plus d'informations, contactez votre bureau SGCP local: Centre de Services de Gestion des Conflits et des Plaintes 14 Escadre Greenwood, 902-765-1494 poste 3083.

Tracking it all Volunteer team adds order to museum's artefact collection

Malcolm Uhlman,
Greenwood Military
Aviation Museum

Over the 20-some years of the Greenwood Military Aviation Museum's existence, thousands of artefacts have been added to its collection - from the gigantic Argus aircraft on display in the Air Park to a small plastic ring crafted from the cockpit window of a crashed Hudson bomber by an RAF airman stationed here at Greenwood during the war. The museum's volunteer accession team is chaired by Mary Lou Graham, co-chaired by Joan Patrick and ably assisted by volunteer Gabrielle Gough. These three ladies have orchestrated this critical museum function for many years.

When items are received, many through individual or family donations or received from another museum, and sometimes purchased; the ladies spring into action. The article is assessed and catalogued; then, a determination is made to put it into storage for future use or put on display within the museum. Some items are challenging and require further research as to date and use. These unsung volunteers are typical of the many who do what is necessary to keep the museum's wheels turning: they are well deserving of everyone's respect and appreciation.
