Wing highlights East Coast CAF for international visitors

Foreign service attaches were given a tour of the aircraft used by 413 (Transport and Rescue) Squadron during an international defence attaches brief at Canadian Forces Base Greenwood May 8. Corporal A. Chand, 14 Wing Imaging

Sara White,
Managing editor

The array of camouflage, naval jackets and flight suits from more than a dozen international militaries' uniforms was eye-catching May 7, as foreign service attaches toured 14 Wing Greenwood as part of a multi-day Eastern Canadian tour.

14 Wing Commander Colonel Mike Adamson welcomed the group to the base, starting a day of briefings on the base's long range patrol and search and rescue work, and facility and aircraft tours.

"I've been 18 years off and on in Greenwood, and I'm very pleased to be here in this capacity (as wing commander)," Adamson said. "I'm very proud of what the men and women working here do executing Canada's mission."

That's happened since 1942, he said, when Canadian airfields opened to train international aircrews for service during the Second World War. Greenwood's role evolved over those early years and, in 1949, the base became the home of maritime patrol: "what we

Laser light in cockpit grounds 14 Wing aircraft

At 8:58 p.m. May 13, a Canadian Armed Forces pilot aborted a flight due to a laser being shone into the cockpit of the aircraft on the 14 Wing Greenwood runway.

The CC130 Hercules was on the taxiway when the laser incident occurred and, because of the incident, the flight was aborted. Witnesses reported the laser came from the area south of the base. RCMP patrolled the area but did not locate a suspect.

"Lasers present a serious risk to aviation. They can impair the pilots' vision, therefore putting at risk the lives of all occupants and people on the ground," said Lieutenant-Colonel Bruno Baker, Deputy Commander 14 Wing Greenwood.

"Incidents involving lasers pointed at airplanes cause the flight to be cancelled automatically for investigation and safety of the crews. In Greenwood, where search and rescue flights operate routinely, this could also affect the safety of those in need of assistance."

Anyone with information about this incident is asked to contact Kingston RCMP at 902-765-3317. Should you wish to remain anonymous, call Nova Scotia Crime Stoppers toll free at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477), submit a secure web tip at crimestoppers.ns.ca or use the P3 Tips App. ➔

Our CP140 Aurora aircraft has bene going through an incremental moderniza- tion project in the past few years, so ‘it’s state-of-the- art and very capable. That will continue to fly for many years. We’re waiting for the CC295, the new fixed-wing search and rescue aircraft, and we should see them here on our runway in 2022.

Flying the flag marks Aboriginals’ CAF contributions

May 21, 14 Wing Green- wood acknowledges the start of Aboriginal Awareness Week with an 8:15 a.m. flag raising at the base’s main gate. Mem- bers of the wing’s command team will join the 14 Wing Defence Aboriginal Advisory Group to mark the flag raising, and the wider community is invited to join them. The flag will be lowered May 24, with wing DAAG champion, Lieutenant-Colonel Bernie Thorne. The Canadian Armed Forces marks Aboriginal Awareness Week 2019 with the theme, “We are all Treaty People: honoring all my relations because intersectionality mat- ters.” The CAF’s DAAG program advises commanders at mul- tiple levels on significant issues affecting the lives of Aboriginal people working at the Department of National Defence and serving in the CAF. DAAG members help foster awareness of Aborigi- nal issues and recruiting and retention issues, and also provide a forum for Aborigi- nal peoples to gather and support one another as they exercise their unique cultur- al, spiritual and traditional identities within DND and the CAF. All DND employees and

The May 6 to 10 tour was part of an annual program of engagement tours fa- cilitated by Directorate of Foreign Liaison, showcasing Department of Nation- al Defence and Canadian Armed Forces’ capabilities, highlighting the Canadian defence industry and ex- posing attaches to Cana- dian culture and history. CAF members, regardless of ethnic origin, are welcome to join the DAAG. Aboriginal Awareness Week, introduced in 1992, was adopted by DND and CAF leadership as one of four employment equity commemorative events held annually. Aboriginal people were valued allies during the War of 1812, and thousands of Aboriginal men and women served during the First and Second world wars, the Ko- rean War and the Gulf War. Aboriginal CAF members have risked their lives defending the Canadian values of peace, freedom and democracy in such recent missions as Can- ada’s engagements in Bosnia, Kosovo, Afghanistan and oth- er UN-led and humanitarian missions. Based on self-iden- tification figures from 2015, there are approximately 2,294 Aboriginal members serving in the CAF Regular Force and Primary Reserve Force (2.5 per cent). The Army has the highest percentage of Aborigi- nal people at 2.7, the Navy has a representation of 2.3 per cent and the Royal Canadian Air Force is at 2.2 per cent. The CAF’s employment equity goal for Aboriginal peoples is 3.4 per cent. ➔

Day emphasizes unique role, value of Air Reservists

Sara White,
Managing editor

While 14 Wing Greenwood Commander Colonel Mike Adamson knows “Greenwood has the best Air Re- serve flight anywhere in the forces – no surprise to anyone!,” Brigadier-General Alex Day, Director General Air Staff and Director General Air Reserves, had a chance to see that for himself. Day visited the wing May 9, part of a multi-day visit to Air Reserve work sites around the Maritimes.

“It’s great to get out and see you, and see where the mission happens and what you folks do to get planes in the sky,” he said. He brought a message of support and reassurance for Reservists, that their unique working conditions and chal- lenges are included in the “Strong, Secure, Engaged” defence policy.

“There is a focus on the reserves, writ large,” Day said. “We can point to 10 per cent of operational output as a direct result of folks like you working on our wings, squadrons and headquar- ters. There are about 2,000 of you; we want to be upward of 2,500, so we’re trying to put in structures, policies and recruiting plans to get there.”

top of mind, but Day said the development of an Air Reserve-based air operations technician trade could be a way to reinforce the unique- ness of Air Reservists’ tech- nical expertise and, often, experience, on the flight line; and offer direct recruitment opportunity to newcomers.

“We’re looking at new ways of doing things – we know they’re out there on the squadron floor and, through a ‘vector check,’ you can take those right to the command- er. Propose your idea right to him, and he’ll listen, we’ll discuss it, flesh it out and see if it can be developed.” ➔

May 9, Brigadier-General Alex Day, Director General Air Staff and Direc- tor General Air Reserves, visited 14 Construction Engineering Squadron, Bridgewater. Following a tour of the Air Force Reserve unit and some pre- sentations, Day held a town hall meeting with members of 14 CES and members from both 143 and 144 (via VTC) Construction Engineering.

National Defence introduces two new employment resources for military spouses

The Department of Nation- al Defence (DND) recently launched two new resources to help military spouses and common-law partners find employment both within and outside of the federal public service.

Military Family Services (MFS), a division of Ca- nadian Forces Morale and Welfare Services, launched the new Military Spousal Employment Network, where military spouses can directly access employment oppor- tunities through an online job board and virtual career fairs with participating employers.

The network includes over a dozen employers across Canada which offer opportunities that may appeal to military spouses of currently serving members. So far, almost 130 employment opportunities have been posted, with some success- ful hires.

MFS manages a variety of employment and entrepre- neur programs that support the well-being of Canadian military families. These pro- grams are also available at Military Family Resource Centres.

The Military Spouse Cas- ual Inventory is open ex- clusively to spouses of serv- ing military members. With over 600 applicants to date, this initiative gives military spouses and partners an opportunity to attain mean- ingful casual employment at DND, and hiring managers a valuable pool of candidates.

Benefits of the casual in- ventory include, for mil- itary spouses, providing employment security and consistency.

Benefits of the casual in- ventory include, for hiring managers, access to the military spouse population, which consists of diverse, motivated, educated and other various skilled people situated across Canada.

For more information visit the Military Spouse Employ- ment Initiative and the Mil- itary Spousal Employment Network websites. ➔

Wingwork, safe work

14 Wing Greenwood command team members joined health and safety committee representatives in spreading a workplace safety message during North American Occupational Safety and Health Week May 5 to 11. They raised the NAOSH flag at the base's main gate, and a large banner caught the eye of wing personnel heading to their jobs.

Military Personnel Command initiatives for military, veterans, families

Military Personnel Command (MPC), which sets the personnel policies for people in uniform, is on track to delivering the new initiatives outlined in Canada's Defence Policy, Strong, Secure, Engaged (SSE).

"Our vision statement, 'People First, Mission Always,' goes to the heart of ensuring that Canadian Armed Forces members, veterans and their families are well-supported, diverse and resilient," says Lieutenant-General Charles Lamarre, commander of Military Personnel Command,

"As we look back on the past fiscal year, I am proud of the impressive amount of work we have accomplished."

Many of the key MPC accomplishments for 2018/ 19 will directly enhance the lives of CAF members.

- If deployed on a named CAF operation, you will have more money in your pocket, thanks to new tax relief measures.
- The Seamless Canada initiative, launched in June 2018, will make moving to another part of Canada easier for you and your family. The CAF is working with federal, provincial and private sector partners to improve the co-ordination of services across

If you need to talk to someone, the 24/7 Family Information Line, confidential sessions via telephone or video, can now be booked, providing a convenient and responsive service for military families.

- If your partner is looking for a job, the Military Spousal Employment Network and the Military Spouse Initiative offer potential job opportunities to military spouses of currently serving members.
- When you are posted, improvements to relocation services will help you and your family navigate the system more efficiently.
- LGBT and non-LGBT members of the Defence Team may look to the Positive Space Ambassador initiative, a volunteer and peer-based support network within the workplace that promotes diversity and inclusion across the country.
- Op Generation is making recruitment easier and faster, with a new digital recruiting platform and attraction campaign for people considering a career in the CAF.
- Stood up December 10, 2018, the CAF Transition Group ensures the wellbeing of you and your family as they help you move seamlessly into civilian life.
- Two other MPC initiatives that will benefit you in the long term are Pension for Life and the new Veteran's Service Card (VSC). If you are a CAF member or a veteran living with a service-related illness or injury, Pension for Life empowers you to choose the form of compensation that works best for you and your family. Rolled out in September 2018, the VSC recognizes CAF members' past service and helps them stay connected to military and veteran support programs.

Military Personnel Command's commitment to its people begins from the moment military members join the CAF, continues throughout their careers, and extends to that critical time of transition

Une version plus saine des cocktails de l'été

(EN) Avec ses petits fruits aigres-doux, ses notes florales d'hibiscus et sa saveur de menthe et de citron vert empruntée au Mojito, ce cocktail pétillant sans alcool à base de kombucha est une boisson estivale des plus rafraîchissante. Remplaçant le sucre blanc par du sucre de mererara non raffiné pour sa texture onctueuse similaire à de la mélasse, il ne manquera pas d'étancher votre soif lorsque le thermomètre commencera à grimper.

« Si vous utilisez des petits fruits qui sont plus aigres que doux, incorporez quelques gouttes de miel pour équilibrer l'acidité », suggère Martin Pate-naude, chef pour le Choix du Président.

Temps de préparation : 10 minutes
Portion : 1
Ingrédients
3 mûres et 3 framboises fraîches, plus quelques

125 ml (½ tasse) de Kombucha hibiscus et framboise PC Biologique
250 ml (1 tasse) de glaçons
1 brin de menthe fraîche pour garnir

Préparation

Placer les mûres et les framboises dans un verre à whisky. Ajouter cinq feuilles de menthe et le sucre; écraser avec un pilon ou le manche d'une cuillère en bois jusqu'à ce que la menthe soit froissée et odorante et les petits fruits réduits en purée. Verser le jus de lime, l'eau de coco et le kombucha. Ajouter les glaçons et les cinq feuilles de menthe restantes.

Garnir avec d'autres petits fruits et un brin de menthe. Conseil du chef : Pour alcooliser ce cocktail sans whisky, remplacez l'eau de coco par du rhum blanc.

Climate change and gardening

(NC) Canada is starting to respond to climate change, and it's also a concern for gardeners. The weather is not just getting warmer – it is also extreme and erratic. The best choice for gardening is to have a variety of plants. Annuals and perennials are good to plant as they can survive in a longer growing season. Using mulch more often is a good tactic, as it conserves moisture and will support plants in drought. Mulch can reduce summer soil temperatures and keep them warm in winter to keep the roots of plants healthy. Climate change also means an increase in rainfall. You will need to know flood tolerance of plants, as some can die after short periods of rain. Check out which plants need to be kept drier. Plants are adept at adapting to the changing climate, but seeds collected from local environments seem to do better. Another gardening suggestion is to try a rooftop garden. It's a small step towards fighting the effects of climate change, but research has shown that rooftop greens can help absorb harmful greenhouse gases. It is important to observe climate change and to be aware of how it is affecting us. Amnesty International is calling for worldwide action to combat climate change, which is not just threatening our existence, but risks impacting our human rights, including the right to life, health, food, water, housing, and livelihoods. Un burger de porc piquant pour bien commencer la saison des barbecues

(EN) S'inspirant des plats de rue authentiques vietnamiens, cette recette de burger vous donnera envie de vous mettre aux grillades. Garni de radis blanc, de concombre, d'une garniture classique composée de carottes marinées, de mayo sriracha et de quelques feuilles de coriandre, ce burger est croustillant à souhait. « Ces burgers de porc vont simplifier à l'extrême vos barbecues et réceptions estivales; avec leurs saveurs exceptionnelles, ils ont tout pour devenir le plat préféré de vos invités », dit Martin Patenaude, chef pour le Choix du Président. Burgers de porc Banh Mi Temps de préparation : 10 minutes Temps de cuisson : 15 minutes Portions : 4

Handy hacks to help you move

(NC) Moving should really be classified as a sport: you need a team, it involves heavy lifting and on game day (moving day) ... hard work in preparation pays off. So, what is the one piece of equipment that is a “must have” for your moving playbook? Tape. Don’t just settle for any tape. You need the best gear to ensure success. Here are a few tape tips.

It never fails – on moving day you’re left with a variety of oversized or awkwardly shaped items. Rather than looking for boxes, get creative by bundling and wrapping them with tape. T-Rex tape is an excellent choice, since it works longer and holds stronger than other utility tapes.

Moving big pieces of furniture can also be a headache.

Equally frustrating is locating bungee cords and appliance straps. To make it easy, skip the bungee and opt for T-Rex Brute Force tape to keep doors shut and to secure heavy pieces to the dolly. The intense strength, durability and holding power of the tape will offer you added peace of mind.

Overhead storage in the garage, shed or basement is great until you have to start moving it. If you’re using a ladder to access extra storage space, stay in the game and apply tread tape to each ladder rung to provide extra grip and protection from slipping. If you’re using a personal truck for the move, you can also adhere a few strips to your truck bed for added foot traction and to prevent boxes from shifting during transit.

ROBERT “BOB”, WO (ret’d) Gimblett,
Dartmouth, NS

Age 66, West Jeddore, passed away peacefully on May 11, 2019 in Twin Oaks Memorial Hospital with his wife, daughter and grandson by his side. Born March 20, 1953 in Halifax, Bob was a son of the late Robert and Dorothy (Baert) Gimblett. He is survived by his loving wife of 45 years, Shelley (Ackert); sisters, Rosalie (Bill) Holmes, Sackville, N.B.; Cameille (Marvin) Sherman, Halifax; Jeanette Brown, Winnipeg, Man.; Mary Jenkins (predeceased) Dartmouth; and brothers, John, of Halifax and Peter (Cindy), Greenwood. Bob was a loving husband, a caring father, grandfather and great-grandfather who will be missed by all that knew him especially his children, Patti (Jeff) Wallace, Cole Harbour and Judson (now the man of the house) at home in West Jeddore. Also, his three grandchildren, Jessica (Ryan Campbell), Colton and Judson Wallace and his great-grandchildren, Audrey and Alice Campbell. Bob served in the Air Force division of the Military for 26 years as a Warrant Officer ACS Tech, retiring in 2001. After retirement from the military, Bob served as a park tech and later chief caretaker at Porters Lake Provincial Park until 2018. Bob continued to be an integral member of the community by volunteering in Memory Lane Heritage Village and being helpful to many in his community. Following retirement, Bob enjoyed life with his family and friends, taking care of his many birds, enjoying fishing, hunting and the outdoors. Please join Bob's family and friends for a Memorial Service to be held at 2 p.m. on Tuesday, May 21st in St. James Anglian Church located at 66 Dolby Hill Road with Rev. Andrew Mortimer, Rev. Colourful quilts

May 11, the Anglican Parish of Wilmot hosted a quilt show at the All Saint's Anglican Church in Kingston, which turned into a fabulous event with over 100 quilts on display and numerous hooked rugs. Quilts came in all sizes and shapes, many over 100 years old lent by families and friends in the Annapolis Valley and beyond. A show highlight was the Centennial Quilt, made in 1967 with 833 names on it of people from the Annapolis Valley during that time period. Another small quilt on display was from Australia, given to a lady years ago and added to the show.

Renos add to the action at Greenwood bowling lanes

Sara White,
Managing editor

Renovations at the Greenwood Bowling Centre will likely last a lifetime.

New synthetic lanes are replacing the 50-plus year old wooden – original! – maple strip lanes.

“Every five or six years, we sand the lanes down. It takes time, the lanes are out of use and it costs $10,000 – they’ve been resurfaced and resanded, but we’ve been sanding now through the nails. Every time you throw a ball, it’s an automatic chip,” says bowling supervisor Kathy Alexander.

“Now, we’ll never have to do any of that again. These lanes will outlive the building!”

The synthetic lanes are a mix of serendipity and smart investment. Greenwood is the beneficiary of the closure last year of the Stadacona bowling lanes in Halifax: it had six brand new synthetic lanes, removed and brought to Greenwood. A decision to upgrade the remaining five lanes to synthetic was quickly endorsed by Greenwood leaders, based on the demand for bowling time following the closure in recent years of community lanes in Middleton and New Minas. Greenwood’s bowling lanes are the only game in town.

“We have a ladies’ league, men’s, mixed, Special Olympics, youth, seniors, a wine league, base section events, day camps, birthday parties...,” Alexander says. With the lane improvements, plans are afoot for more.

“We’ve not been an inspected facility for years, and we do have competitive bowlers who go on to national level competition,” says Greenwood Community Centre manager Jill Jackson. “We’re going to become a certified facility, inspected every six months, and we’ll be able to host national events.”

The new surfaces went down right over top of the original hardwood for a rock solid base. Along with the synthetic lanes come glow effects that will go right back into the approach – fun! – and bumpers rails that raise and lower.

“Those will be great for kids and learners,” Alexander says. “Before, you’d throw a ball, it only goes halfway down and you have to go get it. With the bumpers, people will hit more pins and it’ll be more exciting for them from the start.”

The project is costing $113,000, half coming from Public funding and half from the 14 Wing Greenwood Wing Fund, designated for morale and welfare projects. The lanes were only out of commission for about 10 days, re-opening May 10. ➔

Greenwood Bombers PW C win Valley championship

March 9 at the Bridgetown Arena, the Annapolis Valley Eastern and Western conference champions, the Greenwood Bombers and the Digby Ravens, faced off for the overall league championship.

This was a very intense match up. With the play fairly even in the first two periods, the Bombers took hold in the third period to control the play and found themselves with a commanding lead right to the final buzzer. What a way to finish such a fun and exciting season, winning the AVMHL championship!

The Greenwood Pee wee C Bombers have ended an era proudly representing Greenwood Minor Hockey with pride and respect. Their accomplishments this season have been outstanding, from placing third at the Middleton Mustang Tournament, first at the Bridgetown Hawks Tournament and first at the Greenwood Aviation Tournament. This team has exemplified hard work and determination all season long, on and off the ice. The words “giving up” were not in the Bombers’ vocabulary, and all of their efforts have certainly paid off.

Each and every one of you made your coaches, parents and community proud. Congratulations, Bombers. Well done! ➔
